The new building will be a 40 by 26 foot wing to the northwest corner of the original hospital building and will cost approximately $63,000. New X-ray equipment will cost an additional $23,000. The contract also calls for remodeling of the first floor of the original building to provide another dispensary, additional bath facilities, a waiting room, and additional office area.

Work on the new project will be done by Hill & Ivins, a Chambersburg construction firm. The building is expected to be finished in 60 days.

Fly U. S. Flag On Wednesday

Gettysburg residents today were asked to fly the American flag Wednesday as a patriotic gesture in connection with the dedication here of the Albert Woolson statue as a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Burgess William G. Weaver said: "Wednesday many delegates to the national encampments of the Sons of Union Veterans, Auxiliary of the SUV and Ladies of the Grand Army will be here to dedicate a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic. The GAR, which came to an end with the death of its last member, Albert Woolson, in August, spent most of its 90 years of existence in promoting patriotism. The allied orders of the GAR continue that tradition.

"As hosts to the delegates and recipient of the Woolson monument Gettysburg residents are urged to display the American flag Wednesday as a mark of respect to the passing of a great patriotic organization, the Grand Army."

YoungMother Has Polio; 1st In Two Years

Adams County's first case of polio in two years was diagnosed Monday.

The victim is a 25-year-old mother of two young sons, Mrs. June Livingston, wife of Clark Livingston, East Berlin R. D. They live in Reading Township.

The mother was taken last Thursday to the Harrisburg City Hospital when polio was suspected and Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams County medical director, was notified Monday that positive diagnosis has been made.

Dr. Crist said Mrs. Livingston has a non-paralytic type of polio and her condition is "good."

Clinic This Evening

Her two children have had shots of anti-polio Salk vaccine but Mrs. Livingston had not, Dr. Crist said.

Dr. Leon D. Roos, East Berlin, Mrs. Livingston's physician, said today he has learned from Harrisburg that Mrs. Livingston is improving.

Dr. Crist urged youngsters who have had their first shots of Salk vaccine and are ready for their second shots to report at the weekly clinic at the Warner Hospital this afternoon at 5 o'clock. "There are many children in the county who had their intitial shot of vaccine but have not yet reported to get their second shot. They ought to report this evening. The clinic will operate from 5 to 6:30 o'clock."

800 GOP From 48 States To Attend Rally On Wednesday

The program at the GOP rally at the Eisenhower farm Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock will be broadcast by WGET. It will be sponsored by the Adams County Republican Committee.

Everything is in readiness for the first big Republican gathering, Wednesday afternoon, since the national convention in San Francisco last month and the third time that President Eisenhower plays hosts to his colleagues at his Gettysburg farm.

At 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon approximately 800 Republicans, the chairmen and the national committeemen and women from the 48 states, gubernatorial, senatorial and congressional candidates will come to Gettysburg for a GOP powwow and a Pennsylvania picnic supper on the Eisenhower farm.

The guests will meet in Washington and come to Gettysburg in buses. At the farm everything is in readiness for their arrival.

Duff To Preside

A large auditorium tent, a spacious press tent, kitchen and Red Cross tents have been erected. In the auditorium tent President and Mrs. Eisenhower will receive their guests. Senator James H. Duff, candidate for re-election to the senate from Pennsylvania, will be the master of ceremonies.

The large press tent was erected because of the anticipated large crowd of reporters and photographers who are expected to be here for the occasion which had attracted nationwide attention.

President Eisenhower will speak and it is expected that he will make some announcements of "real interest" to his colleagues.

The documentary film "The Battle of Gettysburg" will be shown at the Majestic Theater from Sept. 13-18. Taken in Gettysburg, the film was written and produced by Dore Schary and directed by Herman Hoffman.

Already shown in New York "The Battle of Gettysburg" has been hailed as a short subject masterpiece and seems almost certain to win an Academy award. The New York Times film critic called the movie, an "eloquent review of the flow of a great battle. Like a visit to Gettysburg with an expert guide. Reconstructs the battle until the military majesty of the mighty conflict flames in the mind."

"The Battle of Gettysburg" is the first documentary to be made in both cinemascope and color and presents a totally new technique. No living actors or artificial

Grateful To Park Service For Photographs

The Gettysburg Times is indebted to the National Park Service for the collection of old photographs from which most of the prints in the anniversary edition were made.

Members of The Times staff examined hundreds of negatives in the park collection selecting those which were printable and most interesting to Gettysburg residents.

A great number of the prints were on glass negatives which made reproduction difficult. Where possible The Times has identified both the photographer and the time at which the picture was taken.

Some of the prints are taken from photographs of rare old etchings which date far back in the history of Gettysburg.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg, park service historian, made a number of the prints.

MOUNT TO OPEN 149TH SESSION ON THURSDAY

Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, second oldest Catholic College in the United States will begin its 149th academic year Thursday morning with a capacity enrollment of approximately 600 students. The formal opening will get under way with a solemn mass of the Holy Ghost in the College Chapel celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Sheridan, president of the college. Classes will begin after the services.

Freshman orientation began at the Mount for 215 incoming students Monday morning.

Enrollment figures top last year's figure by only ten students since the college is operating at capacity. Refusals were the largest in history. Most of the gains were in the freshman class. In addition to the freshmen aproximate class figures show 190 sophomores, 103 juniors, and 97 seniors.

Heaviest freshman enrollment is in the social science course with 57 incoming students electing that course. Science, pre-medicine and pre-dentistry had 56 freshmen: business administration, 46; liberal arts, 30, and education 21.

Come From 14 States

The new Mount St. Mary's freshman roster represents 14 states, the District of Columbia, and Germany. Geographic distribution is as follows: Pennsylvania, 60; New Jersey, 45; New York, 41; Maryland, 32; Delaware, 11; District of Columbia, 7; Virginia 7; Massachusetts, 4; Connecticut, 4; Florida, 3; Ohio, Rhode Island, Michigan, West Virginia, Maine and Germany, 1 each.

Included in the freshman class are 20 veterans.

The freshman figures are slightly under last year's record enrollment of 247 students.

Classes in the Mount St. Mary's Seminary will begin on September 17 with approximately 115 students enrolled about the same as last year. The seminarians returned to the campus on September 7 and began their annual retreat on September 8. Ordinations to minor orders and the deaconate will take place on September 14 and 15.

Seminary enrollment represents approximately 27 different dioceses in 17 different states.

LOCAL GUARD MEASURES UP ON INSPECTION

Gettysburg's National Guard Unit was found "in excellent shape" by an inspection team from the Second Battalion headquarters, York, Monday evening.

The officers comprising the team included the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Marlin B. Bair; the battalion adjutant, Capt. J. Keister; the army advisor, Capt. Leon Shindelman; the battalion training officer, Capt. Wliam Ruth and the battalion supply officer, 1st Lt. Austin Deller.

The committee arrived Monday afternoon to make a thorough inspection of the administration and supply.

Monday evening the team conducted an "in-line" inspection of the members of the local Howitzer Company. Following the formation, the group was divided into two sections. Men training with the carbine were asked a number of questions concerning their weapon. The men training with the M-1 rifle were inspected on the manual of arms.

Following that test, the officers conducted inspections of classes and working groups, watching the training being given and questioning the men at their various jobs concerning their knowledge of the work being carried out and the training being conducted.

At Monday's session of the Guard, Lt. Donald Doersom, company commander, outlined plans of the unit to participate in the Sesquicentennial parade here Saturday afternoon.

Photographers Hold Meeting On Monday

A print shown by Miss Violet Seabold of Harrisburg won first place in the monthly print show Monday evening at the September meeting of the Gettysburg Photographic Society. The meeting was held at the Adams Electric Cooperative building off N. Stratton St. President Edward Stine presided.

Philip Tyson and Paul Pensinger tied for second place with their entries and Maurice Stoops placed third.

The group voted to continue meeting at the Adams Electric Cooperative building and discussed a change in the regular meeting date. Miss Seabold was placed in charge of the programs for the year. The committee in charge of the photographic exhibit at the South Mountain Fair reported on the success of that undertaking.

Eleven members attended and 11 prints were displayed.

Fairfield Woman Injured In Crash

Mrs. Elsie S. McGlaughlin, 65, Fairfield, suffered lacerations of the face and contusions of the left shoulder and body when two cars collided two miles west of Fairfield on the Zora Road Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock.

Mrs. McGlaughlin was treated at the Warner Hospital. She was a passenger in a west bound car operated by Harry W. McGlaughlin, 64, Main St., Fairfield.

State police said John Schlarb 43, Pottsville, was headed east when a car ahead of him had a blowout, slowed and started to pull off the road. Schlarb, seeking to avoid striking the auto ahead, pulled into the other lane and collided with the west-bound McGlaughlin vehicle. Damage was estimated at $300 to the Schlarb car and $100 to the McGlaughlin sedan.

$5,299 GOAL SET IN COUNTY DRIVE BY GIRL SCOUTS

Plans for the annual financial campaign of the Adams County Girl Scout Council were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of neighborhood chairmen held in the Girl Scout office in the First National Bank building here.

Goal for the campaign, to be held October 8 to 14, will be $5,299.30. Of that amount $2,000 will be raised in Gettysburg through Community Chest. The remainder will be raised in the other parts of the county.

Oliver Peifer, Orrtanna R. D., finance chairman for the Girl Scouts, announced community goals for the drive. The goals are: Arendtsville, $261.50; Bendersville, $217.14; Biglerville, $201.63; Cashtown, $124.09; Fairfield, $253.33; Hampton, $144.76; East Berlin, $274.01; Littlestown, $920.26; New Oxford, $635.91; York Springs, $266.67.

The goals, he explained, are based on the number of Girl Scouts in each area. Approximately 1,000 girls are members of the scouts throughout the county.

Decision to hold the county-wide drive at the same time as the Gettysburg Community Chest drive was made some time ago, Peifer explained. In that way the entire drive can be completed at one time and there will be less confusion, he added. In prior years the county and Community Chest campaigns were held at different times.

Pledge cards were explained by Peifer, and the solicitors making the

Couple Wed By Justice Snyder

Miss Genevieve Lois Chamberlain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Chamberlain, Orrtanna R. 1, was married to Paul Henry Wine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wine, New Oxford R. 2, Monday evening. Justice of the Peace Robert P. Snyder performed the ceremony in his office in the Plaza Building, Baltimore St., at 7:50 o'clock.

The bride was attired in a navy blue street length dress trimmed with a white collar. The newlyweds will reside at New Oxford R. 2 when they return from a short trip. Both have been employed seasonally at the C. H. Musselman Company, Biglerville, since 1950.

BOARD TO MEET

The board of directors of the Adams County Free Library will meet Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the main library on E. High St., according to notices issued by the secretary, Mrs. Mary S. Wilson.

Joint School Board Authorizes Conference With Commissioners On Proposed Grade School Site

The Gettysburg Joint School Board at a regular meeting Monday evening voted to authorize its finance and planning committee to negotiate with the Adams County commissioners for a price on a 10-acre tract of county farm land along E. Broadway as a prospective site for a new grade school building.

The board stipulated that the committee had no authority to bind the board to an offer, the land and asked for a report next month on the result of the negotiations.

The proposed site, east of the Harrisburg Rd. and north of the second block of E. Broadway, was described by the finance and planning committee chairman, Ray J. Kitzmiller, who is president of the Gettysburg schol board, as the "best available site."

Have OK At Harrisburg

Kitzmiller said that in previous talks with the commissioners, a figure has been given the school committee on the site. He did not say what the figure is.

One director balked at authorizing the negotiations without instructing the committee on what price it may offer and he voted against the motion. Dr. R. D. Wickerham, board president, pointed out that only a few of the directors have looked over the site so that the board would "hardly be in position to fix a price now."

The site already has oral approval from officials of the state Department of Public Instruction. State approval also was secured on a second site on the county farm, near the county jail, but the commissioners have decided against considering sale of that site, Kitzmiller said.

Cost Of Development Cited

Mr. Kitzmiller also said that the state officials had given preliminary approval to another proposed site east of here along the Lincoln Highway. The tract was not further identified but had been rated by the committee as less suitable than the E. Broadway site.

Edward B. Bulleit, a member of the Gettysburg board, suggested that another section of the county farm, north of Howard Ave. and west of the Biglerville Rd. had possibilities as a school site but during the discussion that followed it was pointed out that it would be "too costly" to run sewer and water lines to that location and town pupils could not walk to that site.

The E. Broadway site has water,

CHEST DRIVE PLANS MADE; CLUBS TO HELP

Preliminary plans for the annual Community Chest drive in October were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of committee chairmen held by Drive Chairman LeRoy E. Smith at his office on N. Stratton St.

Service clubs of the community will be asked to participate in the drive with the "kickoff" dinner taking the form of a joint service clubs meal October 8.

The service club members will be asked to serve as solicitors for a campaign through the town immediately after the dinner. Each will be given a small number of cards and will call immediately on the homes of those listed. It is hoped by this method to cover much of the community in a single evening, Smith said.

Name Division Heads

Much of the meeting was devoted to discussion of methods of "better educating" both solicitors and the public in "the tremendous work carried on through the donations to Community Chest. I fully feel that if the people of the town knew fully the use to which their money is being put, the Community Chest would be oversubscribed annually," Mr. Smith said.

The Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange, Business and Professional Women's Club and other service clubs have "enthusiastically agreed" to take part, Gordon Webster, vice chairman of the drive committee, said. Webster said the clubs "agree that this is an opportunity for them, as community service clubs, to render a real community service."

To Prepare Film

Chairman Smith announced as among divisional heads: Vice chairman, Gordon J. Webster; public relations, Carl A. Baum; newspaper publicity, Paul L. Roy; radio publicity, Parker H. Cunningham; films and tape recordings, Walter B. Lane and G. Henry Roth; advance gifts, Attorney Eugene Hartman; classified division, Attorney John A. MacPhail; business division, William Lentz; rural division, E. Donald Scott and John Caldwell; industrial division, Frank Bowersox. Additional chairmen will be named within the next few days, Smith said.

A film showing the activities of the various services supported by Community Chest is being made and will be shown in industries, schools, to service clubs, and "every place we can show it," Smith said. "Through the film we hope to bring home to the people of the community the tremendous work that is done by the Community Chest-supported units, the Library, Recreation Association, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, YWCA and Civic Nursing Association.

6,666 TOURISTS HERE

The first snap of cool autumn weather brought a grand total of 6,666 tourists to Gettysburg last Saturday and Sunday. Three thousand two hundred thirty-six persons comprised the Saturday crowd. One hundred of the Saturday visitors traveled in three buses. The Sunday amount was a heavier 3,430. Ninety-eight of these tourists traveled in three buses.

COLLEGE AND HS GRID COACHES LIONS' GUESTS

Season problems and prospects were reviewed for Gettysburg Lions by the members of the football coaching staffs of Gettysburg High School and Gettysburg College at the club's weekly dinner meeting Monday evening at the Shetter House.

Head Coach Howard Shoemaker said the high school schedule is "rough, there's not a breather on the whole schedule and we need your moral support."

John Yovicsin, head football coach at the college, told the clubmen that his squad lacks experience and is short on reserve strength but "with the schedule and the boys we have, I think we can give you some interesting football and maybe enough winning football to please you."

Coaches Introduced

Henry T. Bream, athletic director at the college and a member of the host club, was master of ceremonies for the program. He introduced George Forney, high school athletic director, who spoke briefly and then presented the members of the coaching staff at the high school: Ray Ellis, Don Bickel, Ned Brownley and Howard Shoemaker.

Forney said there are only six seniors and nine juniors in his 40-man squad. There are only five lettermen in the squad, he added.

Romeo Capozzi, trainer; James Lentz, varsity line coach; Jack Ridinger, freshman coach, and Coach Yovicsin were introduced by Mr. Bream. The head coach said virus attacks have prevented scrimmages so far in preparation for the opening of the grid season at Lehigh September 22. He described the daily training schedule for his 36-man squad that starts at 7 a.m. and includes four hours on the field each day in addition to conferences with the coaches. George Washington University will scrimmage here September 15, he said.

To Help On Chest Drive

Democrats Hail Victory In Maine; Re-elect Gov. Muskie

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Democrats hailed today a rousing Maine election victory which Adlai Stevenson said indicates that "the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

Gov. Edmund S. Muskie won a second term with the biggest vote ever given a Maine governor of either party.

And, for the first time since the New Deal year of 1934, a Democrat was elected to Congress. He is Frank M. Coffin, 37-year-old Lewiston lawyer and chairman of his party's state committee.

Very Close Race

Presidential nominee Stevenson's campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, called the Democratic victory "all the more remarkable in view of the way the Republicans made this a test of President Eisenhower's popularity and influence with the voters."

For the moment, there was no comment from GOP leaders — either state or national.

The outcome of another congressional race was so close it may wind up before the House Elections Committee.

Rep. Hale Wins

Rep. Robert Hale (R) seemed to have won an eighth term in the 1st Dist. by 72 votes over Democrat James C. Oliver, who as a Republican preceded Hale in Congress from 1937-43.

Rep. Clifford G. McIntire had no trouble gaining a third full term in the 3rd Dist. but his percentage was down.

The 42-year-old Muskie, son of a Polish immigrant tailor, became the first Democrat re-elected in a presidential year—at least since the Civil War. And in those days Maine governors had one instead of two-year terms.

Muskie Gets 59 Pct.

In 621 of 630 precincts, an unofficial tabulation rolled up 179,697 votes for Muskie and 123,784 for Willis A. (Bill) Trafton Jr., 37, the Republican speaker of the Maine House.

The total of 303,481 was almost 6,000 below the record, but Muskie's vote was well ahead of the best previously given any governor — 172,113 for Republican Lewis O. Barrows in 1936.

Muskie got 59 per cent of the vote in yesterday's balloting, the first in the country this year. Two years ago he won his first term with 54½ per cent of almost 249,000, beating Burton M. Cross, then

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new X-ray wing of the Annie M. Warner Hospital will be held Friday, September 14, at 10 a.m. with Richard W. Livingston, New Oxford, president of the board of directors in charge of the ceremonies. John A. Hauser, chairman of the building committee, will turn over the first shovelful of ground.

Dr. Joseph L. Boyer will represent the medical staff of the hospital at the ceremonies. The invocation will be given by Rev. Fr. The ceremony is open to the public.

The new building will be a 40 by 26 foot wing to the northwest corner of the original hospital building and will cost approximately $63,000. New X-ray equipment will cost an additional $23,000. The contract also calls for remodeling of the first floor of the original building to provide another dispensary, additional bath facilities, a waiting room, and additional office area.

Work on the new project will be done by Hill & Ivins, a Chambersburg construction firm. The building is expected to be finished in 60 days.

BETA SIGMA PHI CHAPTER WILL SPONSOR ROOM

Plans were made by the Xi Alpha Chi chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi sorority at its first fall meeting Monday evening to sponsor a room in the new wing of the Warner Hospital as the group's main charity project the year.

To raise money for the project the members will sell greeting cards including sympathy and all occasion cards, cocktail napkins and gift wrapping paper.

This year's cultural and informative programs will be divided into three fields of study, it was announced. The first part will be devoted to bridge lessons given by Mrs. Henry M. Scharf. The other two parts will be chosen from Civil Defense, music appreciation, beauty culture or sewing. Mrs. Selmar Hess is chairman of the program committee. She will be assisted by Mrs. Holbert I. Riley and Miss Mary Degnan.

New Rooms Furnished

Mrs. Donald Uber, president, presided at the business session. She named Mrs. Hess representative to the Adams County Council of Community Services. The housing committee reported that it has completed furnishing the new sorority rooms on Chambersburg St. where the group held its meeting Monday. New chairs and utility tables have been purchased and a telephone installed.

The chapter will send a representative to the Community Chest kick-off dinner in October, it was announced. Members will aid in the drive.

A covered dish supper was held at 6:30 o'clock in the sorority rooms before the business session.

Fly U. S. Flag On Wednesday

Gettysburg residents today were asked to fly the American flag Wednesday as a patriotic gesture in connection with the dedication here of the Albert Woolson statue as a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Burgess William G. Weaver said: "Wednesday many delegates to the national encampments of the Sons of Union Veterans, Auxiliary of the SUV and Ladies of the Grand Army will be here to dedicate a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic. The GAR, which came to an end with the death of its last member, Albert Woolson, in August, spent most of its 90 years of existence in promoting patriotism. The allied orders of the GAR continue that tradition.

"As hosts to the delegates and recipient of the Woolson monument Gettysburg residents are urged to display the American flag Wednesday as a mark of respect to the passing of a great patriotic organization, the Grand Army."

Adams County's first case of polio in two years was diagnosed Monday.

The victim is a 25-year-old mother of two young sons, Mrs. June Livingston, wife of Clark Livingston, East Berlin R. D. They live in Reading Township.

The mother was taken last Thursday to the Harrisburg City Hospital when polio was suspected and Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams County medical director, was notified Monday that positive diagnosis has been made.

Dr. Crist said Mrs. Livingston has a non-paralytic type of polio and her condition is "good."

Her two children have had shots of anti-polio Salk vaccine but Mrs. Livingston had not, Dr. Crist said.

Dr. Leon D. Roos, East Berlin, Mrs. Livingston's physician, said today he has learned from Harrisburg that Mrs. Livingston is improving.

Dr. Crist urged youngsters who have had their first shots of Salk vaccine and are ready for their second shots to report at the weekly clinic at the Warner Hospital this afternoon at 5 o'clock. "There are many children in the county who had their intitial shot of vaccine but have not yet reported to get their second shot. They ought to report this evening. The clinic will operate from 5 to 6:30 o'clock."

The New York Times film critic called the movie, an "eloquent review of the flow of a great battle. Like a visit to Gettysburg with an expert guide. Reconstructs the battle until the military majesty of the mighty conflict flames in the mind."

Grateful To Park Service For Photographs

The Gettysburg Times is indebted to the National Park Service for the collection of old photographs from which most of the prints in the anniversary edition were made.

Members of The Times staff examined hundreds of negatives in the park collection selecting those which were printable and most interesting to Gettysburg residents.

A great number of the prints were on glass negatives which made reproduction difficult. Where possible The Times has identified both the photographer and the time at which the picture was taken.

Some of the prints are taken from photographs of rare old etchings which date far back in the history of Gettysburg.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg, park service historian, made a number of the prints.

LOCAL GUARD MEASURES UP ON INSPECTION

Gettysburg's National Guard Unit was found "in excellent shape" by an inspection team from the Second Battalion headquarters, York, Monday evening.

The officers comprising the team included the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Marlin B. Bair; the battalion Adjutant, Capt. J. Keister; the army advisor, Capt. Leon Shindelman; the battalion training officer, Capt. Wilam Ruth and the battalion supply officer, 1st Lt. Austin Deller.

The committee arrived Monday afternoon to make a thorough inspection of the administration and supply.

Monday evening the team condocted an "in-line" inspection of the members of the local Howitzer Company. Following the formation, the group was divided into two sections. Men training with the carbine were asked a number of questions concerning their weapon. The men training with the M-1 rfile were inspected on the manual of arms.

Following that test, the officers conducted inspections of classes and working groups, watching the training being given and questioning the men at their various jobs conconcerning their knowledge of the work being carried out and the training being conducted.

At Monday's session of the Guard, Lt. Donald Doersom, company commander, outlined plans of the unit to participate in the Sesquicentennial parade here Saturday afternoon.

Photographers Hold Meeting On Monday

Eleven members attended and 11 prints were displayed.

Fairfield Woman Injured In Crash

Mrs Elsie S. McGlaughlin, 65, Fairfield, suffered lacerations of the face and contusions of the left shoulder and body when two cars collided two miles west of Fairfield on the Zora Road Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock.

Mrs. McGlaughlin was treated at the Warner Hospital. She was a passenger in a west bound car operated by Harry W. McGlaughlin, 64, Main St., Fairfield.

State police said John Schlarb, 43, Pottsville, was headed east when a car ahead of him had a blowout, slowed and started to pull off the road. Schlarb, seeking to avoid striking the auto ahead, pulled into the other lane and collided with the west-bound McGlaughlin vehicle. Damage was estimated at $300 to the Schlarb car and $100 to the McGlaughlin sedan.

$5,299 GOAL SET IN COUNTY DRIVE BY GIRL SCOUTS

Plans for the annual financial campaign of the Adams County Girl Scout Council were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of neighborhood chairmen held in the Girl Scout office in the First National Bank building here.

Goal for the campaign, to be held October 8 to 14, will be $5,299.30. Of that amount $2,000 will be raised in Gettysburg through Community Chest. The remainder will be raised in the other parts of the county.

Oliver Peifer, Orrtanna R. D., finance chairman for the Girl Scouts, announced community goals for the drive. The goals are: Arendtsville, $261.50; Bendersville, $217.14; Biglerville, $201.63; Cashtown, $124.09; Fairfield, $253.33; Hampton, $144.76; East Berlin, $274.01; Littlestown, $920.26; New Oxford, $635.91; York Springs, $266.67.

The goals, he explained, are based on the number of Girl Scouts in each area. Approximately 1,000 girls are members of the scouts throughout the county.

Decision to hold the county-wide drive at the same time as the Gettysburg Community Chest drive was made some time ago, Peifer explained. In that way the entire drive can be completed at one time and there will be less confusion, he added. In prior years the county and Community Chest campaigns were held at different times.

Pledge cards were explained by Peifer, and the solicitors making the

Democrats Hail Victory In Maine; Re-elect Gov. Muskie

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Democrats hailed today a rousing Maine election victory which Adlai Stevenson said indicates that "the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

Gov. Edmund S. Muskie won a second term with the biggest vote ever given a Maine governor of either party.

And, for the first time since the New Deal year of 1934, a Democrat was elected to Congress. He is Frank M. Coffin, 37-year-old Lewiston lawyer and chairman of his party's state committee.

Very Close Race

Presidential nominee Stevenson's campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, called the Democratic victory "all the more remarkable in view of the way the Republicans made this a test of President Eisenhower's popularity and influence with the voters."

For the moment, there was no comment from GOP leaders — either state or national.

The outcome of another congressional race was so close it may wind up before the House Elections Committee.

Rep. Hale Wins

Rep. Robert Hale (R) seemed to have won an eighth term in the 1st Dist. by 72 votes over Democrat James C. Oliver, who as a Republican preceded Hale in Congress from 1937-43.

Rep. Clifford G. McIntire had no trouble gaining a third full term in the 3rd Dist. but his percentage was down.

The 42-year-old Muskie, son of a Polish immigrant tailor, became the first Democrat re-elected in a presidential year—at least since the Civil War. And in those days Maine governors had one instead of two-year terms.

Muskie Gets 59 Pct.

In 621 of 630 precincts, an unofficial tabulation rolled up 179,697 votes for Muskie and 123,784 for Willis A. (Bill) Trafton Jr., 37, the Republican speaker of the Maine House.

The total of 303,481 was almost 6,000 below the record, but Muskie's vote was well ahead of the best previously given any governor — 172,113 for Republican Lewis O. Barrows in 1936.

Muskie got 59 per cent of the vote in yesterday's balloting, the first in the country this year. Two years ago he won his first term with 54½ per cent of almost 249,000, beating Burton M. Cross, then

Joint School Board Authorizes Conference With Commissioners On Proposed Grade School Site

The Gettysburg Joint School Board at a regular meeting Monday evening voted to authorize its finance and planning committee to negotiate with the Adams County commissioners for a price on a 10-acre tract of county farm land along E. Broadway as a prospective site for a new grade school building.

The board stipulated that the committee had no authority to bind the board to an offer, the land and asked for a report next month on the result of the negotiations.

The proposed site, east of the Harrisburg Rd. and north of the second block of E. Broadway, was described by the finance and planning committee chairman, Ray J. Kitzmiller, who is president of the Gettysburg schol board, as the "best available site."

Have OK At Harrisburg

Kitzmiller said that in previous talks with the commissioners, a figure has been given the school committee on the site. He did not say what the figure is.

One director balked at authorizing the negotiations without instructing the committee on what price it may offer and he voted against the motion. Dr. R. D. Wickerham, board president, pointed out that only a few of the directors have looked over the site so that the board would "hardly be in position to fix a price now."

The site already has oral approval from officials of the state Department of Public Instruction. State approval also was secured on a second site on the county farm, near the county jail, but the commissioners have decided against considering sale of that site, Kitzmiller said.

Cost Of Development Cited

Mr. Kitzmiller also said that the state officials had given preliminary approval to another proposed site east of here along the Lincoln Highway. The tract was not further identified but had been rated by the committee as less suitable than the E. Broadway site.

Edward B. Bulleit, a member of the Gettysburg board, suggested that another section of the county farm, north of Howard Ave. and west of the Biglerville Rd. had possibiliites as a school site but during the discussion that followed it was pointed out that it would be "too costly" to run sewer and water lines to that location and town pupils could not walk to that site.

The E. Broadway site has water,

CHEST DRIVE PLANS MADE; CLUBS TO HELP

Preliminary plans for the annual Community Chest drive in October were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of committee chairmen held by Drive Chairman LeRoy E. Smith at his office on N. Stratton St.

Service clubs of the community will be asked to participate in the drive with the "kickoff" dinner taking the form of a joint service clubs meal October 8.

The service club members will be asked to serve as solicitors for a campaign through the town immediately after the dinner. Each will be given a small number of cards and will call immediately on the homes of those listed. It is hoped by this method to cover much of the community in a single evening, Smith said.

Name Division Heads

Much of the meeting was devoted to discussion of methods of "better educating" both solicitors and the public in "the tremendous work carried on through the donations to Community Chest. I fully feel that if the people of the town knew fully the use to which their money is being put, the Community Chest would be oversubscribed annually," Mr. Smith said.

The Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange, Business and Professional Women's Club and other service clubs have "enthusiastically agreed" to take part, Gordon Webster, vice chairman of the drive committee, said. Webster said the clubs "agree that this is an opportunity for them, as community service clubs, to render a real community service."

To Prepare Film

Chairman Smith announced as among divisional heads: Vice chairman, Gordon J. Webster; public relations, Carl A. Baum; newspaper publicity, Paul L. Roy; radio publicity, Parker H. Cunningham; films and tape recordings, Walter B. Lane and G. Henry Roth; advance gifts, Attorney Eugene Hartman; classified division, Attorney John A. MacPhail; business division, William Lentz; rural division, E. Donald Scott and John Caldwell; industrial division, Frank Bowersox. Additional chairmen will be named within the next few days, Smith said.

A film showing the activities of the various services supported by Community Chest is being made and will be shown in industries, schools, to service clubs, and "every place we can show it," Smith said. "Through the film we hope to bring home to the people of the community the tremendous work that is done by the Community Chest-supported units, the Library, Recreation Association, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, YWCA and Civic Nursing Association.

6,666 TOURISTS HERE

The first snap of cool autumn weather brought a grand total of 6,666 tourists to Gettysburg last Saturday and Sunday. Three thousand two hundred thirty-six persons comprised the Saturday crowd. One hundred of the Saturday visitors traveled in three buses. The Sunday amount was a heavier 3,430. Ninety-eight of these tourists traveled in three buses.

COLLEGE AND HS GRID COACHES LIONS' GUESTS

Season problems and prospects were reviewed for Gettysburg Lions by the members of the football coaching staffs of Gettysburg High School and Gettysburg College at the club's weekly dinner meeting Monday evening at the Shetter House.

Head Coach Howard Shoemaker said the high school schedule is "rough, there's not a breather on the whole schedule and we need your moral support."

John Yovicsin, head football coach at the college, told the clubmen that his squad lacks experience and is short on reserve strength but "with the schedule and the boys we have, I think we can give you some interesting football and maybe enough winning football to please you."

Coaches Introduced

Henry T. Bream, athletic director at the college and a member of the host club, was master of ceremonies for the program. He introduced George Forney, high school athletic director, who spoke briefly and then presented the members of the coaching staff at the high school: Ray Ellis, Don Bickel, Ned Brownley and Howard Shoemaker.

Forney said there are only six seniors and nine juniors in his 40-man squad. There are only five lettermen in the squad, he added.

Romeo Capozzi, trainer; James Lentz, varsity line coach; Jack Ridinger, freshman coach, and Coach Yovicsin were introduced by Mr. Bream. The head coach said virus attacks have prevented scrimmages so far in preparation for the opening of the grid season at Lehigh September 22. He described the daily training schedule for his 36-man squad that starts at 7 a.m. and includes four hours on the field each day in addition to conferences with the coaches. George Washington University will scrimmage here September 15, he said.

To Help On Chest Drive

President Eugene R. Hartman presided at the meeting with 94 Lions and guests in attendance. He appointed a special ways and means committee headed by Mahlon P.

Fly U. S. Flag On Wednesday

Gettysburg residents today were asked to fly the American flag Wednesday as a patriotic gesture in connection with the dedication here of the Albert Woolson statue as a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic.

Burgess William G. Weaver said: "Wednesday many delegates to the national encampments of the Sons of Union Veterans, Auxiliary of the SUV and Ladies of the Grand Army will be here to dedicate a memorial to the Grand Army of the Republic. The GAR, which came to an end with the death of its last member, Albert Woolson, in August, spent most of its 90 years of existence in promoting patriotism. The allied orders of the GAR continue that tradition.

"As hosts to the delegates and recipient of the Woolson monument Gettysburg residents are urged to display the American flag Wednesday as a mark of respect to the passing of a great patriotic organization, the Grand Army."

YoungMother Has Polio; 1st In Two Years

Adams County's first case of polio in two years was diagnosed Monday.

The victim is a 25-year-old mother of two young sons, Mrs. June Livingston, wife of Clark Livingston, East Berlin R. D. They live in Reading Township.

The mother was taken last Thursday to the Harrisburg City Hospital when polio was suspected and Dr. C. G. Crist, Adams County medical director, was notified Monday that positive diagnosis has been made.

Dr. Crist said Mrs. Livingston has a non-paralytic type of polio and her condition is "good."

Clinic This Evening

Her two children have had shots of anti-polio Salk vaccine but Mrs. Livingston had not, Dr. Crist said.

Dr. Leon D. Roos, East Berlin, Mrs. Livingston's physician, said today he has learned from Harrisburg that Mrs. Livingston is improving.

Dr. Crist urged youngsters who have had their first shots of Salk vaccine and are ready for their second shots to report at the weekly clinic at the Warner Hospital this afternoon at 5 o'clock. "There are many children in the county who had their intitial shot of vaccine but have not yet reported to get their second shot. They ought to report this evening. The clinic will operate from 5 to 6:30 o'clock."

800 GOP From 48 States To Attend Rally On Wednesday

The program at the GOP rally at the Eisenhower farm Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock will be broadcast by WGET. It will be sponsored by the Adams County Republican Committee.

Everything is in readiness for the first big Republican gathering, Wednesday afternoon, since the national convention in San Francisco last month and the third time that President Eisenhower plays hosts to his colleagues at his Gettysburg farm.

At 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon approximately 800 Republicans, the chairmen and the national committeemen and women from the 48 states, gubernatorial, senatorial and congressional candidates will come to Gettysburg for a GOP powwow and a Pennsylvania picnic supper on the Eisenhower farm.

The guests will meet in Washington and come to Gettysburg in buses. At the farm everything is in readiness for their arrival.

Duff To Preside

A large auditorium tent, a spacious press tent, kitchen and Red Cross tents have been erected. In the auditorium tent President and Mrs. Eisenhower will receive their guests. Senator James H. Duff, candidate for re-election to the senate from Pennsylvania, will be the master of ceremonies.

The large press tent was erected because of the anticipated large crowd of reporters and photographers who are expected to be here for the occasion which had attracted nationwide attention.

President Eisenhower will speak and it is expected that he will make some announcements of "real interest" to his colleagues.

The documentary film "The Battle of Gettysburg" will be shown at the Majestic Theater from Sept. 13-18. Taken in Gettysburg, the film was written and produced by Dore Schary and directed by Herman Hoffman.

Already shown in New York "The Battle of Gettysburg" has been hailed as a short subject masterpiece and seems almost certain to win an Academy award. The New York Times film critic called the movie, an "eloquent review of the flow of a great battle. Like a visit to Gettysburg with an expert guide. Reconstructs the battle until the military majesty of the mighty conflict flames in the mind."

"The Battle of Gettysburg" is the first documentary to be made in both cinemascope and color and presents a totally new technique. No living actors or artificial

Grateful To Park Service For Photographs

The Gettysburg Times is indebted to the National Park Service for the collection of old photographs from which most of the prints in the anniversary edition were made.

Members of The Times staff examined hundreds of negatives in the park collection selecting those which were printable and most interesting to Gettysburg residents.

A great number of the prints were on glass negatives which made reproduction difficult. Where possible The Times has identified both the photographer and the time at which the picture was taken.

Some of the prints are taken from photographs of rare old etchings which date far back in the history of Gettysburg.

Dr. Frederick Tilberg, park service historian, made a number of the prints.

MOUNT TO OPEN 149TH SESSION ON THURSDAY

Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, second oldest Catholic College in the United States will begin its 149th academic year Thursday morning with a capacity enrollment of approximately 600 students. The formal opening will get under way with a solemn mass of the Holy Ghost in the College Chapel celebrated by Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Sheridan, president of the college. Classes will begin after the services.

Freshman orientation began at the Mount for 215 incoming students Monday morning.

Enrollment figures top last year's figure by only ten students since the college is operating at capacity. Refusals were the largest in history. Most of the gains were in the freshman class. In addition to the freshmen aproximate class figures show 190 sophomores, 103 juniors, and 97 seniors.

Heaviest freshman enrollment is in the social science course with 57 incoming students electing that course. Science, pre-medicine and pre-dentistry had 56 freshmen; business administration, 46; liberal arts, 30, and education 21.

Come From 14 States

The new Mount St. Mary's freshman roster represents 14 states, the District of Columbia, and Germany. Geographic distribution is as follows: Pennsylvania, 60; New Jersey, 45; New York, 41; Maryland, 22; Delaware, 11; District of Columbia, 7; Virginia 7; Massachusetts, 4; Connecticut, 4; Florida, 3; Ohio, Rhode Island, Michigan, West Virginia, Maine and Germany, 1 each.

The freshman figures are slightly under last year's record enrollment of 247 students.

Classes in the Mount St. Mary's Seminary will begin on September 17 with approximately 115 students enrolled about the same as last year. The seminarians returned to the campus on September 7 and began their annual retreat on September 8. Ordinations to minor orders and the deaconate will take place on September 14 and 15.

Seminary enrollment represents approximately 27 different dioceses in 17 different states.

LOCAL GUARD MEASURES UP ON INSPECTION

Gettysburg's National Guard Unit was found "in excellent shape" by an inspection team from the Second Battalion headquarters, York, Monday evening.

The officers comprising the team included the battalion commander, Lt. Col. Marlin B. Bair; the battalion adjutant, Capt. J. Keister; the army advisor, Capt. Leon Shindelman; the battalion training officer, Capt. Wilam Ruth and the battalion supply officer, 1st Lt. Austin Deller.

The committee arrived Monday afternoon to make a thorough inspection of the administration and supply.

Monday evening the team conducted an "in-line" inspection of the members of the local Howitzer Company. Following the formation, the group was divided into two sections. Men training with the carbine were asked a number of questions concerning their weapon. The men training with the M-1 rifle were inspected on the manual of arms.

Following that test, the officers conducted inspections of classes and working groups, watching the training being given and questioning the men at their various jobs concerning their knowledge of the work being carried out and the training being conducted.

At Monday's session of the Guard, Lt. Donald Doersom, company commander, outlined plans of the unit to participate in the Sesquicentennial parade here Saturday afternoon.

Photographers Hold Meeting On Monday

A print shown by Miss Violet Seabold of Harrisburg won first place in the monthly print show Monday evening at the September meeting of the Gettysburg Photographic Society. The meeting was held at the Adams Electric Cooperative building off N. Stratton St. President Edward Stine presided.

Philip Tyson and Paul Pensinger tied for second place with their entries and Maurice Stoops placed third.

The group voted to continue meeting at the Adams Electric Cooperative building and discussed a change in the regular meeting date. Miss Seabold was placed in charge of the programs for the year. The committee in charge of the photographic exhibit at the South Mountain Fair reported on the success of that undertaking.

Eleven members attended and 11 prints were displayed.

Fairfield Woman Injured In Crash

Mrs Elsie S. McGlaughlin, 65, Fairfield, suffered lacerations of the face and contusions of the left shoulder and body when two cars collided two miles west of Fairfield on the Zora Road Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock.

Mrs. McGlaughlin was treated at the Warner Hospital. She was a passenger in a west bound car operated by Harry W. McGlaughlin, 64, Main St., Fairfield.

State police said John Schlarb, 43, Pottsville, was headed east when a car ahead of him had a blowout, slowed and started to pull off the road. Schlarb, seeking to avoid striking the auto ahead, pulled into the other lane and collided with the west-bound McGlaughlin vehicle. Damage was estimated at $300 to the Schlarb car and $100 to the McGlaughlin sedan.

$5,299 GOAL SET IN COUNTY DRIVE BY GIRL SCOUTS

Plans for the annual financial campaign of the Adams County Girl Scout Council were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of neighborhood chairmen held in the Girl Scout office in the First National Bank building here.

Goal for the campaign, to be held October 8 to 14, will be $5,299.30. Of that amount $2,000 will be raised in Gettysburg through Community Chest. The remainder will be raised in the other parts of the county.

Oliver Peifer, Orrtanna R. D., finance chairman for the Girl Scouts, announced community goals for the drive. The goals are: Arendtsville, $261.50; Bendersville, $217.14; Biglerville, $201.63; Cashtown, $124.09; Fairfield, $253.33; Hampton, $144.76; East Berlin, $274.01; Littlestown, $920.26; New Oxford, $635.91; York Springs, $266.67.

The goals, he explained, are based on the number of Girl Scouts in each area. Approximately 1,000 girls are members of the scouts throughout the county.

Decision to hold the county-wide drive at the same time as the Gettysburg Community Chest drive was made some time ago, Peifer explained. In that way the entire drive can be completed at one time and there will be less confusion, he added. In prior years the county and Community Chest campaigns were held at different times.

Pledge cards were explained by Peifer, and the solicitors making the

BOARD TO MEET

The board of directors of the Adams County Free Library will meet Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the main library on E. High St., according to notices issued by the secretary, Mrs. Mary S. Wilson.

Joint School Board Authorizes Conference With Commissioners On Proposed Grade School Site

The Gettysburg Joint School Board at a regular meeting Monday evening voted to authorize its finance and planning committee to negotiate with the Adams County commissioners for a price on a 10-acre tract of county farm land along E. Broadway as a prospective site for a new grade school building.

The board stipulated that the committee had no authority to bind the board to an offer, the land and asked for a report next month on the result of the negotiations.

The proposed site, east of the Harrisburg Rd. and north of the second block of E. Broadway, was described by the finance and planning committee chairman, Ray J. Kitzmiller, who is president of the Gettysburg school board, as the "best available site."

Have OK At Harrisburg

Kitzmiller said that in previous talks with the commissioners, a figure has been given the school committee on the site. He did not say what the figure is.

One director balked at authorizing the negotiations without instructing the committee on what price it may offer and he voted against the motion. Dr. R. D. Wickerham, board president, pointed out that only a few of the directors have looked over the site so that the board would "hardly be in position to fix a price now."

The site already has oral approval from officials of the state Department of Public Instruction. State approval also was secured on a second site on the county farm, near the county jail, but the commissioners have decided against considering sale of that site, Kitzmiller said.

Cost Of Development Cited

Mr. Kitzmiller also said that the state officials had given preliminary approval to another proposed site east of here along the Lincoln Highway. The tract was not further identified but had been rated by the committee as less suitable than the E. Broadway site.

Edward B. Bulleit, a member of the Gettysburg board, suggested that another section of the county farm, north of Howard Ave. and west of the Biglerville Rd. had possibilities as a school site but during the discussion that followed it was pointed out that it would be "too costly" to run sewer and water lines to that location and town pupils could not walk to that site.

The E. Broadway site has water,

CHEST DRIVE PLANS MADE; CLUBS TO HELP

Preliminary plans for the annual Community Chest drive in October were outlined Monday evening at a meeting of committee chairmen held by Drive Chairman LeRoy E. Smith at his office on N. Stratton St.

Service clubs of the community will be asked to participate in the drive with the "kickoff" dinner taking the form of a joint service clubs meal October 8.

The service club members will be asked to serve as solicitors for a campaign through the town immediately after the dinner. Each will be given a small number of cards and will call immediately on the homes of those listed. It is hoped by this method to cover much of the community in a single evening, Smith said.

Name Division Heads

Much of the meeting was devoted to discussion of methods of "better educating" both solicitors and the public in "the tremendous work carried on through the donations to Community Chest. I fully feel that if the people of the town knew fully the use to which their money is being put, the Community Chest would be oversubscribed annually," Mr. Smith said.

The Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange, Business and Professional Women's Club and other service clubs have "enthusiastically agreed" to take part, Gordon Webster, vice chairman of the drive committee, said. Webster said the clubs "agree that this is an opportunity for them, as community service clubs, to render a real community service."

To Prepare Film

Chairman Smith announced as among divisional heads: Vice chairman, Gordon J. Webster; public relations, Carl A. Baum; newspaper publicity, Paul L. Roy; radio publicity, Parker H. Cunningham; films and tape recordings, Walter B. Lane and G. Henry Roth; advance gifts, Attorney Eugene Hartman; classified division, Attorney John A. MacPhail; business division, William Lentz; rural division, E. Donald Scott and John Caldwell; industrial division, Frank Bowersox. Additional chairmen will be named within the next few days, Smith said.

A film showing the activities of the various services supported by Community Chest is being made and will be shown in industries, schools, to service clubs, and "every place we can show it," Smith said. "Through the film we hope to bring home to the people of the community the tremendous work that is done by the Community Chest-supported units, the Library, Recreation Association, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, YWCA and Civic Nursing Association.

6,666 TOURISTS HERE

The first snap of cool autumn weather brought a grand total of 6,666 tourists to Gettysburg last Saturday and Sunday. Three thousand two hundred thirty-six persons comprised the Saturday crowd. One hundred of the Saturday visitors traveled in three buses. The Sunday amount was a heavier 3,430. Ninety-eight of these tourists traveled in three buses.

COLLEGE AND HS GRID COACHES LIONS' GUESTS

Season problems and prospects were reviewed for Gettysburg Lions by the members of the football coaching staffs of Gettysburg High School and Gettysburg College at the club's weekly dinner meeting Monday evening at the Shetter House.

Head Coach Howard Shoemaker said the high school schedule is "rough, there's not a breather on the whole schedule and we need your moral support."

John Yovicsin, head football coach at the college, told the clubmen that his squad lacks experience and is short on reserve strength but "with the schedule and the boys we have, I think we can give you some interesting football and maybe enough winning football to please you."

Coaches Introduced

Henry T. Bream, athletic director at the college and a member of the host club, was master of ceremonies for the program. He introduced George Forney, high school athletic director, who spoke briefly and then presented the members of the coaching staff at the high school: Ray Ellis, Don Bickel, Ned Brownley and Howard Shoemaker.

Forney said there are only six seniors and nine juniors in his 40-man squad. There are only five lettermen in the squad, he added.

Romeo Capozzi, trainer; James Lentz, varsity line coach; Jack Ridinger, freshman coach, and Coach Yovicsin were introduced by Mr. Bream. The head coach said virus attacks have prevented scrimmages so far in preparation for the opening of the grid season at Lehigh September 22. He described the daily training schedule for his 36-man squad that starts at 7 a.m. and includes four hours on the field each day in addition to conferences with the coaches. George Washington University will scrimmage here September 15, he said.

To Help On Chest Drive

President Eugene R. Hartman presided at the meeting with 94 Lions and guests in attendance. He appointed a special ways and means committee headed by Mahlon P.

Democrats Hail Victory In Maine; Re-elect Gov. Muskie

PORTLAND, Maine (AP)—Democrats hailed today a rousing Maine election victory which Adlai Stevenson said indicates that "the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

Gov. Edmund S. Muskie won a second term with the biggest vote ever given a Maine governor of either party.

And, for the first time since the New Deal year of 1934, a Democrat was elected to Congress. He is Frank M. Coffin, 37-year-old Lewiston lawyer and chairman of his party's state committee.

Very Close Race

Presidential nominee Stevenson's campaign manager, James A. Finnegan, called the Democratic victory "all the more remarkable in view of the way the Republicans made this a test of President Eisenhower's popularity and influence with the voters."

For the moment, there was no comment from GOP leaders — either state or national.

The outcome of another congressional race was so close it may wind up before the House Elections Committee.

Rep. Hale Wins

Rep. Robert Hale (R) seemed to have won an eighth term in the 1st Dist. by 72 votes over Democrat James C. Oliver, who as a Republican preceded Hale in Congress from 1937-43.

Rep. Clifford G. McIntire had no trouble gaining a third full term in the 3rd Dist. but his percentage was down.

The 42-year-old Muskie, son of a Polish immigrant tailor, became the first Democrat re-elected in a presidential year—at least since the Civil War. And in those days Maine governors had one instead of two-year terms.

Muskie Gets 59 Pct.

In 621 of 630 precincts, an unofficial tabulation rolled up 179,697 votes for Muskie and 123,784 for Willis A. (Bill) Trafton Jr., 37, the Republican speaker of the Maine House.

The total of 303,481 was almost 6,000 below the record, but Muskie's vote was well ahead of the best previously given any governor — 172,113 for Republican Lewis O. Barrows in 1936.

Muskie got 59 per cent of the vote in yesterday's balloting, the first in the country this year. Two years ago he won his first term with 54½ per cent of almost 249,000, beating Burton M. Cross, then

ROTARY HEARS BOWERSOX TALK ON GARMENT CO.

A total of 25,000 dozen garments were made last year by employees of the Gettysburg Garment Co. Frank Bowersox, its manager, told the local Rotary club Monday evening at the YWCA

Bowersox, a member of the club, in giving his classification talk, said his plant now employes 75 women at its N. Stratton St. plant and 25 at its Fairfield plant "and we hope to increase the number at Fairfield to 50."

The local plant is a garment contracting plant and not what is termed a manufacturing plant, he said. "Here the garments are put together, but the garments are not owned by us at any time. We contract simply to make them. Others make the patterns, cut them and send them to us. We put the garments togeher, box them and send them off. We may be working for several manufacturers at the same time."

Once Purely Seasonal

Garment making at one time was "purely seasonal. In 1934 when $8 per week was a big wage in the garment industry, the plants worked only about six months a year. Since World War II the garment making business has lost its seasonal aspects and now is a year around industry."

Making of garments at one time, especially in the big cities, was a "dangerous occupation," Bowersox said. "There was a time especially in New York, when gangsters sought to muscle in on the garment industry, and I remember times as a boy when I met men in the garment industry from the city, and as they took their coats off, you would see they wore pistols in holsters. Many had bodyguards. But the gangsters were pushed out of the industry and now it has become strictly a business once more. The period only lasted for a short time, but there was that period when the big New York mobs were trying their best to move into the industry."

John Hostetter presided at the meeting with 50 present. Dr. Harrison Harbach reported on plans for Rotary participation in the Community Chest drive. Next Monday Rotary will attend a joint Sesqui dinner at the Moose.

LEGION HEARS DAVID WEIMER

Tentative plans for the annual Veterans Day observance, November 11, were outlined Monday evening by Lawrence M. Sheads, Americanism chairman, at the meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion at the post home on Baltimore St.

Commander Richard Fox announced that 1957 membership cards are now available and that the drive for 1957 members has begun with approximately 40 already signed for next year.

New officers of the post will be installed October 1 by District Commander George Klee of St. Thomas, Commander Fox added. David Weimer, Gettysburg, who was sent by the post to the Keystone State Boys Camp sponsored by the American Legion state department this summer, reported on his experiences at that camp. The camp is held annually to provide training in citizenship for outstanding young men. At the Camp the boys set up a model community, hold elections and go through the functions of operating state and local governments.

Eight new members were received into the post. They were Merle J. Fissell, Richard G. Hess, Ray M. Derdorff, Lawrence Luckenbaugh, Anderson O'Day, Edward McIntire, Terry Raymond Goodermuth and Alba M. Scott.

Fasick requests all CD wardens, fire police and firemen who can be available to meet at the fire hall at 10:45 a.m. on Wednesday.

Tells Kiwanians Of Local School System

Dr. Lloyd C. Keefauver outlined the work of the Gettysburg School System Monday evening at a meeting of the local Kiwanis Club at Bankert's Restaurant. The local superintendent of schools explained "one of the functions of the schools is to teach the young how to make a living and how to live."

Student enrollment in the Gettysburg jointure schools has exceeded estimated pupil population figures, Dr. Keefauver added, "There is great need for additional space for students." Nationally the birth rate doubled from 1941 to 1955, he said. "In 1941 two million infants were born in the U. S. In 1955 the number was four million. Locally the birth rate has risen proportionately, thus increasing the need for added facilities for the youngsters."

The increase in births, while it had produced problems for educators and communities to supply the schools and teachers needed, "should stimulate business in the years to come by increasing the demand for commodities."

ADLAI DEFINES '56 CAMPAIGN ISSUES IN TALK

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson declared Saturday that the 1956 political issues are "not peace and prosperity" but "how we go about getting them."

The Democratic presidential nominee tried to undercut the Republicans on their peace and prosperity theme in remarks prepared for delivery at a "homecoming" reception in this city in which he served a term as governor.

Stevenson said there is much more to be done about both peace and prosperity and added:

"It is not enough for America just to hold on to what we have."

It's too bad, he said, that "when we talk about improving things as they are the charge is made that we are selling America short."

Evidently in deference to the nature of the civic welcome, from a city with a Republican mayor, Stevenson didn't go after the GOP very hard in his text.

But neither did he pass up the chance to remind his audience that Republican state auditor Orville E. Hodge is serving 12 to 15 years in prison for pocketing 1½ million dollars in state money. He did it by saying that "Like all of you, regardless of partisanship, citizens who love Illinois, I have felt a deep hurt at the recent revelations of almost unbelievable abuse of the obligations of stewardship of this state's affairs."

And Stevenson lauded Richard Austin, the new Democratic candidate for governor, as a worthy opponent for any satisfied Republicans in his audience and as a great governor for "all the rest of you."

"Agree On Peace"

Austin is one of several men Stevenson has said he commended to the Democratic State Central Committee when the original party candidate for governor, Cook County treasurer Herbert C. Paschen, was eased out. Paschen withdrew after it developed that an employe welfare fund was operating in his office—with bankers putting up the money.

"The issues are not peace and prosperity. These are the things we agree on. The issues are how w go about getting them, how we make this a prosperity not just for some of us but for all of us, how we go about using this prosperity for the things we need most — like schools — and how we achieve a lasting peace in all the world—for nothing less than that is really peace at all," said Stevenson.

Triplets Require Some New Changes

LOS ANGELES (AP)—"Mommy's got trilets! ! Mommy's got tiplets!"

That's what 2½-year-old Bruno Ve Sota sang through the neighborhood yesterday. He said they'd be named Davy Crockett, the Lone Ranger and Tonto.

But at the hospital where the triplets were born to Mrs. Genevieve Ve Sota, 30, Mommy said the names would be Marie Grace, Grace Marie and Mary Elinore. The arrivals weighed 6 pounds 4 ounces, 5 pounds 1 ounce and 5 pounds 7 ounces.

The family now will have to move out of its one-bedroom apartment, the mother added.

BOTH PARTIES TO OVERSTATE THIN ISSUES

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats and Republicans will adorn ordinary ideas in grand clothes and otherwise overstate their case in this campaign where the issues run pretty thin. They'll make the most of what they have to work with.

Adlai Stevenson this week got headlines with his call for an end to the draft. This may have seemed startling at quick glance. But, on examination, all he really said was: The draft should be ended when it's safe to do so.

It took him four paragraphs to get to the point. But a Republican, Arthur Larson, has just taken 210 pages to make this point: That the Republicans can run the government better than the Democrats.

Some Overstatements

This was in his book "A Republican Looks at His Party." Because of the book Larson, undersecretary of labor and a law school dean on leave, has been mentioned as the kind of Republican likely to attract intellectuals to the party.

But even a nonintellectual is apt to think Larson overstated his case in this one-sided political document which credits Republicans with a new kind of wisdom and brushes lightly over the achievements of the Democrats.

An intellectual would certainly know that in the vastly complicated business of government the two parties have had their hands in too many pies over too many years for either to claim the lion's share of credit.

Time Will Tell

Larson says: "It is the genius of the Eisenhower administration's achievements that it has merged and brought into balance all the positive forces in our country. It is not against any of them . . . It has found a way to encourage them to work together for a common benefit."

This he calls the "New Republicanism" and a new "philosophy" of government.

Eisenhower very guardedly says the book represents his philosophy generally. But not all Republicans think like Eisenhower any more than all Democrats think like Stevenson.

Time may show, therefore, when Eisenhower is out of the picture and other men run the party, that the "New Republicanism" was strictly Eisenhower's philosophy, or perhaps a reflection of his personality, and not a lasting party philosophy at all.

But that Larson overstates his case is plain enough.

sewer and gas lines available, the board was told. Delevopment cost of a site is important, Dr. Lloyd C. Keefauver said. The cost of the land is reimbursable by the state but site development would be added to the cost of the building, he explained.

Discuss Road Repair

Mr. Kitzmiller told the directors the county commissioners have been "most cooperative" in discussing the possible school site. He said his committee had not been polled on the question of the price set by the commissioners for the E. Broadway land.

After a long discussion the directors placed in the hands of Business Manager Kenneth G. Reinhart Jr. and the Property Committee the complicated problem of the bad roadway in front of the new high school auditorium. The discussion opened with a report on correspondence between the from Attorney John A. MacPhael school district; the architect, Alfred Hamme; the general contractor, R. S. Noonan, and the sub-contractor for the road, Stewart and March, Inc.

Reinhart and the committee were directed to have independent tests of the area made in an effort to determine the cause of the breakup of the roadway. At the same time efforts will be made to correct he trouble and have the area surfaced before the winter closes in.

Need Math Teacher

Tests reported to have been made by Stewart and March without any representative of the archietct or school district present showed underground water causing all of the difficulty and on the basis of that report the architect has told the board the road builder met specifications and cannot be blamed for present conditions.

The board accepted the August 29 resignation of Fred G. Troxell from the faculty and directed that a letter of appreciation for his years of service be sent him. Dr. Keefauver said the Teacher committee is looking for a mathematics teacher. A substitute is serving temporarily.

Dr. Keefauver said bus transportation costs last year in the joint school district ranged from $39 to $66 with the district-owned buses providing the cheapest rate. He did not list the costs by district.

Buses And Hot Water

Mrs. J. B. Collins said she had received a complaint about lack of order on some school buses. She said "an organization" has appointed a member to get the bus drivers and parents together for a meeting. Directors suggested that the proper procedure would be to notify the directors of the district involved so that the matter could be taken care of. Mrs. Collins said she did not know what buses were involved in the complaint.

Director Robert Deardorff asked that a committee investigate the possibility of providing hot water at Meade and Lincoln schools for washrooms. The Property committee was directed to make a recommendation.

The board opened three bids on a bassoon for the senior high school band and awarded the order to the Stenger Music House at Hanover at $395, the low offer for the type of instrument specified.

Riegle Attends

The directors passed a resolution authorizing the superintendent to fill out and file a PIBB-40-A form as a preliminary to the erection of a new grade school building here. The directors gave consent for use of Lincoln school for private music lessons for school band members.

Bills totaling $19,700 were approved for payment.

The monthly report of the treasurer, the Gettysburg National Bank, showed a first of the month balance of $43,071 after last month's expenses of $12,220. Tuition receipts for the month amounted to $16,000. The balance a month ago was $39,-291.

H. Edgar Riegle, superintendent-elect, attended the meeting as a spectator.

sewer and gas lines available, the board was told. Delevopment cost of a site is important, Dr. Lloyd C. Keefauver said. The cost of the land is reimbursable by the state but site development would be added to the cost of the building, he explained.

Discuss Road Repair

Mr. Kitzmiller told the directors the county commissioners have been "most cooperative" in discussing the possible school site. He said his committee had not been polled on the question of the price set by the commissioners for the E. Broadway land.

After a long discussion the directors placed in the hands of Business Manager Kenneth G. Reinhart Jr. and the Property Committee the complicated problem of the bad roadway in front of the new high school auditorium. The discussion opened with a report on correspondence between the from Attorney John A. MacPhael school district; the architect, Alfred Hamme; the general contractor, R. S. Noonan, and the sub-contractor for the road, Stewart and March, Inc.

Reinhart and the committee were directed to have independent tests of the area made in an effort to determine the cause of the breakup of the roadway. At the same time efforts will be made to correct he trouble and have the area surfaced before the winter closes in.

Need Math Teacher

Tests reported to have been made by Stewart and March without any representative of the architect or school district present showed underground water causing all of the difficulty and on the basis of that report the architect has told the board the road builder met specifications and cannot be blamed for present conditions.

The board accepted the August 29 resignation of Fred G. Troxell from the faculty and directed that a letter of appreciation for his years of service be sent him. Dr. Keefauver said the Teacher committee is looking for a mathematics teacher. A substitute is serving temporarily.

Dr. Keefauver said bus transportation costs last year in the joint school district ranged from $39 to $66 with the district-owned buses providing the cheapest rate. He did not list the costs by district.

Buses And Hot Water

Mrs. J. B. Collins said she had received a complaint about lack of order on some school buses. She said "an organization" has appointed a member to get the bus drivers and parents together for a meeting. Directors suggested that the proper procedure would be to notify the directors of the district involved so that the matter could be taken care of. Mrs. Collins said she did not know what buses were involved in the complaint.

Director Robert Deardorff asked that a committee investigate the possibility of providing hot water at Meade and Lincoln schools for washrooms. The Property committee was directed to make a recommendation.

The board opened three bids on a bassoon for the senior high school band and awarded the order to the Stenger Music House at Hanover at $395, the low offer for the type of instrument specified.

Riegle Attends

The directors passed a resolution authorizing the superintendent to fill out and file a PIBB-40-A form as a preliminary to the erection of a new grade school building here. The directors gave consent for use of Lincoln school for private music lessons for school band members.

Bills totaling $19,700 were approved for payment.

The monthly report of the treasurer, the Gettysburg National Bank, showed a first of the month balance of $43,071 after last month's expenses of $12,220. Tuition receipts for the month amounted to $16,000. The balance a month ago was $39,291.

H. Edgar Riegle, superintendent-elect, attended the meeting as a spectator.

Today's Talk

LOCALITY

It is interesting and profitable to meet people from far-away places and guess as to their locality. It may be a peculiar language, or a manner of expression, or an accent added to one's own language. At any rate, it locates that person. Said Thoreau about such people: "Whatever he says or does, he merely reports himself. If he is in love, he loves; if he is in heaven, he enjoys: if he is in hell, he suffers. It is his condition that determines his locality."

We grow into maturity, not thinking of the influence of our environment or of the things in that environment that locate us to others. Many a criminal has been caught because of his familiarity with places that were like those of his birth or associates.

You don't have to explain a Yankee! He explains himself.

People who travel a great deal like to look up localities on their maps so as to fix in their minds just what they want to learn and remember, from that location. We like to live in pleasant places, and after leaving them, to return. In my earlier travels it was instructive to read from my map that certain fish came from certain localities. The same is true of other things that a locality presents, like many of the huge forests in Canada, lumber, and especially logs for the manufacture of newsprint.

In traveling through the western part of the United States I shall always remember the sight of the first herd of buffalos, and the various settlements where different tribes of Indians lived. The characteristics of people owe much to the locality where they were born and reared. Undoubtedly Abraham Lincoln, and many another great figure, can well owe their gentleness and understanding to the experience of poverty in their youth — and yet that locality remains sacred to such people.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "That Job Of Yours."

THE NEW BOY

When I was only one day old
And scarce on earth had made a sound,
My father, proudly, I am told,
Cigars in tin foil passed around.
I was to him a great event
To share with all his fellow men.
I wonder if I've ever meant
As much to him as I did then?

Just one day old, and for a while
My coming was a joy to boast.
I was the cause of many a smile.
To him my birthday meant the most.
Forgotten was my brothers' fame.
Celebrities they once had been;
But when to join with them I came,
They settled down in life's routine.

I was the star of all the lot;
The world's most perfect babe was I—
A marvel for a little tot—
Dark brown of hair and blue of eye.
I had perfection, head to toe,
The best to wear my father's name.
But, that was in the years ago
Before my younger brothers came.

PRIMARIES ARE BEING HELD IN 8 STATES TODAY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight states hold primaries today, but they were largely overshadowed in advance by the surprising Democratic showing in Maine's election yesterday.

Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, more than doubling his 1954 margin of victory, won a second term—almost unprecedented for a Democrat in strongly Republican Maine's election yesterday.

And Democrats captured at least one of the state's three House seats — a feat they hadn't done since 1934 in the early New Deal days.

Hailed By Adlai

President Eisenhower had asked for a complete GOP sweep in Maine. His November opponent, Adlai Stevenson, promptly hailed Muskie's victory as showing that "the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

The results pretty well stole the thunder from today's primaries, although there remained considerable interest in what the ballots held in store for Republican Sen. Alexander Wily of Wisconsin, Republican Gov. J. Bracken Lee of Utah and Democratic former Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Brannan.

Wiley and Lee are seeking renomination. Brannan, author of the controversial farm plan which Congress rejected, aspires to the Senate from Colorado in his first try for elective office.

Georgia Tomorrow

Five other states picking party nominees for various offices are New Hampshire, Vermont, Minnesota, Washington and Arizona.

Georgia holds a primary tomorrow to pick a successor to retiring Sen. Walter George. Two former governors, Herman Talmade and Melvin Thompson, are contesting for the Democratic nomination which is equivalent to election. Georgia also has contests for 6 to 10 House seats.

The rundown on today's primaries:

WISCONSIN — Wiley, seeking a fourth Senate term, is regarded as a slight favorite to win the Republican nomination over Rep. Glenn R. Davis, who has the endorsement of the GOP state organization, and Howard H. Boyle Jr., an attorney. State Sen. Henry W. Maier is favored over Elliot N. Walstead for the Democratic nomination. Incumbent House members seeking re-election are without opposition.

COLORADO—Former Gov. Dan Thornton has no opposition for the GOP Senate nomination to succeed Sen. Eugene Millikin, a Republican retiring because of ill health. Contesting for the Democratic nomination are former Rep. John A. Carroll and Brannan, secretary of agriculture under Harry S. Truman. Lt. Gov. Stephen L. P. McNichols is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor; State Sen. Donald G. Brotzman is likewise without opposition in the GOP primary.

UTAH — Republican Gov. Lee, an outspoken critic of foreign aid programs and of many Eisenhower administration policies, is seeking the nomination for an unprecedented third term. GOP Sen. Arthur Watkins is supporting Lee's opponent, Chairman George D. Clyde of the Utah Water and Power Board. Republican Sen. Wallace E. Bennett is unopposed for renomination.

NEW HAMPSHIRE — Gov. Lane Dwinell, seeking the GOP nomination for a second term, is challenged by Atty. Wesley Powell and Elmer E. Bussey, a handyman. Republican Sen. Norris Cotton is opposed by Joseph E. Moore.

VERMONT—There are only two contests here—for the GOP Nominations for lieutenant governor and attorney general.

MINNESOTA — Gov. Orville L. Freeman is strongly favored to win renomination on the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket. Anchier Nelsen, former rural electrification administrator, is favored to win the GOP nomination to oppose him.

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Don Eberly and Lt. Gov. Emmett Anderson are front runners among six aspirants for the Republican nomination for governor. Democrats are likely to choose between State Sen. Albert D. Rosellini and Secretary of State Earl Coe. Without opposition for Senate nominations are Democrat Warren Magnuson, the incumbent, and GOP Gov. Arthur Langlie.

ARIZONA — Democratic Sen. Carl Hayden is expected to win renomination over Robert E. Miller, a pharmacist. Contesting for the GOP Senate nomination are Ross Jones, former attorney general of the state, and Albert McKinzie, an attorney. Democratic Gov. Ernest W McFarland has no opposition, but there is a three-way GOP contest for the right to oppose him in November.

Typhoon Winds Fan Disastrous Blaze

UOZU, Japan (AP) — More than 1,750 homes were destroyed today by a fire that virtually wiped out the center of this city of 47,000 persons 150 miles west of Tokyo. A typhoon wind of 30 m.p.h. fanned the flames.

Police said 1 person was killed, 22 were missing and 55 were injured. Firemen fought the blaze six hours before bringing it under control.

More than 8,000 persons were left homeless. Authorities estimated damages at $4,150,000.

GUARDSMEN ALERTED FOR STURGIS FUSS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National guardsmen, strengthened by reinforcements, were ready today to move — if needed —into Sturgis, Ky., scene of noisy racial disorders at the town's integrated high school.

A National Guard detachment of 650 men, backed by tanks and 40 state patrolmen, were on hand yesterday to see that seven Negroes were allowed to enter classes for which 310 white pupils were enrolled.

A crowd of between 600 and 1,000 persons jeered and catcalled the guardsmen, spaced three feet apart on the high school lawn.

Only 45 of the school's white pupils were at their desks when the final assembly bell rang. Members of the crowd cried out that the white pupils would "never come back" and turbulent anti-integrationists declared they would keep their children "out of Sturgis High School forever if necessary."

Negroes Flee Rocks

When the Negroes left the building, rocks were hurled. The Negroes sped home in automobiles.

Sturgis is the center of an area with a population of about 5,000, including 1,000 Negroes. The tension there was in strong contrast to the situation at Louisville, Ky., where the South's first large-scale school integration was carried out peacefully and with no untoward incident yesterday.

Aside from limited protests and a few pickets at the Louisville Board of Education, there was no disturbance. Officials said they expected none.

Louisville, a city of almost 400,000 has a school population of 47,000, one-third of them Negroes. Officials estimate that 2,810 Negroes will attend previously all-white schools this fall.

Negroes Turned Away

At Clay, Ky., a coal-mining community of 2,000 not so very far from Sturgis, a crowd of about 100 men turned away a Negro mother and their two children at the elementary school. A newsman was told by members of the group that no pictures could be taken but that "if they bring niggers here, you can take pictures of people dying."

A spokesman for the Negro woman, Mrs. James Gordon, said the Gordon children — James, 10, and Teresa, 8 — would not return to the school "until they have the same protection that Negroes have in Sturgis."

WORLD SERIES OPENS OCT. 3 IN NL PARK

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series is officially scheduled to open Oct. 3 in the National League park—but it might be a bit later if the NL can't decide which park.

Commissioner Ford Frick set the date for the 1956 classic after a 90-minute discussion with representatives of the pennant contenders in both leagues yesterday.

The first two games will be played in the National League park, with the series then shifting to the American League park for the next three if needed in the best-of-seven championship. If more games are necessary, they'll be played in the National League park.

Ticket Prices Same

Ticket prices, the same as last year and including federal but not local taxes, are $10 for a box seat, $7 reserved, $2 bleachers and $4 for standing room.

All games will start at 1 p.m. local time, except on Sunday in New York, when the start will be 2 p.m.

The only problem at the moment is the National League pennant winner. It could be Milwaukee, Brooklyn or Cincinnati. And a two-team or three-team playoff may be needed to decide.

Under NL rules, a two-team tie for first place means a best-of-three playoff. A three-way tie calls for a double-elimination playoff—which could drag on for five days.

SCIENTISTS FRETTING OVER NUCLEAR TESTS

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians keep testing nuclear weapons in Siberia. From time to time the United States lets go with a few on a mid-Pacific island. The British plan to do a bit of testing in Australia.

Some scientists are worried that the radioactive fall-out from these experiments is going to produce a world population just loaded with crazy, mixed-up genes.

Genes are nature's built-in gadgets for determining whether children are going to have brown eyes or blue, two heads or one, and whether they are going to be idiots or geniuses.

As it now stands, the situation is enough to make a pessimist smile—a pessimistic smile, of course.

Weather Warfare

The latest news from the world-is-going-to-pot front comes from Atomic Energy Commissioner John von Neumann.

Von Neumann said in a weekend world broadcast that within a few decades mankind will achieve global climate control and raise the awful prospect of weather warfare.

Can you imagine sending lightning bolts hurtling down on your enemies? Or maybe aiming a hurricane? r perhaps causing drought or floods?

Coupled with atomic and hydrogen bombs, this weather warfare business has fascinating possibilities for utter world destruction.

But there is a ray of hope — the silver lining in the mushroom cloud.

The same day that Von Neumann predicted weather warfare in a few decades, the Los Alamos, N.M., atomic energy laboratory disclosed it had been working for the past year on atomic-powered rockets.

Presumably, if and when these A-rockets are perfected, mankind will have the means to blast off for Mars, Venus, Jupiter, or any of the other assorted planets knocking about in space.

Who knows but what mankind will be able to find and colonize another planet somewhere in that mysterious void now known as the universe?

By the time mankind succeeds in making this planet totally uninhabitable, perhaps he will have perfected the means for leaving it.

And this, naturally, raises an interesting subject. Since accommodations in space ships probably will be fairly limited, who will get to make the journey to salvation?

Under the Democratic system everybody should have an equal opportunity. Under the Russian system there will be no argument since the bosses will make the selections.

If the Democratic system is chosen with its interminable arguments, talk about the rights of man and justice, then life will continue on planet "X" as it has on earth. Mankind, in brief, can go on being contrary.

But if the Russian system with its planned economy and thought control is selected, it wouldn't be worth the trip anyhow.

Wouldn't it be nice if we never had to make the choice?

COLLINS URGES ATOM RESEARCH SITES IN SOUTH

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Southern governors were urged today to set up a Southern center for atomic research.

The recommendation came from a special committee, headed by Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, and was based on a yearlong study.

Collins appealed to his colleagues at the 22nd annual Governors Conference to "do something creative" and "bring dreams into reality."

Collins Leads Discussion

"Grandiose plans impossible to carry out are useless of course," he said, "but ingenious, dramatic plans are not impractical merely because they have never been tried."

Collins led a discussion group on the subject of nuclear energy and how Dixie can best share in its peaceful development.

Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, in a paper on industrial uses of atomic power, urged the South to "move in now on the ground floor of the atmic industry."

He strongly endorsed the Collins groups four major recommendations:

1. To set up a nuclear test center in the South. He said a board of directors, one from each of the 16 states below the Mason-Dixon line, could run it with cooperation from the Atomic Energy Commission.

2. To launch an information program to enlighten Southern industry on actual experience with atomic power.

Inform Public

3. To tell the public about the peaceful atomic uses.

4. To back education programs aimed at training manpower for work in atomic plants.

Folsom said studies show there is in the South "a foreseeable need for one or more regional atomic energy industrial research centers for the 16 states."

Sites Mentioned

Folsom did not mention it, but Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is one of the institutions interested in getting such a center. Other possible sites mentioned atomic cnter at Oak Ridge, Tenn: the University of Florida, Georgia Tech, and North Carolina State College at Raleigh.

Eleven of the 16 Southern governors—the others sent word they couldn't make it—last night heard Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, call for more thorough education of American youth in what democracy is all about lest the Communists achieve world domination because of an ignorance of liberty.

Following the urge of people who want "a little place in the country," more non-farming people are living in rural areas in the U.S. today than there are actual farmers.

PUC Drops Water Company Petition

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission yesterday turned down a petition by the Hallstead Water Co. to dismiss Great Bend borough's complaint against a proposed $12,000 annual rate increase for 600 Susquehanna County consumers.

The commission has suspended the increase, originally filed to be effective Aug. 1, six months to make an investigation. Hearings will begin in Montrose Oct. 5.

GOP CANDIDATE FORESEES BIG STATE DEFICIT

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Rep. Robert F. Kent, Republican candidate for state treasurer, said today the Leader administration faces a "whopping big deficit" for the operation of the state government during the last two years.

And this deficit, Kent said, is there despite tax increases which he claimed amounted to about 500 million above previous years.

"Leader spending is far outrunning Leader taxes," Kent told a political rally here in his campaign for state office.

Swollen Payrolls

"Big as the increase in tax levies has been, and heavy though the burden is on the state's job-producing industries, it can't keep pace with the swollen payrolls and appropriations," Kent added.

He predicted that Gov. Leader will come again, hat in hand, to the next Legislature, and call for still further new revenues, to the tune of at least 200 million dollars.

On the same speaking program, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff (R—Pa.) said Adlai Stevenson, democratic presidential candidate, resorted to "fakery, hypocrisy and effrontery" in dealing with economic issues.

Duff, who is seeking reelection, claimed that under Roosevelt and Truman, there was full employment in the United States "only when our mills and factories were engaged in making implements of war."

Referring to a Stevenson statement in which Duff said the Democratic candidate claimed the cost of living went up 48 per cent during the last four years, Duff countered:

"He (Stevenson) had the fakery, hypocrisy and effrontery not to tell the people the cost of living went up 48 per cent during the previous Democratic administration."

Plans Mapped For Bullet-Bison Game

Representatives of Gettysburg College and Bucknell University were luncheon guests Monday of the Harrisburg Rotary Club at the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg when plans were discussed for the annual Chocolate Bowl football game to be played between the schools Saturday evening, September 29, in the Hershey Stadium.

Henry T. Bream, athletic director, and Jim Tarman, public relations director, represented the Bullets. Both spoke briefly.

SPECIAL JURY TO INVESTIGATE PIKE CHARGES

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Dauphin County sheriff and jury commissioners today began choosing a special grand jury which will meet Oct. 22 to begin an investigation of Pennsylvania Turnpike Operations under Republican control.

The jury was ordered summoned yesterday by Dauphin County Court after Dist. Atty. Huette Dowling acted on a State Justice Department petition and recommended the probe.

Acting President Judge William H. Neely said the court "feels that the matter has been brought to our attention, should be investigated fairly and impartially and the truth established."

Examine Cohen Charges

The jury will look into changes by Atty. Gen. Herbert Cohen that present and former Turnpike Commission members and employes joined in a plot to fleece the toll road out of 19½ million dollars.

Gov. Leader has said it was "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

The charges listed in Cohen's petition for the probe include conspiracy, bribery and corruption.

The court signed an order directing the sheriff and jury commissioners to select and notify 24 grand jurors to appear Monday, Oct. 22, in the main courtroom.

Date Uncertain

However, Dowling had this comment when asked if the jurors would get the probe underway immediately after they first meet:

"I would hope we will start to work right away but you can't be sure."

The district attorney, a Republican, said some of those mentioned in the petition are "accused of wrongdoing in a most serious way."

Public Has Right

He said the public has the right to know the truth or falsity of the accusations.

"Those guilty of any wrongdoing should be punished and the innocent persons should have an opportunity to vindicate themselves," he added.

Among those named in Cohen's petition were Thomas J. Evans, former commission chairman, and James F. Torrance, a present commission member. Both are Republicans.

Delay Boxing Probe Until After Nov. 6

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A special state senate committee to investigate boxing in Pennsylvania will not begin hearings until after the November election its chairman said yesterday.

State Sen. Watkins (R-Delaware) who heads the five-man body said several of his committee told him they would not have time to hold hearings because of the election.

The Senate didn't appropriate money for the probe when it was authorized but Watkins said he did not think this would stymie the investigation. He explained the committee must receive an authorization from Gov. Leader for a grant from the state's general fund.

ROTARY HEARS BOWERSOX TALK ON GARMENT CO.

A total of 25,000 dozen garments were made last year by employees of the Gettysburg Garment Co. Frank Bowersox, its manager, told the local Rotary club Monday evening at the YWCA

Bowersox, a member of the club, in giving his classification talk, said his plant now employes 75 women at its N. Stratton St. plant and 25 at its Fairfield plant "and we hope to increase the number at Fairfield to 50."

The local plant is a garment contracting plant and not what is termed a manufacturing plant, he said. "Here the garments are put together, but the garments are not owned by us at any time. We contract simply to make them. Others make the patterns, cut them and send them to us. We put the garments togeher, box them and send them off. We may be working for several manufacturers at the same time."

Once Purely Seasonal

Garment making at one time was "purely seasonal. In 1934 when $8 per week was a big wage in the garment industry, the plants worked only about six months a year. Since World War II the garment making business has lost its seasonal aspects and now is a year around industry."

Making of garments at one time, especially in the big cities, was a "dangerous occupation," Bowersox said. "There was a time especially in New York, when gangsters sought to muscle in on the garment industry, and I remember times as a boy when I met men in the garment industry from the city, and as they took their coats off, you would see they wore pistols in holsters. Many had bodyguards. But the gangsters were pushed out of the industry and now it has become strictly a business once more. The period only lasted for a short time, but there was that period when the big New York mobs were trying their best to move into the industry."

John Hostetter presided at the meeting with 50 present. Dr. Harrison Harbach reported on plans for Rotary participation in the Community Chest drive. Next Monday Rotary will attend a joint Sesqui dinner at the Moose.

LEGION HEARS DAVID WEIMER

Tentative plans for the annual Veterans Day observance, November 11, were outlined Monday evening by Lawrence M. Sheads, Americanism chairman, at the meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion at the post home on Baltimore St.

Commander Richard Fox announced that 1957 membership cards are now available and that the drive for 1957 members has begun with approximately 40 already signed for next year.

New officers of the post will be installed October 1 by District Commander George Klee of St. Thomas, Commander Fox added. David Weimer, Gettysburg, who was sent by the post to the Keystone State Boys Camp sponsored by the American Legion state department this summer, reported on his experiences at that camp. The camp is held annually to provide training in citizenship for outstanding young men. At the Camp the boys set up a model community, hold elections and go through the functions of operating state and local governments.

Eight new members were received into the post. They were Merle J. Fissell, Richard G. Hess, Ray M. Derdorff, Lawrence Luckenbaugh, Anderson O'Day, Edward McIntire, Terry Raymond Goodermuth and Alba M. Scott.

Tells Kiwanians Of Local School System

Dr. Lloyd C. Keefauver outlined the work of the Gettysburg School System Monday evening at a meeting of the local Kiwanis Club at Bankert's Restaurant. The local superintendent of schools explained "one of the functions of the schools is to teach the young how to make a living and how to live."

Student enrollment in the Gettysburg jointure schools has exceeded estimated pupil population figures, Dr. Keefauver added, "There is great need for additional space for students." Nationally the birth rate doubled from 1941 to 1955, he said. "In 1941 two million infants were born in the U. S. In 1955 the number was four million. Locally the birth rate has risen proportionately. thus increasing the need for added facilities for the youngsters."

The increase in births, while it had produced problems for educators and communities to supply the schools and teachers needed, "should stimulate business in the years to come by increasing the demand for commodities."

Braves Go After Brooks Tonight As Crucial 2-Game Series Opens; Redlegs Say They're In Race Too

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Bob Buhl, Joe Adcock and Hank Aaron, three guys enjoying their best seasons in the majors because they've murdered the Dodgers, get their last shots at Brooklyn's Old Gray Mares as Milwaukee checks in at Ebbets Field for a two-game series opening tonight.

It could be the beginning of the end for the long-hectic National League pennant race. The Braves, in the lead since July 13, have a one-game edge over Brooklyn's second - place world champions, who had the flag packed away by this time last season.

For the most part, it's been Buhl, Adcock and Aaron who have kept the Braves in front of the Brooks.

Buhl 7-0 On Brooks

Buhl, a 28-year-old righthander who never had won more than 13 in his three previous major league seasons, is 16-7 at the moment—with a 7-0 record against Brooklyn. He could become only the third pitcher ever to beat the Dodgers eight times in a single year in the opener tonight. He'll be up against Sal (9-4) Maglie, who is 1-0 against Milwaukee.

Ed Reulback (9-0) with the 1908 Chicago Cubs and Joe McGinnity (8-0) with the 1903 New York Giants are the only two to pull it off.

Adcock, however, has been the Dodgers' biggest headache. He never has hit more than 23 home runs in one season, but now he has 35 and needs just two more off Dodger pitching to tie the NL record for homers against one club in one season. Billy Joe, driving in 20 runs and batting .429 against the Brooks, has walloped 11 home runs against the champs.

Pests For Brooklyn

Aaron has been a pest to the Brooks since spring training, when he batted .552 against them. At the moment, he's leading the NL at .328 — with a .418 mark against Brooklyn.

The Braves, like the Dodgers, have 17 to play. They're 11-9 against Brooklyn so far, but Dodger Manager Walt Alston, unusually optimistic, figures the Dodgers, playing 13 of their remaining games at home, are in a good spot.

"Our reliefers (Clem Labine and Don Bessent) are rested and Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges are starting to hit," said Alston, whose champs haven't been in first place since April 28.

Still 3-Team Race

"Uptown," where his Redlegs are playing two at the Polo Grounds with the seventh-place Giants, Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbetts, taken back a bit by a three-game loss in St. Louis last weekend, still sees it "a three-team race." Now three games back in third place, Birdie sees a comeback coming. "We have before, and we will again," he says.

In the American League, the New York Yankees hit the road in Kansas City tonight, needing any combination of eight victories or Cleveland or Chicago defeats to clinch the pennant over the runner-up Indians and White Sox. Baltimore is at Cleveland and Boston at Chicago tonight.

MAYO SMITH IS SIGNED AGAIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mayo Smith has been signed to manage the Philadelphia Phillies again next year, his third as skipper of the National League club.

Smith took over the team in October, 1954, after Terry Moore was released at the close of the season. He managed the Phils to a fourth-place finish last year and currently has them in fifth place with a chance at a first-division berth.

Before coming to Philadelphia, Smith managed Birmingham in the Southern Association for two years. He started his managerial career with Amsterdam, N. Y., in the Canadian-American League.

Smith said he plans "no wholesale purge" but sees "possibilities of readjustment" of player personnel for next season.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Jockey Sam Boulmetis rode 81 victories during the 50-day 1955 Monmouth Park meeting.

Open Playoffs; Try To Snap Jinx

There is not a team in the presently constituted Eastern League that can boast winning both the pennant race and the post-season Governor's Cup playoffs. Four teams that can boast the double crown are no longer in the league.

Schenectady's champions will get a chance to snap the jinx as the playoffs get under way tonight. The Blue Jays will be host to last year's Cup winner, Allentown, which finished in fourth place in the championship race.

Binghamton's second-place Triplets will meet Reading, in the other semi-final opener at Binghamton.

The sale of the tickets, which are priced at $4.50, will continue at the school until the conclusion of the Delone-Gettysburg game here Friday evening. There will be no additional reserved seats sold thereafter.

KEN VENTURI WINS 1ST MATCH AT LAKE FOREST

LAKE FOREST, Ill. —"It's a good course to get the jump on somebody. It's hard to get a lot of birdies out there and that's what you need to come back after a guy gets the jump."

That was Ken Venturi's size-up of the massive Knollwood course after he had won his first match in the National Amateur Golf Championship.

In line with this kind of thinking, the 56th national amateur shapes up as a contest between 6,790-yard, par-71 Knollwood and a fine field of golfers just as much as it is a contest among the players themselves.

A couple of other significant quotes from the winners:

Walker Cup player Don Cherry: "It's so open you don't get any perspective. If there were only a few trees along the fairways you could line up your shots."

Charley Coe, 1949 amateur champion: "I think a smart player is going to win this tournament —or somebody who knows the course so well he knows exactly what he's doing on every shot, reelse."

Conrad Upset Victim

Smoky Joe Conrad, the little Texas redhead who won the British Amateur Championship last year, was an upset victim yesterday. Joining him on the sidelines were Bill Hyndman, last year's runner-up; 66-year-old Chick Evans, a two-time amateur champion; and U.S. Senior champion Fred wright.

Among first-round winners were former champions Willie Turnesa and Dick Chapman and Bruce Cudd of the 1955 U.S. Walker Cup team. They were joined today by 56 players who drew first-round byes—among them defending champion Harvie Ward, Billy Joe Patton, 1954 runner-up Bob Sweeny, and 1955 semi-finalist Hillman Robbins.

Ed Tutwiler, unhearalded Charlestown, W. Va., player, defeated Conrad 2 and 1. Hyndman lost 4 and 3 to Joe Campbell, formerly of Purdue.

SAXTON MAY BE FAVORITE WHEN HE ENTERS RING

SYRACUSE (AP) — Welterweight champions have been playing with the 147-pound crown as if it was a bean bag for the last couple of years. In four of the last five title fights, the challenger has won.

Carmen Basilio, dethroned by Johnny Saxton some six months ago, firmly believes the crown will bounce his way once more tomorrow night when he meets Saxton, again in the War Memorial Aditorium.

"He's had it long enough," said the 29-year-old Basilio after finishing up his training with gym work yesterday. "He was lucky—very lucky — to grab it in Chicago March 14. If the referee had let met work inside I would still be the champion. Okay, this time it will be different."

Odds On Basilio Drop

Despite Basilio's optimism, the odds favoring him dropped from 8-5 to 7-5 and slightly under today. It would not be surprising if the 26-year old Saxton went into the ring as a slight choice. In their last fight, Basilio was a 2-1 favorite.

Saxton, more confident than ever, finished his training with a two-round session with Prince Johnson at Summit, N.J., yesterday.

"I'll show them all that I'm entitled to be the champion," said Saxton. "There was no doubt in my mind that I beat him soundly the last time. I'll do it again and easier. If the opportunity comes, I'll go for a knockout.

FIGHT TONIGHT IS "TOSSUP"

BOSTON (AP)—It figures to be a tossup tonight when Larry Boardman of Marlborough, Conn., pits his youth against former champion Jimmy Carter's experience in a lightweight 10-round battle at Boston Garden.

Carter, a veteran of more than 10 years and 100 fights in the ring, has long been the spoiler for New England's brighter 135-pound prospects and he hopes to do it again.

Jimmy, 32, a New Yorker who has won the lightweight title three times, is well remembered in this section for the poundings he gave Boston's Tommy Collins and George Araujo of Providence in the past.

Boardman, a 20-year-old slugger who has won 32 of his 34 starts, has prepped for the biggest fight of his career by going 95 rounds during training—his longest workout so far.

The fight also is expected to decide the logical contender to the fast-changing lightweight title now held by Joe Brown of New Orleans.

Boardman is rated No. 1 behind Brown by the National Boxing Assn., while Carter is No. 2.

South Penn Teams Attempt To Rebound This Week; GHS Will Host Powerful Delone

Five South Penn Conference football teams, including Gettysburg High School, Monday began regrouping their forces for this week's engagements after having been treated roughly in opening games last week.

Only Mechanicsburg, with a 6-6 tie with Central Dauphin, escaped a drubbing in inaugurating the campaign.

The Gettysburg Warriors, outclassed at Westminster 12-0, will take on Delone Catholic, probably the best team it will face all season, here Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Delone served notice on all its opponents by walloping Hanover 28-7. The Hawks had been tabbed as one of the outstanding conference title aspirants this season.

Hershey, a 32-0 victim of Milton Hershey, will be host to Palmyra on Friday. Other games this weekend include Calvin Coolidge of Washington, D. C., at Mechanicsburg Friday, and Westminster at Waynesboro Saturday evening. Waynesboro was jolted by Martinsburg, W. Va., last Saturday 31-13.

Canners Start Play

Tom Faulkner, new head coach at Biglerville, makes his debut Friday night when the Canners invade Shippensburg. The Greyhounds bowed to Littlestown 12-0 last week.

Three South Penn teams will open their campaigns Friday night. Carlisle, defending champion, entertains Chief Logan; Middletown plays at York Catholic and Chambersburg plays host to Scotland. Hanover has an open date this week.

Littlestown, impressive in completely outplaying Shippensburg, will go after its second straight victory against Big Spring of Newville on Memorial Field, Littlestown, Friday evening.

East Berlin May Join Soccer Loop

Only four schools, Central, Manchester, Spring Grove, and Dover, sent representatives to a meeting of the York-Adams Scholastic Soccer League at Dover Monday evening.

A fifth school, East Berlin, may enter the loop but the representatives decided to operate regardless, either as a four-team or a five-team league.

Tentative plans call for the league to launch operations either September 19 or September 21.

"Bird proofing" in the form of low-voltage, electric-pulsating wiring to discourage roosting birds was installed on New York City's renovated City Hall.

Braves Go After Brooks Tonight As Crucial 2-Game Series Opens; Redlegs Say They're In Race Too

By ED WILKS
The Associated Press

Bob Buhl, Joe Adcock and Hank Aaron, three guys enjoying their best seasons in the majors because they've murdered the Dodgers, get their last shots at Brooklyn's Old Gray Mares as Milwaukee checks in at Ebbets Field for a two-game series opening tonight.

It could be the beginning of the end for the long-hectic National League pennant race. The Braves, in the lead since July 13, have a one-game edge over Brooklyn's second - place world champions, who had the flag packed away by this time last season.

For the most part, it's been Buhl, Adcock and Aaron who have kept the Braves in front of the Brooks.

Buhl 7-0 On Brooks

Buhl, a 28-year-old righthander who never had won more than 13 in his three previous major league seasons, is 16-7 at the moment—with a 7-0 record against Brooklyn. He could become only the third pitcher ever to beat the Dodgers eight times in a single year in the opener tonight. He'll be up against Sal (9-4) Maglie, who is 1-0 against Milwaukee.

Ed Reulback (9-0) with the 1908 Chicago Cubs and Joe McGinnity (8-0) with the 1903 New York Giants are the only two to pull it off.

Adcock, however, has been the Dodgers' biggest headache. He never has hit more than 23 home runs in one season, but now he has 35 and needs just two more off Dodger pitching to tie the NL record for homers against one club in one season. Billy Joe, driving in 20 runs and batting .429 against the Brooks, has walloped 11 home runs against the champs.

Pests For Brooklyn

Aaron has been a pest to the Brooks since spring training, when he batted .552 against them. At the moment, he's leading the NL at .328 — with a .416 mark against Brooklyn.

The Braves, like the Dodgers, have 17 to play. They're 11-9 against Brooklyn so far, but Dodger Manager Walt Alston, unusually optimistic, figures the Dodgers, playing 13 of their remaining games at home, are in a good spot.

"Our reliefers (Clem Labine and Don Bessent) are rested and Carl Furillo and Gil Hodges are starting to hit," said Alston, whose champs haven't been in first place since April 28.

Still 3-Team Race

"Uptown," where his Redlegs are playing two at the Polo Grounds with the seventh-place Giants, Cincinnati Manager Birdie Tebbetts, taken back a bit by a three-game loss in St. Louis last weekend, still sees it "a three-team race." Now three games back in third place, Birdie sees a comeback coming. "We have before, and we will again," he says.

In the American League, the New York Yankees hit the road in Kansas City tonight, needing any combination of eight victories or Cleveland or Chicago defeats to clinch the pennant over the runner-up Indians and White Sox. Baltimore is at Cleveland and Boston at Chicago tonight.

Only Mechanicsburg, with a 6-6 tie with Central Dauphin, escaped a drubbing in inaugurating the campaign.

The Gettysburg Warriors, outclassed at Westminster 12-0, will take on Delone Catholic, probably the best team it will face all season, here Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Delone served notice on all its opponents by walloping Hanover 28-7. The Hawks had been tabbed as one of the outstanding conference title aspirants this season.

Hershey, a 32-0 victim of Milton Hershey, will be host to Palmyra on Friday. Other games this weekend include Calvin Coolidge of Washington, D. C., at Mechanicsburg Friday, and Westminster at Waynesboro Saturday evening. Waynesboro was jolted by Martinsburg, W. Va., last Saturday 31-13.

Canners Start Play

Tom Faulkner, new head coach at Big'erville, makes his debut Friday night when the Canners invade Shippensburg. The Greyhounds bowed to Littlestown 12-0 last week.

Three South Penn teams will open their campaigns Friday night. Carlisle, defending champion, entertains Chief Logan; Middletown plays at York Catholic and Chambersburg plays host to Scotland. Hanover has an open date this week.

Littlestown, impressive in completely outplaying Shippensburg, will go after its second straight victory against Big Spring of Newville on Memorial Field, Littlestown, Friday evening.

East Berlin May Join Soccer Loop

Only four schools, Central, Manchester, Spring Grove, and Dover, sent representatives to a meeting of the York-Adams Scholastic Soccer League at Dover Monday evening.

A fifth school, East Berlin, may enter the loop but the representatives decided to operate regardless, either as a four-team or a five-team league.

Tentative plans call for the league to launch operations either September 19 or September 21.

"Bird proofing" in the form of low-voltage, electric-pulsating wiring to discourage roosting birds was installed on New York City's renovated City Hall.

GOVERNORS OF 13 STATES AT W. VA. MEETING

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governors of 13 Southern and border states are now gathered at a fancy spa at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to discuss mutual problems.

Curiously, the pattern of strife and violence in the South over school integration and civil rights for Negroes does not have a place on the official agenda, although it came up for discussion.

In the past year or so there have been shootings, cross burnings, boycotts, assorted mob actions and near race riots.

Burn Crosses

Crosses have been burned, apparently for the purpose of intimidation, in more than 50 places scattered from Jacksonville, Fla., to Bonham, Tex., and Charlottesville, Va.

The furtively placed anti-Negro symbols have been fired before the residence of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex), and Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court.

At a Ku Klux Klan rally in Jacksonville, Fla., a bed-sheeted speaker denounced the U.S. Supreme Court, Catholics, Jews and Negroes equally as seekers after school integration.

Throughout the South, White Citizens Councils, Ku Klux Klan klaverns and other variously named anti-Negro groups have sprung up.

Mobs have sought to prevent school integration in compliance with federal court orders at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Matoaka, W. Va.; Clinton, Tenn.; Dover, Del.; Texarkana and Mansfield, Tex.; Sturgis and Clay, Ky.

Negroes in search of equal rights have organized bus boycotts in Montgomery, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla.

Negroes also organized economic boycotts in Orangeburg, S.C., and Jackson, Tenn., against business firm heads who took an active prosegregation stand.

Mysterious Murder

In Belzoni, Miss., the Rev. George Wesley Lee, an advocate of voting by Negroes, was mysteriously murdered. Gus Courts, a similar advocate, was shot by a group of white men in a separate unsolved incident.

The homes of two boycott leaders in Montgomery were rocked by bomb explosions.

In Trenton, Tenn., 300 Negroes nearly rioted after a white policeman shot one of their race in an arrest attempt.

Three white men were arrested in Knoxville, Tenn., for firing a shotgun into a Negro home where two boys, who had swiped a baseball from a white team on a nearby diamond, had taken refuge. A crowd of 2,000 white and Negro, armed with clubs, rocks and sticks nearly clashed in the aftermath.

Two attempts were made at Sorrento, Fla., to burn the home of Allen Platt, who said he was Cherokee Indian and Irish. His children were admitted by court order to a white school.

A Florence, S.C., newspaper editor abandoned his job after his paper was boycotted because of his efforts to preach moderation.

The home of another editor, Mrs. Mabel Reese Norris, was twice bombed at Tavares, Fla.

Fifteen Negro students and five faculty members at the South Carolina State College for Negroes were told not to return this year because they were supporters of the Orangeburg economic boycott.

There are other incidents in the pattern, but as far as the agenda of the governors' conference is concerned it doesn't exist.

CALLS GOP TRIO "A PLAGUE" TO WORLD SECURITY

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sen. Barr, Democratic state chairman, says a coalition of Vice President Nixon and two Cabinet officials has "become a plague on domestic and international security."

"The people of the United States realize," Barr asserted, "that President Eisenhower has become the political captive of the most dangerous political cartel ever to gain control of the White House."

Barr said the coalition also comprised Atty. Gen. Brownell and Secretary of State Dulles.

Go Into Final Days

He made the comments in a weekend statement as Democrats went into the final days of strategy meetings before the kick-off of the fall election campaign at a $50-a-plate dinner at the State Farm Show Building Thursday.

Adlai Stevenson, the party's presidential candidate, will make his first network television campaign speech at the event.

Barr noted that the President invited 500 GOP campaign workers for a rally at his Gettysburg farm Wednesday and declared:

"The Republican army of the Potomac suffers from the enveloping fear that Mr. Stevenson's campaign is going irresistibly forward and that he will lead the Democratic party to its most historic victory in November."

Expect Crowd

Barr predicted an overflow crowd at Thursday's dinner. The goal of 10,000 tickets set by Barr would mean a gross of half a million dollars.

In other Democratic developments Joseph S. Clark, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, said he sent to his election opponent, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff (R—Pa) a letter citing Duff's voting record in Congress.

"During your last five years I understand you were absent and not paired on 255 out of 679 roll call votes or over 37 per cent of the time," Clark said. He read the letter in a televised broadcast last night over WCAU-TV, Philadelphia.

And in Pittsburgh all the Joe Smiths were invited to Thursday's fund-raising dinner. The Allegheny County Democratic Committee sent invitations to all 66 Joe Smiths in the telephone directory and said:

"The Democratic party wants you with us. We have arranged free train transportation for you and a free ticket for this dinner."

The letter noted that a mythical Joe Smith was placed in nomination for the vice presidency at the Republican National Convention and that Convention Chairman Joseph Martin said "take your 'Joe Smith', and get out of here."

On Tuesday, the Democratic State Executive Committee will meet to select nine candidates for the Legislature to fill vacancies caused by resignations, deaths or withdrawals.

Prior to the Thursday dinner the state committee will review campaign plans, hear from state candidates and draw up a supplement to the 1956 national platform.

State wide candidates will begin their organized tour of the commonwealth at Easton on Friday and may swing through some of the northern tier counties afterward.

STEVENSON'S HOPES BOOSTED BY MAINE VOTE

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's hopes of winning the presidency gained new buoyancy today from Democratic Gov. Edmund Muskie's re-election in usually Republican Maine.

"The Republicans have always said 'As Maine goes, so goes the nation,'" said the Democratic presidential nominee.

"If that is the case, the outlook for Democrats is very good indeed."

"As Maine Goes"

Stevenson made the comment to newsmen after telephoning Muskie to congratulate him on what he called an "unprecedented victory."

Commenting on the election of Maine Democratic State Chairman Frank M. Coffin over Republican State Sen. James L. Reid for U.S. representative, Stevenson said:

"The remarkable performance of the Democratic congressional candidate indicates the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stevenson's running mate, echoed the "As Maine goes" chant and expressed confidence it would apply to the Democratic national ticket in November.

No Surprise

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Stevenson's convention rival for the presidential nomination, was even more emphatic.

He said Muskie's victory was no surprise to him and that it gave assurance that Stevenson and Kefauver would oust President Eisenhower's Republican administration.

James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, said Muskie's victory was "all the more remarkable," because "the Republicans made this a test of President Eisenhower's popularity and influence with the voters."

Untied Leaders

These leaders learned of the Muskie victory from reportrs at LaGuardia Field last night at the conclusion of a Stevenson campaign swing to Hartford, Conn., and Albany, N.Y.

Stevenson and Harriman took pains at Albany to show that they are united for a Democratic victory in November despite their rivalry at the Chicago convention.

Harriman introduced Stevenson at a Democratic State Convention that nominated Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City to oppose Republican State Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits for the U.S. Senate seat that Democrat Herbert H. Lehman is relinquishing.

Tough Campaign

The governor heard Stevenson declare:

"Our differences in August did not scar our basic agreement about the things that count. We are all the stronger in September, and we will win in November."

Stevenson said he and Kefauver expected "to conduct the toughest and the hardest campaign this country has ever known."

Along this line, he attacked the Eisenhower administration as a "false front."

"This is government that denies to our hearts what it promises to our ears," he said amid applause.

Sinclair Announces

A NEW POWER DISCOVERY

New Super-Premium Sinclair Power-X Gasoline with X-Chemical Increases Power, Cuts Operating Costs as You Drive

Eliminates power-robbing engine deposits

90% more effective than any other gasoline additive in preventing spark plug fouling

70% more effective in stopping power loss from pre-ignition knock

All Cars Need It—Only Sinclair Has It

What makes a brand new car start to knock and lose power after a few thousand miles? What causes sluggish performance in older cars? The chief reason is carbon or other combustion deposits that form on spark plugs and pistons.

Now – for the first time in automotive history – a rare chemical has been developed that eliminates power-robbing engine deposits, thereby increasing power in older cars – retaining peak power in new cars.

Other gasoline additives, intended to combat spark plug fouling and pre-ignition, actually build up harmful deposits of their own. But Sinclair's new X-Chemical has none of these damaging after-effects. INSTEAD, IT CHANGES HARD, CRUSTY DEPOSITS INTO HARMLESS, POWDERY MATERIAL.

After just three tankfuls of new Super-Premium Power-X, you can feel the improvement in performance—provided you do not mix it with other gasoline. See your Sinclair Dealer and power up with new Sinclair Power-X Gasoline.

Today's Talk

LOCALITY

It is interesting and profitable to meet people from far-away places and guess as to their locality. It may be a peculiar language, or a manner of expression, or an accent added to one's own language. At any rate, it locates that person. Said Thoreau about such people: "Whatever he says or does, he merely reports himself. If he is in love, he loves; if he is in heaven, he enjoys: if he is in hell, he suffers. It is his condition that determines his locality."

We grow into maturity, not thinking of the influence of our environment or of the things in that environment that locate us to others. Many a criminal has been caught because of his familiarity with places that were like those of his birth or associates.

You don't have to explain a Yankee! He explains himself.

People who travel a great deal like to look up localities on their maps so as to fix in their minds just what they want to learn and remember, from that location. We like to live in pleasant places, and after leaving them, to return. In my earlier travels it was instructive to read from my map that certain fish came from certain localities. The same is true of other things that a locality presents, like many of the huge forests in Canada, lumber, and especially logs for the manufacture of newsprint.

In traveling through the western part of the United States I shall always remember the sight of the first herd of buffalos, and the various settlements where different tribes of Indians lived. The characteristics of people owe much to the locality where they were born and reared. Undoubtedly Abraham Lincoln, and many another great figure, can well owe their gentleness and understanding to the experience of poverty in their youth — and yet that locality remains sacred to such people.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "That Job Of Yours."

THE NEW BOY

When I was only one day old
And scarce on earth had made a sound,
My father, proudly, I am told,
Cigars in tin foil passed around.
I was to him a great event
To share with all his fellow men.
I wonder if I've ever meant
As much to him as I did then?

Just one day old, and for a while
My coming was a joy to boast.
I was the cause of many a smile.
To him my birthday meant the most.
Forgotten was my brothers' fame.
Celebrities they once had been;
But when to join with them I came,
They settled down in life's routine.

I was the star of all the lot;
The world's most perfect babe was I—
A marvel for a little tot—
Dark brown of hair and blue of eye.
I had perfection, head to toe,
The best to wear my father's name.
But, that was in the years ago
Before my younger brothers came.

PRIMARIES ARE BEING HELD IN 8 STATES TODAY

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Eight states hold primaries today, but they were largely overshadowed in advance by the surprising Democratic showing in Maine's election yesterday.

Gov. Edmund S. Muskie, more than doubling his 1954 margin of victory, won a second term—almost unprecedented for a Democrat in strongly Republican Maine's election yesterday.

And Democrats captured at least one of the state's three House seats — a feat they hadn't done since 1934 in the early New Deal days.

Hailed By Adlai

President Eisenhower had asked for a complete GOP sweep in Maine. His November opponent, Adlai Stevenson, promptly hailed Muskie's victory as showing that "the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

The results pretty well stole the thunder from today's primaries, although there remained considerable interest in what the ballots held in store for Republican Sen. Alexander Wily of Wisconsin, Republican Gov. J. Bracken Lee of Utah and Democratic former Secretary of Agriculture Charles E. Brannan.

Wiley and Lee are seeking renomination. Brannan, author of the controversial farm plan which Congress rejected, aspires to the Senate from Colorado in his first try for elective office.

Georgia Tomorrow

Five other states picking party nominees for various offices are New Hampshire, Vermont, Minnesota, Washington and Arizona.

Georgia holds a primary tomorrow to pick a successor to retiring Sen. Walter George. Two former governors, Herman Talmade and Melvin Thompson, are contesting for the Democratic nomination which is equivalent to election. Georgia also has contests for 6 to 10 House seats.

The rundown on today's primaries:

WISCONSIN — Wiley, seeking a fourth Senate term, is regarded as a slight favorite to win the Republican nomination over Rep. Glenn R. Davis, who has the endorsement of the GOP state organization, and Howard H. Boyle Jr., an attorney. State Sen. Henry W. Maier is favored over Elliot N. Walstead for the Democratic nomination. Incumbent House members seeking re-election are without opposition.

COLORADO—Former Gov. Dan Thornton has no opposition for the GOP Senate nomination to succeed Sen. Eugene Millikin, a Republican retiring because of ill health. Contesting for the Democratic nomination are former Rep. John A. Carroll and Brannan, secretary of agriculture under Harry S. Truman. Lt. Gov. Stephen L. P. McNichols is unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor; State Sen. Donald G. Brotzman is likewise without opposition in the GOP primary.

UTAH — Republican Gov. Lee, an outspoken critic of foreign aid programs and of many Eisenhower administration policies, is seeking the nomination for an unprecedented third term. GOP Sen. Arthur Watkins is supporting Lee's opponent. Chairman George D. Clyde of the Utah Water and Power Board. Republican Sen. Wallace E. Bennett is unopposed for renomination.

NEW HAMPSHIRE — Gov. Lane Dwinell, seeking the GOP nomination for a second term, is challenged by Atty. Wesley Powell and Elmer E. Bussey, a handyman. Republican Sen. Norris Cotton is opposed by Joseph E. Moore.

VERMONT—There are only two contests here—for the GOP Nominations for lieutenant governor and attorney general.

MINNESOTA — Gov. Orville L. Freeman is strongly favored to win renomination on the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket. Ancher Nelsen, former rural electrification administrator, is favored to win the GOP nomination to oppose him.

WASHINGTON — Atty. Gen. Don [illegible] and Lt. Gov. Emmett Anderson are front runners among six aspirants for the Republican nomination for governor. Democrats are likely to choose between State Sen. Albert D. Rosellini and Secretary of State Earl Coe. Without opposition for Senate nominations are Democrat Warren Magnuson, the incumbent, and GOP Gov. Arthur Langlie.

ARIZONA — Democratic Sen. Carl Hayden is expected to win renomination over Robert E. Miller, a pharmacist. Contesting for the GOP Senate nomination are Ross Jones, former attorney general of the state, and Albert McKinzie, an attorney. Democratic Gov. Ernest W McFarland has no opposition, but there is a three-way GOP contest for the right to oppose him in November.

Typhoon Winds Fan Disastrous Blaze

UOZU, Japan (AP) — More than 1,760 homes were destroyed today by a fire that virtually wiped out the center of this city of 47,000 persons 150 miles west of Tokyo. A typhoon wind of 30 m.p.h. fanned the flames.

Police said 1 person was killed, 22 were missing and 55 were injured. Firemen fought the blaze six hours before bringing it under control.

More than 8,000 persons were left homeless. Authorities estimated damages at $4,150,000.

GUARDSMEN ALERTED FOR STURGIS FUSS

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

National guardsmen, strengthened by reinforcements, were ready today to move — if needed —into Sturgis, Ky., scene of noisy racial disorders at the town's integrated high school.

A National Guard detachment of 650 men, backed by tanks and 40 state patrolmen, were on hand yesterday to see that seven Negroes were allowed to enter classes for which 310 white pupils were enrolled.

A crowd of between 600 and 1,000 persons jeered and catcalled the guardsmen, spaced three feet apart on the high school lawn.

Only 45 of the school's white pupils were at their desks when the final assembly bell rang. Members of the crowd cried out that the white pupils would "never come back" and turbulent anti-integrationists declared they would keep their children "out of Sturgis High School forever if necessary."

Negroes Flee Rocks

When the Negroes left the building, rocks were hurled. The Negroes sped home in automobiles.

Sturgis is the center of an area with a population of about 5,000, including 1,000 Negroes. The tension there was in strong contrast to the situation at Louisville, Ky., where the South's first large-scale school integration was carried out peacefully and with no untoward incident yesterday.

Aside from limited protests and a few pickets at the Louisville Board of Education, there was no disturbance. Officials said they expected none.

Louisville, a city of almost 400,000 has a school population of 47,000, one-third of them Negroes. Officials estimate that 2,810 Negroes will attend previously all-white schools this fall.

Negroes Turned Away

At Clay, Ky., a coal-mining community of 2,000 not so very far from Sturgis, a crowd of about 100 men turned away a Negro mother and their two children at the elementary school. A newsman was told by members of the group that no pictures could be taken but that "if they bring niggers here, you can take pictures of people dying."

A spokesman for the Negro woman, Mrs. James Gordon, said the Gordon children — James, 10, and Teresa, 8 — would not return to the school "until they have the same protection that Negroes have in Sturgis."

WORLD SERIES OPENS OCT. 3 IN NL PARK

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Series is officially scheduled to open Oct. 3 in the National League park—but it might be a bit later if the NL can't decide which park.

Commissioner Ford Frick set the date for the 1956 classic after a 90-minute discussion with representatives of the pennant contenders in both leagues yesterday.

The first two games will be played in the National League park, with the series then shifting to the American League park for the next three if needed in the best-of-seven championship. If more games are necessary, they'll be played in the National League park.

Ticket Prices Same

Ticket prices, the same as last year and including federal but not local taxes, are $10 for a box seat, $7 reserved, $2 bleachers and $4 for standing room.

All games will start at 1 p.m. local time, except on Sunday in New York, when the start will be 2 p.m.

The only problem at the moment is the National League pennant winner. It could be Milwaukee Brooklyn or Cincinnati. And a two-team or three-team playoff may be needed to decide.

Under NL rules, a two-team tie for first place means a best-of-three playoff. A three-way tie calls for a double-elimination playoff—which could drag on for five days.

SCIENTISTS FRETTING OVER NUCLEAR TESTS

By BEM PRICE
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Russians keep testing nuclear weapons in Siberia. From time to time the United States lets go with a few on a mid-Pacific island. The British plan to do a bit of testing in Australia.

Some scientists are worried that the radioactive fall-out from these experiments is going to produce a world population just loaded with crazy, mixed-up genes.

Genes are nature's built-in gadgets for determining whether children are going to have brown eyes or blue, two heads or one, and whether they are going to be idiots or geniuses.

As it now stands, the situation is enough to make a pessimist smile—a pessimistic smile, of course.

Weather Warfare

The latest news from the world-is-going-to-pot front comes from Atomic Energy Commissioner John von Neumann.

Von Neumann said in a weekend world broadcast that within a few decades mankind will achieve global climate control and raise the awful prospect of weather warfare.

Can you imagine sending lightning bolts hurtling down on your enemies? Or maybe aiming a hurricane? r perhaps causing drought or floods?

Coupled with atomic and hydrogen bombs, this weather warfare business has fascinating possibilities for utter world destruction.

But there is a ray of hope — the silver lining in the mushroom cloud.

The same day that Von Neumann predicted weather warfare in a few decades, the Los Alamos, N.M., atomic energy laboratory disclosed it had been working for the past year on atomic-powered rockets.

Presumably, if and when these A-rockets are perfected, mankind will have the means to blast off for Mars, Venus, Jupiter, or any of the other assorted planets knocking about in space.

Who knows but what mankind will be able to find and colonize another planet somewhere in that mysterious void now known as the universe?

By the time mankind succeeds in making this planet totally uninhabitable, perhaps he will have perfected the means for leaving it.

And this, naturally, raises an interesting subject. Since accommodations in space ships probably will be fairly limited, who will get to make the journey to salvation?

Under the Democratic system everybody should have an equal opportunity. Under the Russian system there will be no argument since the bosses will make the selections.

If the Democratic system is chosen with its interminable arguments, talk about the rights of man and justice, then life will continue on planet "X" as it has on earth. Mankind, in brief, can go on being contrary.

But if the Russian system with its planned economy and thought control is selected, it wouldn't be worth the trip anyhow.

Wouldn't it be nice if we never had to make the choice?

COLLINS URGES ATOM RESEARCH SITES IN SOUTH

By WARREN ROGERS JR.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (AP) — Southern governors were urged today to set up a Southern center for atomic research.

The recommendation came from a special committee, headed by Gov. Leroy Collins of Florida, and was based on a yearlong study.

Collins appealed to his colleagues at the 22nd annual Governors Conference to "do something creative" and "bring dreams into reality."

Collins Leads Discussion

"Grandiose plans impossible to carry out are useless of course," he said, "but ingenious, dramatic plans are not impractical merely because they have never been tried."

Collins led a discussion group on the subject of nuclear energy and how Dixie can best share in its peaceful development.

Gov. James E. Folsom of Alabama, in a paper on industrial uses of atomic power, urged the South to "move in now on the ground floor of the atmic industry."

He strongly endorsed the Collins groups four major recommendations:

1. To set up a nuclear test center in the South. He said a board of directors, one from each of the 16 states below the Mason-Dixon line, could run it with cooperation from the Atomic Energy Commission.

2. To launch an information program to enlighten Southern industry on actual experience with atomic power.

Inform Public

3. To tell the public about the peaceful atomic uses.

4. To back education programs aimed at training manpower for work in atomic plants.

Folsom said studies show there is in the South "a foreseeable need for one or more regional atomic energy industrial research centers for the 16 states."

Sites Mentioned

Folsom did not mention it, but Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn is one of the institutions interested in getting such a center. Other possible sites mentioned atomic cnter at Oak Ridge, Tenn: the University of Florida, Georgia Tech, and North Carolina State College at Raleigh.

Eleven of the 16 Southern governors—the others sent word they couldn't make it—last night heard Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, call for more thorough education of American youth in what democracy is all about lest the Communists achieve world domination because of an ignorance of liberty.

Following the urge of people who want "a little place in the country," more non-farming people are living in rural areas in the U.S. today than there are actual farmers.

PUC Drops Water Company Petition

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Public Utility Commission yesterday turned down a petition by the Hallstead Water Co. to dismiss Great Bend borough's complaint against a proposed $12,000 annual rate increase for 600 Susquehanna County consumers.

The commission has suspended the increase, originally filed to be effective Aug. 1, six months to make an investigation. Hearings will begin in Montrose Oct. 5.

GOP CANDIDATE FORESEES BIG STATE DEFICIT

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Rep. Robert F. Kent, Republican candidate for state treasurer, said today the Leader administration faces a "whopping big deficit" for the operation of the state government during the last two years.

And this deficit, Kent said, is there despite tax increases which he claimed amounted to about 500 million above previous years.

"Leader spending is far outrunning Leader taxes," Kent told a political rally here in his campaign for state office.

Swollen Payrolls

"Big as the increase in tax levies has been, and heavy though the burden is on the state's job-producing industries, it can't keep pace with the swollen payrolls and appropriations," Kent added.

He predicted that Gov. Leader will come again, hat in hand, to the next Legislature, and call for still further new revenues, to the tune of at least 200 million dollars.

On the same speaking program, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff (R—Pa.) said Adlai Stevenson, democratic presidential candidate, resorted to "fakery, hypocrisy and effrontery" in dealing with economic issues.

Duff, who is seeking reelection, claimed that under Roosevelt and Truman, there was full employment in the United States "only when our mills and factories were engaged in making implements of war."

Referring to a Stevenson statement in which Duff said the Democratic candidate claimed the cost of living went up 48 per cent during the last four years, Duff countered:

"He (Stevenson) had the fakery, hypocrisy and effrontery not to tell the people the cost of living went up 48 per cent during the previous Democratic administration."

Plans Mapped For Bullet-Bison Game

Representatives of Gettysburg College and Bucknell University were luncheon guests Monday of the Harrisburg Rotary Club at the Penn-Harris Hotel, Harrisburg when plans were discussed for the annual Chocolate Bowl football game to be played between the schools Saturday evening, September 29, in the Hershey Stadium.

Henry T. Bream, athletic director, and Jim Tarman, public relations director, represented the Bullets. Both spoke briefly.

SPECIAL JURY TO INVESTIGATE PIKE CHARGES

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Dauphin County sheriff and jury commissioners today began choosing a special grand jury which will meet Oct. 22 to begin an investigation of Pennsylvania Turnpike Operations under Republican control.

The jury was ordered summoned yesterday by Dauphin County Court after Dist. Atty. Huette Dowling acted on a State Justice Department petition and recommended the probe.

Acting President Judge William H. Neely said the court "feels that the matter has been brought to our attention, should be investigated fairly and impartially and the truth established."

Examine Cohen Charges

The jury will look into changes by Atty. Gen. Herbert Cohen that present and former Turnpike Commission members and employes joined in a plot to fleece the toll road out of 19½ million dollars.

Gov. Leader has said it was "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

The charges listed in Cohen's petition for the probe include conspiracy, bribery and corruption.

The court signed an order directing the sheriff and jury commissioners to select and notify 24 grand jurors to appear Monday, Oct. 22, in the main courtroom.

Date Uncertain

However, Dowling had this comment when asked if the jurors would get the probe underway immediately after they first meet:

"I would hope we will start to work right away but you can't be sure."

The district attorney, a Republican, said some of those mentioned in the petition are "accused of wrongdoing in a most serious way."

Public Has Right

He said the public has the right to know the truth or falsity of the accusations.

"Those guilty of any wrongdoing should be punished and the innocent persons should have an opportunity to vindicate themselves," he added.

Among those named in Cohen's petition were Thomas J. Evans, former commission chairman, and James F. Torrance, a present commission member. Both are Republicans.

Delay Boxing Probe Until After Nov. 6

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A special state senate committee to investigate boxing in Pennsylvania will not begin hearings until after the November election its chairman said yesterday.

State Sen. Watkins (R-Delaware) who heads the five-man body said several of his committee told him they would not have time to hold hearings because of the election.

The Senate didn't appropriate money for the probe when it was authorized but Watkins said he did not think this would stymie the investigation. He explained the committee must receive an authorization from Gov. Leader for a grant from the state's general fund.

JAVITS NAMED GOP NOMINEE FOR U.S. SENATE

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits and New York City's Mayor Robert F. Wagner squared off today for what each promises will be a hard-fought campaign for Herbert H. Lehman's U.S. Senate seat.

Javits, nominated unanimously yesterday by the Republican State Committee, served notice that he was through denying reports that sought to link him with Communists early in his political career.

"Let us get on with the business of this great campaign," he said in his acceptance speech.

Wagner, designated as the Democratic nominee by a cheering, turbulent convention in the city's largest movie theater, was champing at the bit with equal spirit.

"I'm no in this campaign halfway," he said. "I'm in with both feet. I'm out to win."

Lehman, 78, cited his age when he announced his retirement last month.

Javits interpreted his nomination to mean Republican acceptance of his blanket denial of Communist associations. Some GOP leaders had been distrubed by the political implications in the allegations against the 52-year-old former congressman.

Doubts over Javits' nomination were resolved by the Republican committee's influential executive committee, which voted 17-8 to endorse him.

There were no other nominations.

Petitions in behalf of Gen. Douglas MacArthur were presented, but his name was not placed in nomination. The general had said he was not seeking any poltical office.

Wagner was assured the nomination from the moment last week when he announced he would accept it. He had the support of all the top Democratic leaders, including Lehman, Gov. Averell Harriman and Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee and featured speaker at the Democratic State Convention.

Lehman placed Wagner's name before the convention. Harriman and Stevenson, who along with his running mate, Sen. Estes Kefauver addressed the convention later, were warm in the praise of the 46-year-old New York mayor.

Wagner told the 2,286 cheering delegates and alternates that he had never been in a losing campaign and "I don't intend to start losing now."

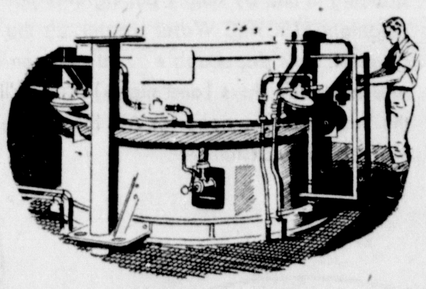
Texas Eastern helps put the zip in a zipper



TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Coils of certain metals from which zipper parts are cut are first annealed in natural gas-fired furnaces. Natural gas is supplied the three Meadville, Pennsylvania, plants of Talon, Inc., by United Natural Gas Company, a customer of Texas Eastern.

Texas Eastern transports natural gas from the Southwest to perform a vital function in the manufacture of zippers made by Talon, Inc. For a zipper to do its job, its metal parts must be tough and pliable. To achieve this, in the case of certain alloys, the metal is first annealed (softened) in natural gas-fired furnaces before it is processed into zipper parts. Talon uses natural gas because it permits accurate and more uniform control of the higher temperatures required in this annealing operation. Talon also uses natural gas to fire the boilers that provide steam and heat for its three Meadville plants, because gas is clean, uniform in quality and can be automatically controlled.

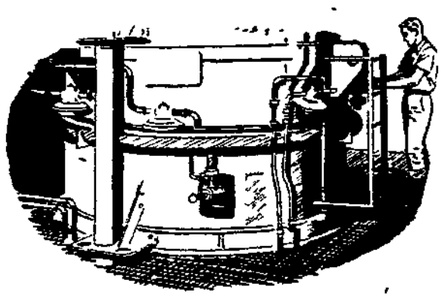
Texas Eastern helps put the zip in a zipper



TEXAS EASTERN SERVES THE COMPANIES THAT SERVE YOU

Coils of certain metals from which zipper parts are cut are first annealed in natural gas fired furnaces Natural gas is supplied the three Meadville, Pennsylvania, plants of Talon, Inc, by United Natural Gas Company, a customer of Texas Eastern.

Texas Eastern transports natural gas from the Southwest to perform a vital function in the manufacture of zippers made by Talon, Inc. For a zipper to do its job, its metal parts must be tough and pliable. To achieve this, in the case of certain alloys, the metal is first annealed (softened) in natural gas-fired furnaces before it is processed into zipper parts. Talon uses natural gas because it permits accurate and more uniform control of the higher temperatures required in this annealing operation. Talon also uses natural gas to fire the boilers that provide steam and heat for its three Meadville plants, because gas is clean, uniform in quality and can be automatically controlled.

SOUTH CAROLINA ENTRY WINS AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—A drawling Southern girl who likes to take life easy is off to a flying start in her hectic one-year reign as Miss America.

Marian McKnight of South Carolina had only two hours sleep after winning the coveted title late Saturday night when she was routed out of bed on Sunday to face the press and photographers.

Then she took off for New York for another press conference and three television appearances Monday.

Routine To Change

Sipping orange juice, the 19-year-old blonde showed a sense of humor and calm self-assurance in cataloging her likes and dislikes to newsmen.

"I like to go to bed late and to sleep late," Miss McKnight said.

Lenora Slaughter, director of the Miss America Pageant, broke in to say that this "routine" will be reversed.

$50,000 Jackpot

"It's go to bed early and get up early for Miss America," said Miss Slaughter. A $50,000 jackpot goes with the title, including a $5,000 scholarship, a wardrobe and fees for personal appearances during the coming year.

Other top finishers were Miss District of Columbia, Margo Lucey, 20, first runnerup who gets a $3,000 scholarship; Miss Alabama, Barbara Hilgenberg, 18, of Tucson; and Miss Kansas, Mary Ann McGrew, 19, of Wellington. $2,000 scholarships each.

Miss Pennsylvania, Lorna M. Ringler, 18, of Upper Darby, failed to place in the top 10 but received a $1,000 scholarship as the best "pop" singer in the talent contests.

Betty Jordan of Indianapolis bowled a 278, high game in the Women's International Bowling Congress Tournament.

BAYLOR CO-ED COLLEGE QUEEN

ASBURY PARK (AP) — A Texas beauty with brown hair and eyes to match is the 1957 National College Queen.

Marilyn M. Mayer, and 18-year-old sophomore at Baylor University of Waco, Tex., won the title Sunday night. She edged Carol Lewis, 18, a sophomore at Roosevelt University, Chicago, and Joan Schoenfeld, 19, a junior at Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, by one point.

The new "beauty and brains" queen weighs 105 pounds, is 5-feet 2 and measures 34-23-34. She is an art student and hopes to become an art teacher and paint portraits.

Other finalists included Joyce Adrianne Koch, 20, a senior at Pennsylvania State University who lives at Rahway, N. J.

Cypriot Rebels Attack French

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Cypriot rebels made their first attack on Sunday on French troops of Cyprus booming "Suez garrison." The rebels inflicted no casualties on the French, but they killed a Greek Cypriot and wounded five British soldiers in other attacks.

Authorities blamed all the incidents on EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which has been fighting since April 1, 1955, to oust the British from this crown colony and annex the island to Greece.

The French forces came under attack only 10 days after they began arriving on Cyprus, Britain's main Middle Eastern base, for the avowed purpose of protecting French nationals and their interests in the dispute over Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

ORDER PROBE OF TURNPIKE

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Dauphin County Court Monday ordered a grand jury investigation of operations of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission under former Republican control.

Judge William H. Neely handed down the ruling immediately after Dist. Atty. Huette F. Dowling of Dauphin County recommended that a special panel be called to look into what Gov. Leader has described as "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

"The court feels," said Judge Neely "that the matter that has been brought to our attention should be investigated fairly and impartially and the truth established."

Reach Decision

A crowded courtroom greeted Judge Neely's decision, reached after a whispered conversation with his colleague, Judge Walter R. Sohn. The two judges sat en banc to hear the petition from Atty. Gen. Herbert B. Cohen asking for the special grand jury probe.

Cohen's request in the petition for a broadened probe of the superhighway agency was temporarily set aside. Judge Neely explained that the court will enlarge the scope of the investigation as is found necessary during the closed grand jury hearings.

HARRISBURG (AP)—A recruiting drive got under way in Pennsylvania Monday to secure more than 2,000 trained personnel for the state's mental hospitals. Gov. Leader said the goal is 2,300 persons.

"Only through proper staffing of the state's 23 institutional establishments can the number of discharges be increased and the prospects of recovery and cure be raised," Leader said in a statement.

KILLED IN CRASH

"I'm a Baptist," Kirby said.

"I'm a Baptist, too," said the jurist, "and I don't have any objections."

"Seven days in jail."

Weinberger Babe's Remains Are Buried

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP)—The remains of kidnap victim Peter Weinberger were buried on Sunday in a private service attended only by his grief-stricken family.

Peter—son of Morris and Beatrice Weinberger — was kidnaped from the patio of his parents' home here last July 4. He was 32 days old. His decomposed body was found Aug. 24 in a honeysuckle thicket six miles from here.

Angelo John LaMarca, 31, debt-ridden cab driver of nearby Plainview, was later indicted on kidnaping and murder charges, both punishable by death. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Trial was set for Oct. 1.

CALL TRUCE IN RANGE DISPUTE

WRIGHT CITY, Okla. (AP) — A temporary truce has been reached in McCurtain County's open range dispute, involving hogs and their invasion of ranches, highways, gardens, flower beds—even stores and the Methodist church.

Ranchers objected to the porkers scrambling over their property but squatters, who own little farm land but lots of swine, declared the southeast Oklahoma drought has burned up all pastures and only the little patches of grass along the roads stand between the animals and starvation.

The county commissioners voted yesterday to delay until Oct. 1 any action on a petition calling for a special election to decide whether hogs shall be allowed to run free. The petition seeks to halt the practice in two precincts around Wright City.

Louis Monroe, a rancher, estimated there are 700 to 800 hogs running loose in and around Wright City, a lumber mill town of about 1,200.

Typhoon Emma Brings Death, Loss

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Emma swept northeastward through the Sea of Japan Monday leaving 50 dead and multimillion-dolla losses in its wake in Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Winds in the center were down to 90 miles per hour when U. S. Air Force weather planes pinpointed it 200 miles northwest of southern Honshu, Japan. The winds had been 156 m.p.h. over Okinawa Saturday and 115 m.p.h. over Kyushu, Japan's southernmost home island, on Sunday.

The U. S. Army said Emma was "the worst typhoon disaster of the last decade" on Okinawa, site of numerous American bases, where it lasted 36 hours.

On The U. S. Political Front

By JAMES DEVLIN

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday the Republicans cannot take a single state for granted in the November election — partly because of what he called a "growing concern of late over the rising cost of living."

The Democratic presidential nominee carried his campaign into New England after charging in New Jersey that President Eisenhower's Republican administration is tainted with corruption and misconduct.

Stevenson, flying here from New York with Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, his running mate, told a conference of New England Democratic leaders in a prepared address:

"It already costs more today than ever before in American history to feed, clothe and house a family. The recent increase in a single month of three quarters of 1 per cent signals the threat of inflation.

"Feeling Pinch

"White collar workers and those on fixed incomes are already feeling the pinch."

Stevenson said many persons are in debt for automobiles, houses, refrigerators and other things. He and Kefauver, he said, had found in their travels across the country a "grave anxiety that our prosperity was too dependent on overexpansion of consumer credit."

"We do not find the American people in the state of Cow Palace contentment which the Republicans assume," he said, referring to the hall in which the Republicans held their San Francisco convention last month.

"Sen. Kefauver and I have encountered a widespread and sober concern over the absence of leadership in Washington, over the insecurity and want that discolors our prosperity, over the ugly disorders that warp the path of civil rights, over the deterioration of our political and military positions in the cold war, and over much else."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN BREAKS TROY'S JAW IN VICTORY

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Troy started a six-month vacation today and John L. Sullivan, the fellow who caused it, went looking for new fields to conquer.

Until he met up with Sullivan, a curly-haired bloke from England last night, Troy bragged of a record of sorts. He never had lost a fight by a decision. He had been knocked out five times in his 40 previous battles, but never, mind you, had he been on his feet at the end and dropped the duke.

Sullivan Seeks Opponents

Sullivan took care of this little matter at St. Nicholas Arena and also broke Willie's jaw in the bargain. So Troy will be on the shelf until next spring.

Sullivan, too, had his troubles.

"The only thing that annoyed me was that I bit my tongue in the 5th," he said. "I was licking my lips when he sneaked up and hit me."

Sullivan, who is only 23 but already has had 88 fights (65 victories), was invited back to St. Nick's on Oct. 8 but no opponent has been found for him yet.

"I never hit anyone harder," he commented. "Don't let anyone tell you he can't take it."

Sullivan had the better of it at the start, weakened in the middle rounds, and came on fast at the end. There were no knockdowns, and Sullivan didn't wrap it up until he began to connect with a looping overhand right in the eighth.

Sullivan weighed 162¼ to 160½ for Troy.

Referee Dave Feld called it 6-2-2 for Sullivan while Judge Bert Grant had him in front 7-3 and Judge Artie Schwartz 5-4-1. The Associated Press had it 6-3-1 for Sullivan.

GOVERNORS OF 13 STATES AT W. VA. MEETING

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The governors of 13 Southern and border states are now gathered at a fancy spa at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., to discuss mutual problems.

Curiously, the pattern of strife and violence in the South over school integration and civil rights for Negroes does not have a place on the official agenda, although it came up for discussion.

In the past year or so there have been shootings, cross burnings, boycotts, assorted mob actions and near race riots.

Burn Crosses

Crosses have been burned, apparently for the purpose of intimidation, in more than 50 places scattered from Jacksonville, Fla., to Bonham, Tex., and Charlottesville, Va.

The furtively placed anti-Negro symbols have been fired before the residence of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex), and Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Felix Frankfurter of the Supreme Court.

At a Ku Klux Klan rally in Jacksonville, Fla., a bed-sheeted speaker denounced the U.S Supreme Court, Catholics, Jews and Negroes equally as seekers after school integration.

Throughout the South, White Citizens Councils, Ku Klux Klan klaverns and other variously named anti-Negro groups have sprung up.

Mobs have sought to prevent school integration in compliance with federal court orders at Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Matoaka, W. Va.; Clinton, Tenn.; Dover, Del.; Texarkana and Mansfield, Tex.; Sturgis and Clay, Ky.

Negroes in search of equal rights have organized bus boycotts in Montgomery, Ala., and Tallahassee, Fla.

Negroes also organized economic boycotts in Orangeburg, S.C., and Jackson, Tenn., against business firm heads who took an active prosegregation stand.

Mysterious Murder

In Belzoni, Miss., the Rev. George Wesley Lee, an advocate of voting by Negroes, was mysteriously murdered. Gus Courts, a similar advocate, was shot by a group of white men in a separate unsolved incident.

The homes of two boycott leaders in Montgomery were rocked by bomb explosions.

In Trenton, Tenn., 300 Negroes nearly rioted after a white policeman shot one of their race in an arrest attempt.

Three white men were arrested in Knoxville, Tenn., for firing a shotgun into a Negro home where two boys, who had swiped a baseball from a white team on a nearby diamond, had taken refuge. A crowd of 2,000 white and Negro, armed with clubs, rocks and sticks nearly clashed in the aftermath.

Two attempts were made at Sorrento, Fla., to burn the home of Allen Platt, who said he was Cherokee Indian and Irish. His children were admitted by court order to a white school.

A Florence, S.C., newspaper editor abandoned his job after his paper was boycotted because of his efforts to preach moderation.

The home of another editor, Mrs. Mabel Reese Norris, was twice bombed at Tavares, Fla.

Fifteen Negro students and five faculty members at the South Carolina State College for Negroes were told not to return this year because they were supporters of the Orangeburg economic boycott.

There are other incidents in the pattern, but as far as the agenda of the governors' conference is concerned it doesn't exist.

PASTEETH, a pleasant alkaline (non-acid) powder, holds false teeth more firmly. To eat and talk in more comfort, just sprinkle a little PASTEETH on your plates. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get PASTEETH at any drug counter.

CALLS GOP TRIO "A PLAGUE" TO WORLD SECURITY

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sen. Barr, Democratic state chairman, says a coalition of Vice President Nixon and two Cabinet officials has "become a plague on domestic and international security."

"The people of the United States realize," Barr asserted, "that President Eisenhower has become the political captive of the most dangerous political cartel ever to gain control of the White House."

Barr said the coalition also comprised Atty. Gen. Brownell and Secretary of State Dulles.

Go Into Final Days

He made the comments in a weekend statement as Democrats went into the final days of strategy meetings before the kick-off of the fall election campaign at a $50-a-plate dinner at the State Farm Show Building Thursday.

Adlai Stevenson, the party's presidential candidate, will make his first network television campaign speech at the event.

Barr noted that the President invited 500 GOP campaign workers for a rally at his Gettysburg farm Wednesday and declared:

"The Republican army of the Potomac suffers from the enveloping fear that Mr. Stevenson's campaign is going irresistibly forward and that he will lead the Democratic party to its most historic victory in November."

Expect Crowd

Barr predicted an overflow crowd at Thursday's dinner. The goal of 10,000 tickets set by Barr would mean a gross of half a million dollars.

In other Democratic developments Joseph S. Clark, Democratic candidate for U.S. Senate, said he sent to his election opponent, U.S. Sen. James H. Duff (R—Pa) a letter citing Duff's voting record in Congress.

"During your last five years I understand you were absent and not paired on 255 out of 679 roll call votes or over 37 per cent of the time," Clark said. He read the letter in a televised broadcast last night over WCAU-TV, Philadelphia.

And in Pittsburgh all the Joe Smiths were invited to Thursday's fund-raising dinner. The Allegheny County Democratic Committee sent invitations to all 66 Joe Smiths in the telephone directory and said:

"The Democratic party wants you with us. We have arranged free train transportation for you and a free ticket for this dinner."

The letter noted that a mythical Joe Smith was placed in nomination for the vice presidency at the Republican National Convention and that Convention Chairman Joseph Martin said "take your 'Joe Smith', and get out of here."

On Tuesday, the Democratic State Executive Committee will meet to select nine candidates for the Legislature to fill vacancies caused by resignations, deaths or withdrawals.

Prior to the Thursday dinner the state committee will review campaign plans, hear from state candidates and draw up a supplement to the 1956 national platform.

State wide candidates will begin their organized tour of the commonwealth at Easton on Friday and may swing through some of the northern tier counties afterward.

STEVENSON'S HOPES BOOSTED BY MAINE VOTE

By JAMES DEVLIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson's hopes of winning the presidency gained new buoyancy today from Democratic Gov. Edmund Muskie's re-election in usually Republican Maine.

"The Republicans have always said 'As Maine goes, so goes the nation,'" said the Democratic presidential nominee.

"If that is the case, the outlook for Democrats is very good indeed."

"As Maine Goes"

Stevenson made the comment to newsmen after telephoning Muskie to congratulate him on what he called an "unprecedented victory."

Commenting on the election of Maine Democratic State Chairman Frank M. Coffin over Republican State Sen. James L. Reid for U.S. representative, Stevenson said:

"The remarkable performance of the Democratic congressional candidate indicates the national trend to the Democrats is still gaining momentum."

Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, Stevenson's running mate, echoed the "As Maine goes" chant and expressed confidence it would apply to the Democratic national ticket in November.

No Surprise

Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Stevenson's convention rival for the presidential nomination, was even more emphatic.

He said Muskie's victory was no surprise to him and that it gave assurance that Stevenson and Kefauver would oust President Eisenhower's Republican administration.

James A. Finnegan, Stevenson's campaign manager, said Muskie's victory was "all the more remarkable," because "the Republicans made this a test of President Eisenhower's popularity and influence with the voters."

Untied Leaders

These leaders learned of the Muskie victory from reports at LaGuardia Field last night at the conclusion of a Stevenson campaign swing to Hartford, Conn., and Albany, N.Y.

Stevenson and Harriman took pains at Albany to show that they are united for a Democratic victory in November despite their rivalry at the Chicago convention.

Harriman introduced Stevenson at a Democratic State Convention that nominated Mayor Robert F. Wagner of New York City to oppose Republican State Atty. Gen. Jacob K. Javits for the U.S. Senate seat that Democrat Herbert H. Lehman is relinquishing.

Tough Campaign

The governor heard Stevenson declare:

"Our differences in August did not scar our basic agreement about the things that count. We are all the stronger in September, and we will win in November."

Stevenson said he and Kefauver expected "to conduct the toughest and the hardest campaign this country has ever known."

Along this line, he attacked the Eisenhower administration as a "false front."

"This is government that denies to our hearts what it promises to our ears," he said amid applause.

Sinclair Announces

A NEW POWER DISCOVERY

New Super-Premium Sinclair Power-X Gasoline with X-Chemical Increases Power, Cuts Operating Costs as You Drive

Eliminates power-robbing engine deposits

90% more effective than any other gasoline additive in preventing spark plug fouling

70% more effective in stopping power loss from pre-ignition knock

All Cars Need It—Only Sinclair Has It

What makes a brand new car start to knock and lose power after a few thousand miles? What causes sluggish performance in older cars? The chief reason is carbon or other combustion deposits that form on spark plugs and pistons.

Now—for the first time in automotive history—a rare chemical has been developed that eliminates power-robbing engine deposits, thereby increasing power in older cars—retaining peak power in new cars.

Other gasoline additives, intended to combat spark plug fouling and pre-ignition, actually build up harmful deposits of their own. But Sinclair's new X-Chemical has none of these damaging after-effects. INSTEAD, IT CHANGES HARD, CRUSTY DEPOSITS INTO HARMLESS, POWDERY MATERIAL.

After just three tankfuls of new Super-Premium Power-X, you can feel the improvement in performance—provided you do not mix it with other gasoline. See your Sinclair Dealer and power up with new Sinclair Power-X Gasoline.

Popcorn Poll On Presidential Race

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Blevins thinks he knows how to find out who has the Presidential election victory in the bag — and he has already started popping the question in the popcorn poll.

Blevins doesn't go in for small scientific opinion samples. He plans a mass check on the sentiments of millions of popcorn eaters. Blevins is, of course, in the popcorn business.

He is putting out 25 million containers to vendors, half of them picturing the Republicans' Eisenhower-Nixon and half the Democrats' Stevenson-Kefauver. Certified public accountants will tabulate consumer preferences.

If you're inclined to take your popcorn polls with a grain of salt, consider this: Blevins says the 1952 popcorn vote called the turn precisely.

Two Tigresses Slay Their Male Cagemate

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two tigresses will live out their time at Cincinnati Zoo in spinsterhood after mauling to death their male cagemate in a savage battle yesterday.

The zoo veterinarian, Dr. B. W. Bernard, said the jungle cats "tend to be monogamous."

"If we put another male in there now, the tigresses would annihilate him," he said.

Zoo officials said there was no way of knowing what caused the fight.

Keepers said the attack on 5-year-old Rajah was apparently a surprise, with one female going for his throat and the other attacking his hind quarters.

The three had been together since they were kittens and never had trouble with each other before, even at feeding time.

Homer S. Cummings Dies In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Homer S. Cummings, who fought many of the New Deal's legal battles, is dead at the age of 86.

The death yesterday of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's first attorney general was attributed to heart failure. He left only a grandson, Schuyler Cummings of Miami, Fla.

Cummings had been in private law practice since retiring from the Roosevelt Cabinet 17 years ago. The long-time Democrat is remembered for his part in the Roosevelt administration's unsuccessful fight to put across legislation to empower the President to name one new Supreme Court justice for each sitting member over age 70. Authorship of this plan, derided by its foes as a "court packing" scheme, was credited to Cummings.

OIL EXECUTIVE SUMMONED FOR LOBBYING PROBE

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—An oil company president was summoned for questioning today about lobbying tactics by some of his employes. Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said "fraud" and "forgery" were involved in these activities.

Frank O. Prior, head of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was called before McClellan's special Senate committee which is searching for evidence of any illegal or improper efforts to influence senators or other government officials.

Yesterday, the committee heard that the company spent $1,500 or more last January to bombard Sen. Thye (R-Minn) with telegrams urging him to vote for the controversial natural gas bill. He voted against it and now is a member of the lobby probe group.

Without Permission

Witnesses said some of the telegrams were sent without the permission or knowledge of persons whose names were signed to them. But they said the firm's home office in Chicago never knew about this, or that the company was paying for 835 of the messages.

Committee aides said A. L. Nickerson, president of the Socony-Mobil Oil Corp. of New York City, and T. S. Petersen, president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, would be called then for interrogation about how their firms "express their interest in federal legislation" through lobbying.

The inquiry is an outgrowth of passage last February of a bill which sought to free natural gas producers from direct federal controls. Although he favored it in principle, President Eisenhower vetoed the bill because of what he called "arrogant" tactics by a segment of the oil-gas industry.

Called Fraud

McClellan called the sending of unauthorized telegrams "a fraud upon those whose names were used" and on the lawmakers receiving them. He termed the action "a form of forgery calculated to misinform and mislead." And he said that if the practice is not now a definite violation of law, Congress should act to make it a crime.

William C. Kniefel of Minneapolis, Northwestern regional manager for Standard of Indiana, testified that 835 of the telegrams to Thye "were paid for by the Standard Oil Co. at a total cost of approximately $1,500." He later said this might not represent the full expenditure, and agreed to file later a detailed cost report.

Charged To "Marketing"

Kniefel said the wires were charged on the company's books as "marketing expenses," but voiced doubt this listing was proper. McClellan said the matter "might be of interest" to the Internal Revenue Service if the telegram expenses are claimed for income tax deduction.

Kniefel said that in January he attended a meeting of lower echelon Standard of Indiana officials at which he said a decision was reached to solicit the sending of telegrams to Thye. He said he now realizes "we made some 'eager beaver' mistakes in our plans."

Popcorn Poll On Presidential Race

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jim Blevins thinks he knows how to find out who has the Presidential election victory in the bag — and he has already started popping the question in the popcorn poll.

Blevins doesn't go in for small scientific opinion samples. He plans a mass check on the sentiments of millions of popcorn eaters. Blevins is, of course, in the popcorn business.

He is putting out 25 million containers to vendors, half of them picturing the Republicans' Eisenhower-Nixon and half the Democrats' Stevenson-Kefauver. Certified public accountants will tabulate consumer preferences.

If you're inclined to take your popcorn polls with a grain of salt, consider this: Blevins says the 1952 popcorn vote called the turn precisely.

Two Tigresses Slay Their Male Cagemate

CINCINNATI (AP)—Two tigresses will live out their time at Cincinnati Zoo in spinsterhood after mauling to death their male cagemate in a savage battle yesterday.

The zoo veterinarian, Dr. B. W. Bernard, said the jungle cats "tend to be monogamous."

"If we put another male in there now, the tigresses would annihilate him," he said.

Zoo officials said there was no way of knowing what caused the fight.

Keepers said the attack on 5-year-old Rajah was apparently a surprise, with one female going for his throat and the other attacking his hind quarters.

The three had been together since they were kittens and never had trouble with each other before, even at feeding time.

Homer S. Cummings Dies In Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — Homer S. Cummings, who fought many of the New Deal's legal battles, is dead at the age of 86.

The death yesterday of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's first attorney general was attributed to heart failure. He left only a grandson, Schuyler Cummings of Miami, Fla.

Cummings had been in private law practice since retiring from the Roosevelt Cabinet 17 years ago. The long-time Democrat is remembered for his part in the Roosevelt administration's unsuccessful fight to put across legislation to empower the President to name one new Supreme Court justice for each sitting member over age 70. Authorship of this plan, derided by its foes as a "court packing" scheme, was credited to Cummings.

OIL EXECUTIVE SUMMONED FOR LOBBYING PROBE

By G. MILTON KELLY

WASHINGTON (AP)—An oil company president was summoned for questioning today about lobbying tactics by some of his employes. Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) said "fraud" and "forgery" were involved in these activities.

Frank O. Prior, head of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, was called before McClellan's special Senate committee which is searching for evidence of any illegal or improper efforts to influence senators or other government officials.

Yesterday, the committee heard that the company spent $1,500 or more last January to bombard Sen. Thye (R-Minn) with telegrams urging him to vote for the controversial natural gas bill. He voted against it and now is a member of the lobby probe group.

Without Permission

Witnesses said some of the telegrams were sent without the permission or knowledge of persons whose names were signed to them. But they said the firm's home office in Chicago never knew about this, or that the company was paying for 835 of the messages.

Committee aides said A. L. Nickerson, president of the Socony-Mobil Oil Corp. of New York City, and T. S. Petersen, president of the Standard Oil Co. of California, would be called then for interrogation about how their firms "express their interest in federal legislation" through lobbying.

The inquiry is an outgrowth of passage last February of a bill which sought to free natural gas producers from direct federal controls. Although he favored it in principle, President Eisenhower vetoed the bill because of what he called "arrogant" tactics by a segment of the oil-gas industry.

Called Fraud

McClellan called the sending of unauthorized telegrams "a fraud upon those whose names were used" and on the lawmakers receiving them. He termed the action "a form of forgery calculated to misinform and mislead." And he said that if the practice is not now a definite violation of law, Congress should act to make it a crime.

William C. Kniefel of Minneapolis, Northwestern regional manager for Standard of Indiana, testified that 835 of the telegrams to Thye "were paid for by the Standard Oil Co. at a total cost of approximately $1,500." He later said this might not represent the full expenditure, and agreed to file later a detailed cost report.

Charged To "Marketing"

Kniefel said the wires were charged on the company's books as "marketing expenses," but voiced doubt this listing was proper. McClellan said the matter "might be of interest" to the Internal Revenue Service if the telegram expenses are claimed for income tax deduction.

Kniefel said that in January he attended a meeting of lower echelon Standard of Indiana officials at which he said a decision was reached to solicit the sending of telegrams to Thye. He said he now realizes "we made some 'eager beaver' mistakes in our plans."

CHESTER TIMES RESUMES TODAY

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The Chester Times resumed publication today after two newsless days—Saturday and Monday—caused by the strike of members of the American Newspaper Guild.

The walkout that began early Saturday was settled yesterday when negotiators for management and union announced the signing of a new two-year contract that raises the top minimum salary for reporters immediately to $119.50.

Robert S. Howard, Times publisher, and I. Michael Segal, president of the Newspaper Guild of Greater Philadelphia, announced in a joint statement that the job security clause, crux of the dispute which led to the strike, was "basically the same as the one in the expired contract." It provides for arbitration of any dismissals.

Newsmen and office employes were granted a wage increase of $4 and $3, retroactive to Sept. 1, and raises of $3 and $2 on Sept. 1, 1957.

Also, effective next Sept. 1, the work week will be reduced from 40 hours to 37½.

ATTACKS DUFF'S FARM POLICY

SAYRE, Pa. (AP)—Democrat Joseph Clark says the future of the Pennsylvania farmer "will be dim indeed if we have to depend on" Sen. James Duff (R-Pa), his opponent in the November election for Duff's Senate post.

Carrying his campaign yesterday through four northeastern Pennsylvania towns, Clark said Duff "has done nothing to help the farmer close the gap between low prices paid for farm products and high prices paid by consumers."

Promised Expansion

The former mayor of Philadelphia, said that if he were elected, he would work for the expansion of markets for the Pennsylvania farmer.

Clark said there were three million Pennsylvanians in families with incomes of less than $2,500 and asserted that "if we raise their purchasing power, it will help the farmer sell his product at better prices and help him buy the things he needs."

Clark said Duff's record showed his Republican opponent voted consistently for big business. At the same time, Clark renewed his attack on Duff's attendance record in the Senate.

Today, Clark's scheduled takes him to Dushore, Sullivan County; Danville and Lewisburg.

SOUTH CAROLINA ENTRY WINS AT ATLANTIC CITY

ATLANTIC CITY, N J (AP)—A drawling Southern girl who likes to take life easy is off to a flying start in her hectic one-year reign as Miss America.

Marian McKnight of South Carolina had only two hours sleep after winning the coveted title late Saturday night when she was routed out of bed on Sunday to face the press and photographers.

Then she took off for New York for another press conference and three television appearances Monday.

Routine To Change

Sipping orange juice, the 19-year-old blonde showed a sense of humor and calm self-assurance in cataloging her likes and dislikes to newsmen.

"I like to go to bed late and to sleep late," Miss McKnight said.

Lenora Slaughter, director of the Miss America Pageant, broke in to say that this "routine" will be reversed

$50,000 Jackpot

"It's go to bed early and get up early for Miss America," said Miss Slaughter. A $50,000 jackpot goes with the title, including a $5,000 scholarship, a wardrobe and fees for personal appearances during the coming year.

Other top finishers were Miss District of Columbia, Margo Lucey, 20, first runnerup who gets a $3,000 scholarship, Miss Alabama, Barbara Hilgenberg, 18, of Tucson; and Miss Kansas, Mary Ann McGrew, 19, of Wellington. $2,000 scholarships each.

Miss Pennsylvania, Lorna M Ringler, 18, of Upper Darby, failed to place in the top 10 but received a $1 000 scholarship as the best "pop" singer in the talent contests.

Betty Jordan of Indianapolis bowled a 278, high game in the Women's International Bowling Congress Tournament.

Cypriot Rebels Attack French

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Cypriot rebels made their first attack on Sunday on French troops of Cyprus booming "Suez garrison" The rebels inflicted no casualties on the French, but they killed a Greek Cypriot and wounded five British soldiers in other attacks

Authorities blamed all the incidents on EOKA, the Greek Cypriot underground which has been fighting since April 1, 1955, to oust the British from this crown colony and annex the island to Greece

The French forces came under attack only 10 days after they began arriving on Cyprus, Britain's main Middle Eastern base, for the avowed purpose of protecting French nationals and their interests in the dispute over Egypt's nationalization of the Suez Canal.

ORDER PROBE OF TURNPIKE

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Dauphin County Court Monday ordered a grand jury investigation of operations of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission under former Republican control.

Judge William H Neely handed down the ruling immediately after Dist. Atty Huette F. Dowling of Dauphin County recommended that a special panel be called to look into what Gov. Leader has described as "one of the greatest public swindles of all time."

"The court feels," said Judge Neely "that the matter that has been brought to our attention should be investigated fairly and impartially and the truth established"

Reach Decision

A crowded courtroom greeted Judge Neely's decision, reached after a whispered conversation with his colleague, Judge Walter R. Sohn. The two judges sat en banc to hear the petition from Atty. Gen. Herbert B. Cohen asking for the special grand jury probe.

Cohen's request in the petition for a broadened probe of the superhighway agency was temporarily set aside. Judge Neely explained that the court will enlarge the scope of the investigation as is found necessary during the closed grand jury hearings.

HARRISBURG (AP)—A recruiting drive got under way in Pennsylvania Monday to secure more than 2,000 trained personnel for the state's mental hospitals. Gov. Leader said the goal is 2,300 persons.

"Only through proper staffing of the state's 23 institutional establishments can the number of discharges be increased and the prospects of recovery and cure be raised," Leader said in a statement.

Weinberger Babe's Remains Are Buried

WESTBURY N Y (AP)—The remains of kidnap victim Peter Weinberger were buried on Sunday in a private service attended only by his grief-stricken family

Peter—son of Morris and Beatrice Weinberger — was kidnaped from the patio of his parents' home here last July 4. He was 32 days old. His decomposed body was found Aug. 24 in a honeysuckle thicket six miles from here.

Angelo John LaMarca, 31, debt-ridden cab driver of nearby Plainview, was later indicted on kidnaping and murder charges, both punishable by death. He pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Trial was set for Oct. 1.

CALL TRUCE IN RANGE DISPUTE

WRIGHT CITY, Okla. (AP) — A temporary truce has been reached in McCurtain County's open range dispute, involving hogs and their invasion of ranches, highways, gardens, flower beds—even stores and the Methodist church

Ranchers objected to the porkers scrambling over their property but squatters, who own little farm land but lots of swine, declared the southeast Oklahoma drought has burned up all pastures and only the little patches of grass along the roads stand between the animals and starvation

The county commissioners voted yesterday to delay until Oct 1 any action on a petition calling for a special election to decide whether hogs shall be allowed to run free. The petition seeks to halt the practice in two precincts around Wright City.

Louis Monroe, a rancher, estimated there are 700 to 800 hogs running loose in and around Wright City, a lumber mill town of about 1,200.

Typhoon Emma Brings Death, Loss

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Emma swept northeastward through the Sea of Japan Monday leaving 50 dead and multimillion-dolla losses in its wake in Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines.

Winds in the center were down to 90 miles per hour when U. S Air Force weather planes pinpointed it 200 miles northwest of southern Honshu, Japan. The winds had been 156 mph. over Okinawa Saturday and 115 m p.h over Kyushu, Japan's southernmost home island, on Sunday.

The U. S. Army said Emma was "the worst typhoon disaster of the last decade" on Okinawa, site of numerous American bases, where it lasted 36 hours.

On The U. S. Political Front

By JAMES DEVLIN

HARTFORD, Conn (AP)—Adlai E Stevenson said Monday the Republicans cannot take a single state for granted in the November election — partly because of what he called a "growing concern of late over the rising cost of living"

The Democratic presidential nominee carried his campaign into New England after charging in New Jersey that President Eisenhower's Republican administration is tainted with corruption and misconduct.

Stevenson, flying here from New York with Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee his running mate, told a conference of New England Democratic leaders in a prepared address:

"It already costs more today than ever before in American history to feed, clothe and house a family. The recent increase in a single month of three quarters of 1 per cent signals the threat of inflation.

"Feeling Pinch

"White collar workers and those on fixed incomes are already feeling the pinch"

Stevenson said many persons are in debt for automobiles, houses, refrigerators and other things. He and Kefauver, he said, had found in their travels across the country a "grave anxiety that our prosperity was too dependent on overexpansion of consumer credit."

"We do not find the American people in the state of Cow Palace contentment which the Republicans assume," he said, referring to the hall in which the Republicans held their San Francisco convention last month.

"Sen Kefauver and I have encountered a widespread and sober concern over the absence of leadership in Washington, over the insecurity and want that discolors our prosperity, over the ugly disorders that warp the path of civil rights, over the deterioration of our political and military positions in the cold war, and over much else."

JOHN L. SULLIVAN BREAKS TROY'S JAW IN VICTORY

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Troy started a six-month vacation today and John L. Sullivan, the fellow who caused it, went looking for new fields to conquer.

Until he met up with Sullivan, a curly-haired bloke from England last night, Troy bragged of a record of sorts. He never had lost a fight by a decision He had been knocked out five times in his 40 previous battles, but never, mind you, had he been on his feet at the end and dropped the duke.

Sullivan Seeks Opponents

Sullivan took care of this little matter at St Nicholas Arena and also broke Willie's jaw in the bargain. So Troy will be on the shelf until next spring.

Sullivan, too, had his troubles

"The only thing that annoyed me was that I bit my tongue in the 5th," he said. "I was licking my lips when he sneaked up and hit me."

Sullivan, who is only 23 but already has had 88 fights (65 victories), was invited back to St. Nick's on Oct. 8 but no opponent has been found for him yet.

"I never hit anyone harder," he commented. "Don't let anyone tell you he can't take it."

Sullivan had the better of it at the start, weakened in the middle rounds, and came on fast at the end. There were no knockdowns, and Sullivan didn't wrap it up until he began to connect with a looping overhand right in the eighth.

Sullivan weighed 162¾ to 160½ for Troy.

Referee Dave Feld called it 6-2-2 for Sullivan while Judge Bert Grant had him in front 7-3 and Judge Artie Schwartz 5-4-1. The Associated Press had it 6-3-1 for Sullivan.

THE GETTYSBURG TIMES

Volume 54 — Gettysburg, Pa., Tuesday Evening, Sept. 11, 1956 — Number 2

Sesqui Centennial Edition

...oo—The House of Gen. James Gettys, Founder ...

This is a photograph of the house of General James Gettys, founder of Gettysburg. The Gettys home stood in the rear of the present Codori home on York St. which Gettys built. The original Gettys home has long since been razed. The picture is one of the earliest dating back to the turn of the 19th century.

Mrs. Isabella Gettys, Her Son James, His Wife, Mary, Expired Within Five Days

The strange mortality rate of the Gettys family is one of notable facts in the history of Gettysburg.

For fifteen years James Gettys was one of the leading citizens of Adams County and Gettysburg, the most public spirited citizen in the new county he had helped to create, the most liberal inhabitant of the town he had founded. He was foremost in all enterprises. He had enjoyed high political preferment from his people.

Yet this Rider of the Pale Horse rode through this territory and in less than a week bore away the larger part of the family, leaving two young sons. A few years later one of these sons is dead and the sole survivior has left town and county his father had founded and helped to create, to make a home for himself in Tennessee. The irony of life again and again presents such a combination of circumstances.

On Sunday, March 12, 1815, Mrs. Isabella Gettys, mother of James Gettys, passed away, leaving her son a heritage of good old age, dying in her 84th year.

Son Dies Next Day

Next day, Monday, March 13, James Gettysburg expires.

Four days later, Friday, March 17, Mary Todd Gettys, passes away.

The only paper published in the town at that time was the Adams Centinel. The papers of that date did not have the slightest conception of what local news was. A newspaper contained some speech months before, or a lot of foreign happenings. The home news received the minutest mention. The following is the entire record made of the Gettys family in the issue of Wednesday, March 15, 1815:

"On Sunday (March 12), last in this borough, Mrs. Isabella Gettys in the 84th year of her age, mother of General James Gettys."

"On Monday (March 13) we last General James Gettys, proprietor of the town in the 56th year of his age. Mr. Gettys had been in a healthy habit previous to the present attack of fever which was on Sunday evening of the 5th, shortly after his return from church. As a husband and a father Mr. Gettys was peculiarly affectionate and indulgent, as a friend he was sincere and as a companion, polite, social and cheerful."

Deaths Are Reported

In the "Centinel" of the following week appears the following:

"Died on Friday (March 17), last in this borough, in the 48th year of her age, Mrs. Mary Gettys, relict of General James Gettys, who deceased the Monday preceding."

The monument erected in the Evergreen Cemetery was erected many years later by the surviving son, James Gettys, and has on the face of the shaft a medallion head of James Gettys. In front of the monument rests a large metal hound and the animal tells another story of the proprietor, or rather two of them, one that he was a lover of the animal kingdom and the other that he had an Irish love for a joke, even if rather bald.

Fond Of His Dog

The dog was put at his grave because of his known fondness for the animal and several that he owned. It is said that a large hound owned by the proprietor wore a collar bearing this legend: "I'm James Gettys' dog, whose dog are you." It is said a collar bearing the same inscription was put around the dog in the cemetery lot but in a few years was removed.

Searching the records of the county for facts in the life of the proprietor of Gettysburg the vendue made by the executor of James Gettys was found and by it much interesting data has been made to appear. There is no question of his love for the animal kingdom for he owned horses; among these was his special favorite, a sorrel horse. Cows, and they seemed to have been selected with some idea of color, hogs, sheep, ram, goats, turkeys, etc. This sale was held on March 31, 1815, over ninety years ago, and prices, articles and names present such a story of almost a century ago that it is proposed to give many extracts from it.

This is an old view of Chambersburg St. looking west from Lincoln Square. Many of the photographs in the present anniversary edition of The Times were taken by William Tipton whose photographic gallery is advertised by the large sign atop the building.

CHESTER TIMES RESUMES TODAY

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The Chester Times resumed publication today after two newsless days—Saturday and Monday—caused by the strike of members of the American Newspaper Guild.

The walkout that began early Saturday was settled yesterday when negotiators for management and union announced the signing of a new two-year contract that raises the top minimum salary for reporters immediately to $119.50.

Robert S. Howard, Times publisher, and I. Michael Segal, president of the Newspaper Guild of Greater Philadelphia, announced in a joint statement that the job security clause, crux of the dispute which led to the strike, was "basically the same as the one in the expired contract." It provides for arbitration of any dismissals.

Newsmen and office employes were granted a wage increase of $4 and $3, retroactive to Sept. 1, and raises of $3 and $2 on Sept. 1, 1957.

Also, effective next Sept. 1, the work week will be reduced from 40 hours to 37½.

ATTACKS DUFF'S FARM POLICY

SAYRE, Pa. (AP)—Democrat Joseph Clark says the future of the Pennsylvania farmer "will be dim indeed if we have to depend on" Sen. James Duff (R-Pa), his opponent in the November election for Duff's Senate post.

Carrying his campaign yesterday through four northeastern Pennsylvania towns, Clark said Duff "has done nothing to help the farmer close the gap between low prices paid for farm products and high prices paid by consumers."

Promised Expansion

The former mayor of Philadelphia, said that if he were elected, he would work for the expansion of markets for the Pennsylvania farmer.

Clark said there were three million Pennsylvanians in families with incomes of less than $2,500 and asserted that "if we raise their purchasing power, it will help the farmer sell his product at better prices and help him buy the things he needs."

Clark said Duff's record showed his Republican opponent voted consistently for big business. At the same time, Clark renewed his attack on Duff's attendance record in the Senate.

Today, Clark's scheduled takes him to Dushore, Sullivan County; Danville and Lewisburg.

Ready To Serve Country

The fact that James Gettys was a hunter and prepared to fight in defense of his country would appear from the assortment of firearms sold.

Christian Benner, gun ..... $ 7.25
Peter Crumer, gun and powder horn 7.00
James Gettys, Jr., gun and powder horn 4.00

That the proprietor was an educated man, probably among the first scholars of Rev. Alexander Dobbin in the first classical school established west of the Susquehanna, in the Dobbin home, would appear from his library. He must have possessed a good library for those days, and from its make up, he evidently was fond of the English classics, his favorite poet was Robbie Burns, and history was a favorite line of his reading.

He must have been familiar with the Bible, being a blue stocking Presbyterian, and for his Sunday resorted to Knox's Essays or book of sermons. Such of the books as are designated by their titles are the following as they appear in the vendue:

James Rowan, Bible ..... $ 1.00
Nicholas Crumbaugh, dictionary 1.20
Alex. Russell, 2 vols. Burns' Works 2.25
Alex Russell, History of England 1.00
James Gettys, Jr., 4 vols Scottish Register 2.10
James Rowan, Discarded Son, 2 vols. 1.30
Adam Swope, Knox's Essays 1.00
Jno. Bowers, Constitution 1.20
Jno. Jenkins, Ovid's Geography 1.30
James Gettys, Jr., Smith's Sermons ..... .60
John Watkin, Bible ..... .51
Ralph Lashelles, 10 vols. Laws of Pa. 7.50
Alex. Cobean, 69 vols. of the British Classics at 90 ..... 62.10
John Ewing, Bible 4.00

Those were the days when only the doctor owned a gig or chaise, but the rest of the people traveled on foot or horseback, and James Gettys was no exception to the rule. No vehicle other than a wagon can be found in the entire vendue. These second hand wagons must have been of the good old homemade kind as they bring good prices.

Andrew Walker, wagon ..... $ 20.00
Jacob Wertz, wagon 40.50

The usual method of conveyance by saddle appears in these items:

Josiah Coulter, small saddle $ 2.25
James Guinn, wagon saddle 3.00
Daniel Benar, wagon saddle 8.25
Peter Van Dyke, one side saddle ..... .35
Sam'l Hutchison, side saddle 12.00

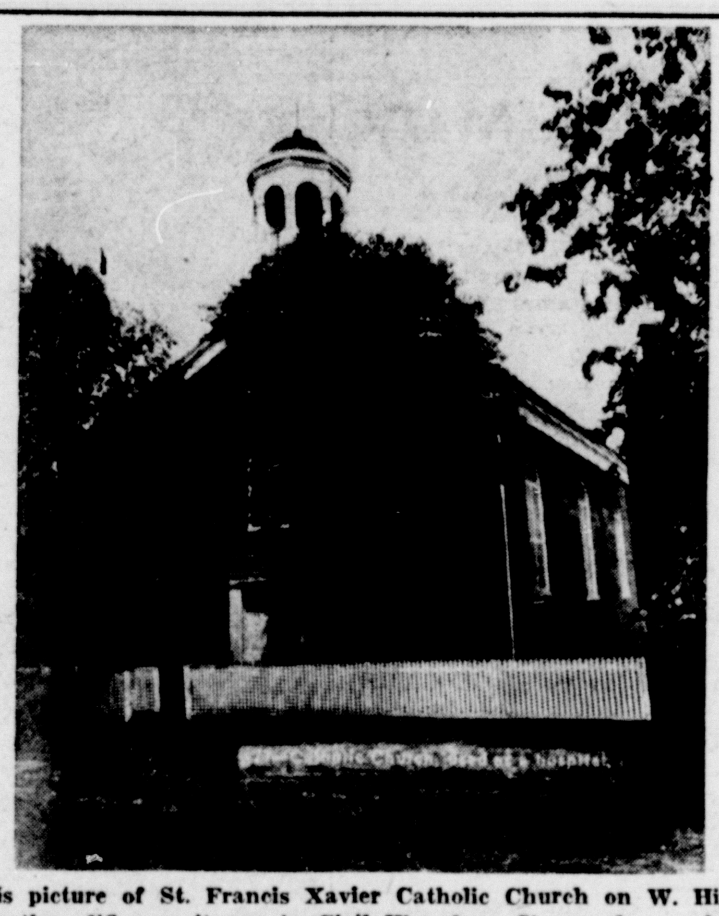
That the proprietor had a fondness for music and perhaps could make it himself would be indicated by the following item:

Wm. McClean, violin ..... $ 1.30

One of the most remarkable exhibits of this old time vendue is the high price of farm crops, and produce, comparing more with modern prosperous times than one associates with an age when a country is being settled.

Rye sold at 75 cents a bushel, buckwheat at 70 cents, hay at $11.75 a ton, flax at 37½ cents a pound, potatoes at 65 to 70 cents a bushel, flour at $3.50 to $4.00 per hundred, apples at $1.00 a bushel, beef at 10 to 16 cents a pound, lard at 15 to 16 cents a pound, ham 17 cents, bacon at 14 and 15 cts., corn at 72 cents a bushel, wool at 53 cents a pound, tallow at 19 cents a pound, rye straw, bundles at 5½ cents apiece.

That far-away day distinguishes itself from the present day in the matter of furniture. Everything was homemade, made by the cabinetmaker of the town. One could not go to a furniture store and furnish his house with every necessary article in a day's time. It took months for the cabinetmaker to get enough furniture together for one to begin housekeeping. This condition made the furniture put up at auction valuable, such as second-hand furniture of the present age could never have, and what was true of furniture applied to the linens of the house, that had to be made at home, spun out of the flax. This condition appears in the following items:



This picture of St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church on W. High St. shows the edifice as it was in Civil War days. It served as a hospital during and after the Battle of Gettysburg.

The total of the vendue reached the sum of $2,611.45 a goodly amount of household and kitchen furniture for those days, and did not include his turnpike and bank stock and other personal property, nor any part of his real estate.

(From The Gettysburg Compiler, May 6, 1908.)

CAPTURED BEE

Charles Lady of this place, captured a bee one day last week. Mr. Lady was informed that the bee was hanging on a board at Wolf's Lumber yard. He immediately procured a box, went to the place and gently placed the bees therein without being stung. (1906)

BASE BALL

The Gettysburg College team defeated Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg last Wednesday by the score of 2-0. The game was a good one and Pitcher Kauffman did fine work for the Gettysburg team.

This afternoon the return game will be played on Nixon Field. (1906)

CAPTURED BEE

Charles Lady of this place, captured a bee one day last week. Mr. Lady was informed that the bee was hanging on a board at Wolf's Lumber yard. He immediately procured a box, went to the place and gently placed the bees therein without being stung. (1906)

BASE BALL

The Gettysburg College team defeated Mount St. Mary's at Emmitsburg last Wednesday by the score of 2-0. The game was a good one and Pitcher Kauffman did fine work for the Gettysburg team.

This afternoon the return game will be played on Nixon Field. (1906)

WIDOW AND TWO SONS RECEIVE GETTYS ESTATE

When James Gettys, the founder of Gettysburg, died he bequeathed his entire estate, including a mulatto girl servant, to his widow and two sons. His will, dated March 11, 1815, follows in full:

"In the name of God Amen. I James Gettys of the Borough of Gettysburg in the County of Adams and State of Pennsylvania, being weak and sick in body, but of sound and disposing mind and memory (thanks to be God for the same) do make and publish this my last Will and Testament in manner and form following, viz:

"Principally and first of all, I commend my immortal Soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be buried in a decent and Christian-like manner at the discretion of my executors hereinafter named. And as to such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life, I give and dispose of the same in the following manner, viz:

Three Share Estate

"First. It is my will, and I order and direct that all my just debts and funeral expenses shall be first paid out of my estate by my executors hereinafter named.

"Item. I give, bequeath and devise my whole estate real, personal and mixed of what kind and nature the same may be wheresoever found, unto my well beloved wife Mary Gettys and to my two sons, James Gettys and Robert Todd Gettys, to be divided equally amongst them share and share alike, to hold to them, their heirs and assigns forever.

"Item. It is my will and I order and direct that my executors hereinafter named shall sell and dispose of such parts of my real estate as they may find necessary and convenient either for the education and support of my family or the payment of debts, who or the survivor of them are hereby empowered to convey the same to the purchaser or purchasers, and also to make execute and deliver all and every such deed or deeds, conveyance or conveyances, as I myself of right ought to have made and to fulfil all my legal contracts.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my well beloved wife my mulatto girl Sidney, over and above her share as aforesaid, and order that my executors shall sell thirty shares of my stock in the Bank of Gettysburg instead of real estate as above unless that also should be necessary and to sell and transfer all my stock in the Gettysburg and Petersburg turnpike road.

Sells Lot To Cobean

"Item. I order and direct that my said wife Mary Gettys shall convey to my other executor hereinafter named, Alexander Cobean, Esq., a certain meadow lot sold him agreeably to our contract, containing about nine acres more or less.

"And lastly I nominate, constitute and appoint my well beloved wife, Mary Gettys and my friend Alexander Cobean, Esq., to be the executors of this my will hereby revoking all other wills, legacies and bequests by me heretofore made and declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this eleventh day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifteen.

(Signed) "James Gettys"

The Hotel Gettysburg looked like this about 1880 when it was called the McClellan House. While the streets were broad even then traffic was restricted to carriages and horses and wagons. The photographer was looking down Carlisle St.

CONCERT

Better even than was expected will be the concert in Brua Chapel this (Wednesday) evening, for the benefit of the Presbyterian organ fund. Master John Lane Smith, the soprano who takes the place of Master Hann has a rich and clear voice. Master Robert Armbruste is a wonderful little musician having won such notice that he has been invited to give a recital at the White House. (1906)

Mrs. Isabella Gettys, Her Son James, His Wife, Mary, Expired Within Five Days

The strange mortality rate of the Gettys family is one of notable facts in the history of Gettysburg.

For fifteen years James Gettys was one of the leading citizens of Adams County and Gettysburg, the most public spirited citizen in the new county he had helped to create, the most liberal inhabitant of the town he had founded. He was foremost in all enterprises. He had enjoyed high political preferment from his people.

Yet this Rider of the Pale Horse rode through this territory and in less than a week bore away the larger part of the family, leaving two young sons. A few years later one of these sons is dead and the sole survivior has left town and county his father had founded and helped to create, to make a home for himself in Tennessee. The irony of life again and again presents such a combination of circumstances.

On Sunday, March 12, 1815, Mrs. Isabella Gettys, mother of James Gettys, passed away, leaving her son a heritage of good old age, dying in her 84th year.

Son Dies Next Day

Next day, Monday, March 13, James Gettysburg expires.

Four days later, Friday, March 17, Mary Todd Gettys, passes away.

The only paper published in the town at that time was the Adams Centinel. The papers of that date did not have the slightest conception of what local news was. A newspaper contained some speech months before, or a lot of foreign happenings. The home news received the minutest mention. The following is the entire record made of the Gettys family in the issue of Wednesday, March 16, 1815:

"On Sunday (March 12), last in this borough, Mrs. Isabella Gettys in the 84th year of her age, mother of General James Gettys."

"On Monday (March 13) we last General James Gettys, proprietor of the town in the 56th year of his age. Mr. Gettys had been in a healthy habit previous to the present attack of fever which was on Sunday evening of the 5th, shortly after his return from church. As a husband and a father Mr. Gettys was peculiarly affectionate and indulgent, as a friend he was sincere and as a companion, polite, social and cheerful."

Deaths Are Reported

In the "Centinel" of the following week appears the following:

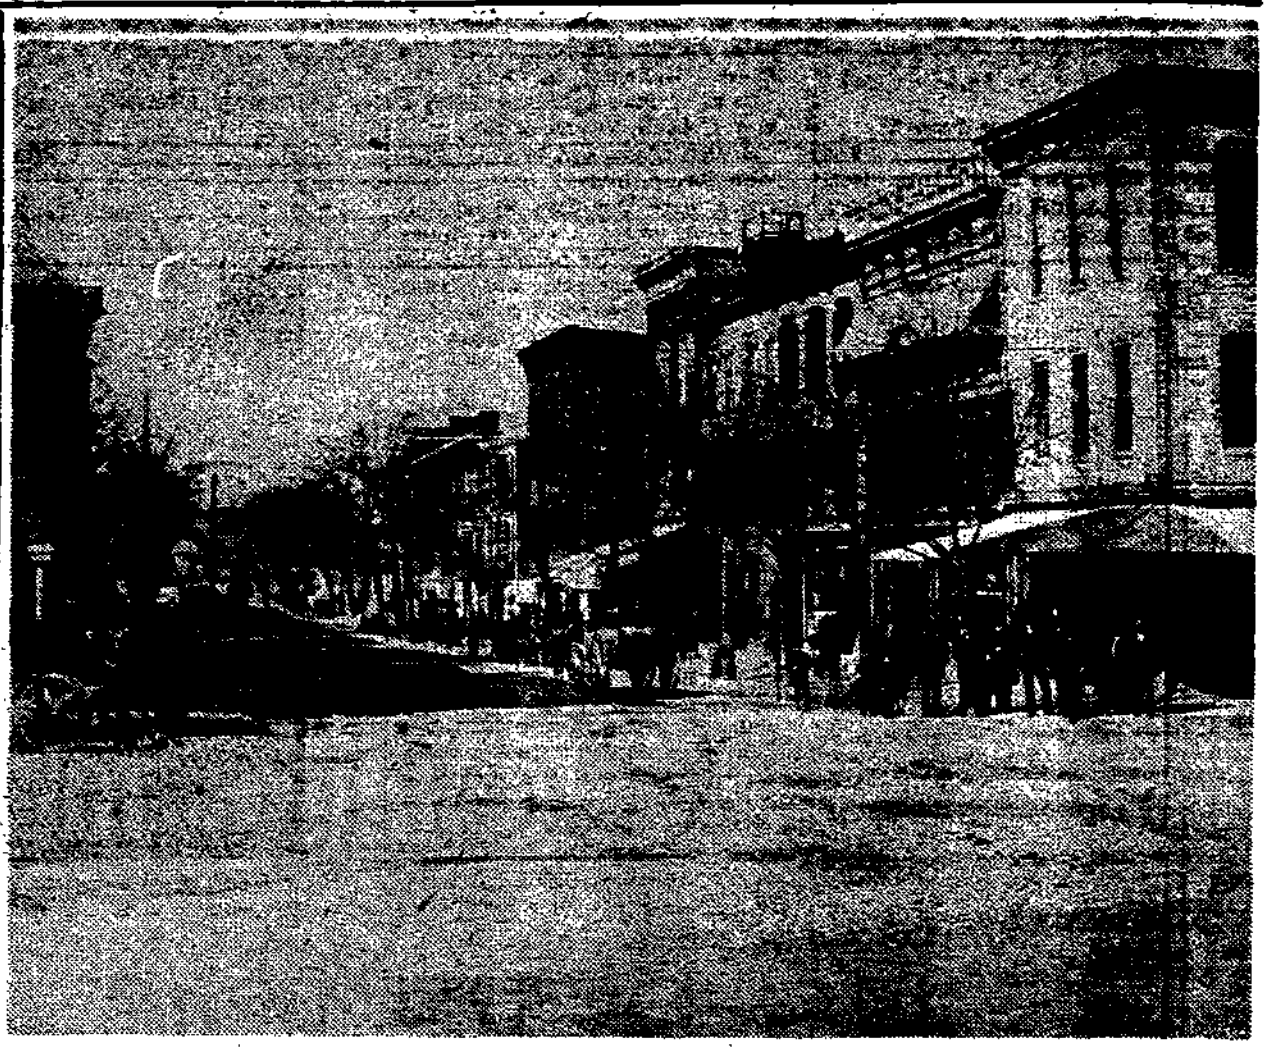
"Died on Friday (March 17), last in this borough, in the 48th year of her age, Mrs. Mary Gettys, relict of General James Gettys, who deceased the Monday preceding."

The monument erected in the Evergreen Cemetery was erected many years later by the surviving son, James Gettys, and has on the face of the shaft a medallion head of James Gettys. In front of the monument rests a large metal hound and the animal tells another story of the proprietor, or rather two of them, one that be was a lover of the animal kingdom and the other that he had an Irish love for a joke, even if rather bald.

Fond Of His Dog

The dog was put at his grave because of his known fondness for the animal and several that he owned. It is said that a large hound owned by the proprietor wore a collar bearing this legend: "I'm James Gettys' dog, whose dog are you." It is said a collar bearing the same inscription was put around the dog in the cemetery lot but in a few years was removed.

Searching the records of the county for facts in the life of the proprietor of Gettysburg the vendue made by the executor of James Gettys was found and by it much interesting data has been made to appear. There is no question of his love for the animal kingdom for he owned horses; among these was his special favorite, a sorrel horse. Cows, and they seemed to have been selected with some idea of color, hogs, sheep, ram, goats, turkeys, etc. This sale was held on March 31, 1815, over ninety years ago, and prices, articles and names present such a story of almost a century ago that it is proposed to give many extracts from it.



This is an old view of Chambersburg St. looking west from Lincoln Square. Many of the photographs in the present anniversary edition of The Times were taken by William Tipton whose photographic gallery is advertised by the large sign atop the building.

Large Crowd At Dedication Of Monument

A large crowd attended the exercises for the dedication of a monument to General Charles H. T. Collis erected in the Gettysburg National Cemetery in May, 1906. The Star and Sentinel reported the affair as follows:

The monument erected to the memory of the late Gen. Charles H. T. Collis by the surviving members of his old command, the One Hundred and Fourteenth Pennsylvania Regiment (Collis Zouaves) was appropriately dedicated Sunday afternoon in the National Cemetery in the presence of a large assembly.

The exercises were in charge of Frank Patrick, of Philadelphia, President of the Association, and were opened with prayer by A. W. Givins, Chaplain of the 114th. Judge Ashman delivered the principal address in which he portrayed the career of the dead hero as a citizen and soldier. When Mr. Ashman had finished his address Col. E. R. Bower, chairman of the monument committee, made a report and turned the monument over to the Association. It was accepted by Mr. Patrick on behalf of the Association, who in turn presented it to Superintendent Hamilton, a representative of the Government.

In receiving it Mr. Hamilton made a brief but appropriate address, assuring the survivors of the 114th that so long as he remained the Superintendent of the Cemetery, and beyond doubt for all time to come, the memorial would be properly cared for. The exercises were closed with prayer and benediction by Rev. Edward H. True, of the Episcopal church.

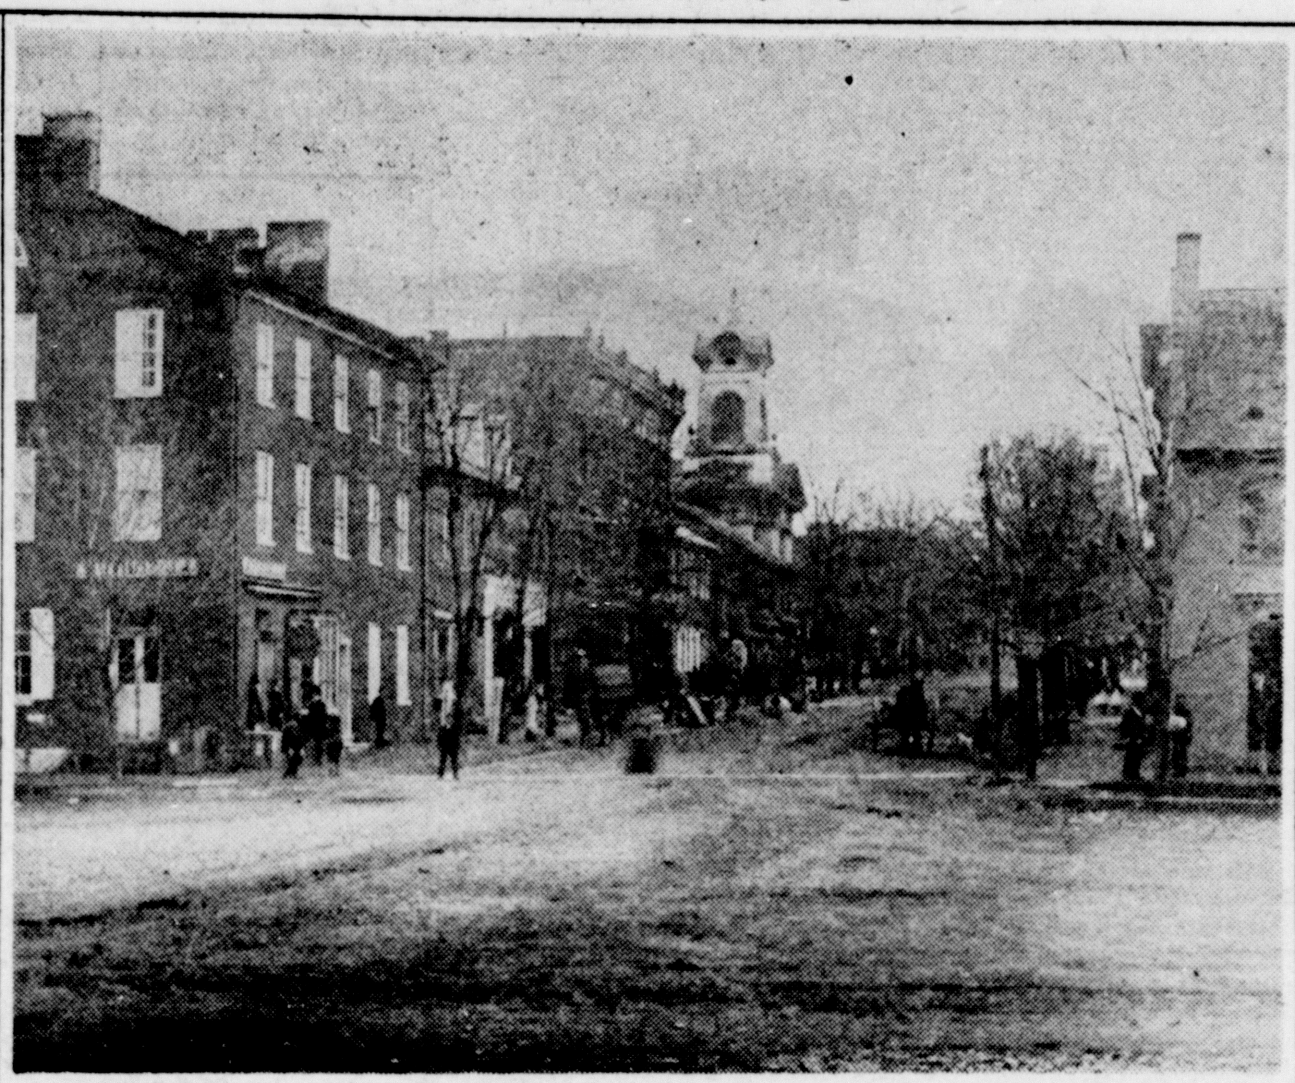
Of Unique Design

The Collis monument is unique among the 500 that dot the Gettysburg battlefield. It is of granite, the column bearing the bust being flanked on each side by stone benches, to which broad steps lead. It was erected by the "Collis Zouaves," the 114th Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers.

General Collis was mustered into the union service on August 17, 1861, as captain of the Zouaves d'Afrique, a company which he organized as a headquarters guard. In 1861 he was commissioned to raise the 114th Regiment, which was recruited in Philadelphia and become known as Collis' Zouaves. In the Battle of Gettysburg the regiment fought with distinction at the "Sherly House." Collis was made a brevet brigadier general on September 1, 1862, and brevet major general on October 28, 1864. He was mustered out on March 13, 1865. After the Battle of Gettysburg, General Collis was placed in command of the First Brigade, First Division, Third Army Corps, formerly General Graham's command. In 1864 he was in command of a brigade known as the Guard of the Commander-in-Chief. It was then he was breveted as a major general.

General Collis made his summer home here several years ago, which was one of the most beautiful in this section of the State.

Among those present were two sons of General Collis, Lloyd Collis and Charles Collis, of New York, and his grandson, Ludwig C. Lewis, of Philadelphia.



Don't be alarmed. This photograph shows a view south on Baltimore St. from Lincoln Square. The building just showing on the right is the present Plaza restaurant. On the left the J. L. Schick store is now the Dougherty and Hartley dry goods store. The Court House with cupola is visible up the street. The reason for the reversal is that the engraver reversed the negative when he made the engraving.

A FINE CONCERT

The concert given in Brua Chapel last Wednesday evening, for the benefit of the Presbyterian organ fund was fine. The music rendered was of a high order. Master Robert Armbruster, a lad of but nine years, is a marvelous musician for one so young, and his renditions of various numbers was greatly enjoyed by all present. (1906)

Seminary Grads Are Addressed By Dr. Alleman

The Rev. H. C. Alleman, of Philadelphia, delivered the address to the Seminary Alumni Association in the College church Wednesday evening. His subject was "The Minister in Religion and Politics." It was an excellent and timely address. (The meeting was held in May, 1906.)

The Seminary graduating exercises, as announced last week, took place in Christ church when addresses were delivered by W. Frank Hersh on the subject, "Elijah the Preacher," and D. S. Weimer speaking on "Perspicuity of Styles in Preaching."

The diplomas were presented by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, President of the Board.

Meeting of Board

The regular annual meeting of the Board was held Thursday, May 17, in the new Seminary building. Rev. Dr. W. H. Dubar was re-elected President; Rev. Victor Miller, Vice President, and H. C. Picking, Secretary.

Charles S. Weiser, the faithful and efficient Treasurer of the board for the past 25 years resigned and the Citizens' Trust Company, of Gettysburg, was elected Treasurer in his place. The resignation of Mr. Weiser was accepted with much regret.

Rev. John B. Focht, D.D., of Selinsgrove, was elected to deliver the Holman lecture for the coming year.

Dr. J. W. Richard was granted leave of absence to Nov. 1, for the purpose of European travel and research.

Elect President

The new Constitution was adopted. The most important changes are noted as follows: 1st. The new Constitution will reduce the number of Directors in the Board, the present membership being 100. Under the new Constitution the maximum number will be 50 (the directors now in office will fill out their unexpired term). 2nd. The new Constitution gives the title of President of the Seminary to the chief executive office of the Board. Under the old he was known officially as Chairman of the Faculty.

Upon the adoption of the new Constitution Dr. John A. Singmaster was nominated for President of the Seminary and the Secretary was instructed to cast the ballot for him for the position.

Among those from a distance who were present at Commencement we note the following: Rev. Joseph B. Wolf, Glen Rock; D. S. Brumbaugh, Roaring Springs; Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Rudisill, Mount Carmel; Rev. A. R. Steck, D.D., York; Rev. Dr. C M. Stock and J. D. Zouck, Hanover; Rev. Charles S. Albert, D.D., and Rev. Luther Albert, D.D., of Philadelphia; Rev. E. H. Leisenring, Chambersburg; Rev. D. T. Koser, Arendtsville; Dr. W. H. Dunbar, Dr. E. K. Bell, Dr. George W. Miller, Baltimore; Rev. Victor Miller, Leitersburg; Dr. M. H. Valentine, Philadelphia; Rev. T. C. Pritchard, Phillipsburg; W. R. Yeager, Allentown; Joseph B. Dowing, Philadelphia; Dr. A. E. Wagner, O. C. Roth, Chas. Geasy, Esq., Altoona; Frank E .Colvin, Bedford.

This view of the Reading Railroad station building on N. Washington St. was taken about 1880 when the station was new. It then served the Gettysburg-Harrisburg Railway.

PEWS WILL BE RENTED

At a congregational meeting held after the regular service in St. James church Sunday morning it was decided to continue renting the pews. There were 173 votes cast, 91 favoring pew rental and 82 for the free system. (1906)

CAUGHT MAMMOTH CARP

George Riggs, of this place, who has gained quite a reputation as a fisherman, on Saturday night caught with hook and line, in Marsh creek, a carp weighing 15 pounds. The fish was 28 inches long and measured 20 inches around. (1906)

NEW CAMP INSTITUTED

A local camp of the United Spanish War Veteran Association was instituted in Gettysburg Thursday evening by State Department Commander Lubenstein and State Quartermaster Messinger, of Harrisburg. The camp was instituted with ten members and these officers were installed: Commander, Fred Cappes; 1st Sr. Vice Com., J. G. McIlhenny; Jr. Vice Com., James McDannell; Adjutant, C. A. Williams; Quartermaster, James Wise; Chaplain, John D. Keith; Trustees, Harry Zercher, J. G. McIlhenny and Wm. Noel. (1906)

WIDOW AND TWO SONS RECEIVE GETTYS ESTATE

When James Gettys, the founder of Gettysburg, died he bequeathed his entire estate, including a mulatto girl servant, to his widow and two sons. His will, dated March 11, 1815, follows in full:

"In the name of God Amen. I James Gettys of the Borough of Gettysburg in the County of Adams and State of Pennsylvania, being weak and sick in body, but of sound and disposing mind and memory (thanks to be God for the same) do make and publish this my last Will and Testament in manner and form following, viz:

"Principally and first of all, I commend my immortal Soul into the hands of God who gave it, and my body to the earth, to be buried in a decent and Christian-like manner at the discretion of my executors hereinafter named. And as to such worldly estate wherewith it hath pleased God to bless me in this life, I give and dispose of the same in the following manner, viz:

Three Share Estate

"First. It is my will, and I order and direct that all my just debts and funeral expenses shall be first paid out of my estate by my executors hereinafter named.

"Item. I give, bequeath and devise my whole estate real, personal and mixed of what kind and nature the same may be wheresoever found, unto my well beloved wife Mary Gettys and to my two sons, James Gettys and Robert Todd Gettys, to be divided equally amongst them share and share alike, to hold to them, their heirs and assigns forever.

"Item. It is my will and I order and direct that my executors hereinafter named shall sell and dispose of such parts of my real estate as they may find necessary and convenient either for the education and support of my family or the payment of debts, who or the survivor of them are hereby empowered to convey the same to the purchaser or purchasers, and also to make execute and deliver all and every such deed or deeds, conveyance or conveyances, as I myself of right ought to have made and to fulfil all my legal contracts.

"Item. I give and bequeath to my well beloved wife my mulatto girl Sidney, over and above her share as aforesaid, and order that my executors shall sell thirty shares of my stock in the Bank of Gettysburg instead of real estate as above unless that also should be necessary and to sell and transfer all my stock in the Gettysburg and Petersburg turnpike road.

Sells Lot To Cobean

"Item. I order and direct that my said wife Mary Gettys shall convey to my other executor hereinafter named, Alexander Cobean, Esq., a certain meadow lot sold him agreeably to our contract, containing about nine acres more or less.

"And lastly I nominate, constitute and appoint my well beloved wife, Mary Gettys and my friend Alexander Cobean, Esq., to be the executors of this my will hereby revoking all other wills, legacies and bequests by me heretofore made and declaring this and no other to be my last will and testament.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal this eleventh day of March in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifteen.

CONCERT

Better even than was expected will be the concert in Brua Chapel this (Wednesday) evening, for the benefit of the Presbyterian organ fund. Master John Lane Smith, the soprano who takes the place of Master Hann has a rich and clear voice. Master Robert Armbruste is a wonderful little musician having won such notice that he has been invited to give a recital at the White House. (1906)

Gettysburg Classis Has Session Here

"The twenty-fourth annual session of Gettysburg Classis of the Reformed Church convened in Trinity Reformed Church, this place, Friday evening and closed Monday," according to an article appearing in The Star and Sentinel of May 23, 1906. The rest of the article follows:

The sermon was preached Friday evening by the retiring President, Rev. T. C. Hesson, of Arendtsville, using as a text St. Matthew 5:41.

After classical communion had been administered the session closed by the election of Rev. J. Hamilton Smith, of Littlestown, as president of the Classis.

Classis opened Saturday morning with devotional exercises, which were conducted by Rev. S. P. Mauger, of New Oxford. The organization of Classis was then completed by electing the following officers:

Vice President—Elder A. R. Brodbeck, Hanover.

Corresponding Secretary—Rev. J. H. Hartman, Hanover.

Stated Clerk—Rev. T. J. Barkley, D.D., Gettysburg.

The president, Rev. Smith, then announced the standing committees for the ensuing year, the chairmen being as follows:

Minutes of Synod—Rev. S. P. Mauger, New Oxford.

Minutes of Classis—Rev. M. J. Roth, Hanover.

Minutes of General Synod—Rev. F. S. Lindaman, Littlestown.

Overtures—Rev. Ellis S. Hay, Hanover.

Examination and Licensure—Rev. W. E. Krebs, D.D., Littlestown.

Finance—Rev. E. W. Stonebraker, Fairfield.

Missionary—Rev. F. S. Lindaman, Littlestown.

Religious Service—Rev. Ellis S. Hay.

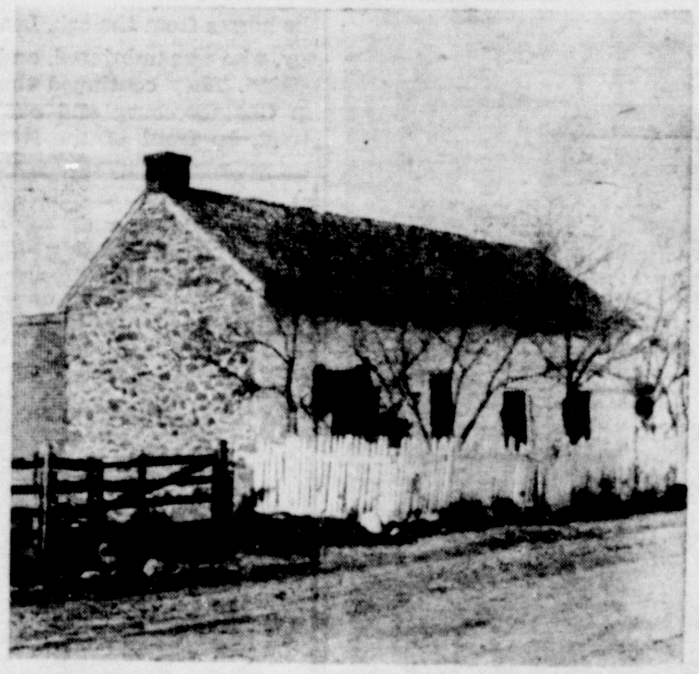
Sunday School—Rev. Dr. W. E. Krebs.

The program as printed in our last issue was carried out and was most interesting and instructive.

At the meeting Monday morning the Classis unanimously voted for the adoption of the new Constitution of the Reformed Church in the United States.

The liturgical form of the Restoration of lapsed church members was adopted.

Election of Delegates to Potomac Synod resulted as follows: T. C. Hesson, J. N. Faust, Rev. M. J. Roth, Dr. T. J. Barkley, Rev. J. H. Smith; Elders—H. T. Weaver, A. R. Brodbeck, M. R. Berkheimer, E. M. Bailey, George R. Julius. St. Paul's church (Dub's) near Hanover, was chosen as the place of meeting of Gettysburg Classis, a year hence.



This old stone house on Steinwehr Ave. was the place to which Gen. Reynolds' body was taken after he suffered a mortal wound during the fighting on the morning of the first day of the Battle of Gettysburg west of the town.

GUARDSMAN INJURED

Adam B. Black, one of the National Park Guardsmen, met with a serious and painful accident on Sunday. Mr. Black was coming in from the field and while descending the hill at Mrs. J. O. Blocher's his horse scared at an automobile and started to run. After going a short distance a shaft bolt broke, the buggy upset and Mr. Black was dragged for some distance, when the horse became detached from the carriage and ran to Washington street where it was caught.

Mr. Black's head was bruised and cut and one of the arteries of the right wrist was severed, from which he bled profusely. That he escaped with his life is a miracle. Dr. J. R. Dickson rendered surgical aid. (1906)

REV. ALLEMAN REJECTS OFFER

Rev. Herbert C. Alleman, of Philadelphia, will not be the pastor of the College Lutheran Church, as formerly announced. Mr. Alleman, however, had decided to come here, having had his furniture shipped here, most of which was unpacked and placed in the Hammond house, where the family intended to reside.

It seems that Mr. Alleman accepted the call with the understanding that he was to receive $1,200. He was also tendered the free use of the parsonage on Chambersburg street, but stated that he would not occupy the same. The Hammond house on Lincoln street was leased for Rev. Alleman and family, but he could not see his way clear unless the church pay the $200 rent.

His congregation agreed to pay this $200 plus $125, the cost of sending his goods here, if the local church would release him from his obligation.

At a meeting of the Council Tuesday evening it was decided to grant the release and a committee consisting of Mr. Eckert, Dr. Kuhlman and Prof. Huber appointed to draw up the letter. (May 30, 1906)

CHANGEABLE WEATHER

Last Friday was the warmest 18th of May ever recorded, while Thursday the 10th was the coolest for many years. Frost was reported in many places Monday morning. (1906)

Runaway Horses Hurl Woman From Vehicle

The two horses owned by the Holtsworth Bros. and used as cab horses for the Eagle Hotel, were left standing last Tuesday afternoon by Eden Barns, the driver, in front of his home on Breckenridge street extended. While he went into the house a little son of Wm. Menchey crawled into the cab and started the animals off. The little fellow being unable to hold the horses they ran down Franklin street, colliding with a sewer wagon near Caldwell's blacksmith shop. The collision resulted in detaching the horses from the cab. Leaving the boy, who was uninjured, and the cab behind. They continued their flight up Chambersburg and out Carlisle street. In front of the News office Mrs. C. B. Tate, upsetting the vehicle and throwing Mrs. Tate out. Fortunately she escaped unhurt. The horses were caught at this point. (March 1906)

Seminary Grads Are Addressed By Dr. Alleman

The Rev. H. C. Alleman, of Philadelphia, delivered the address to the Seminary Alumni Association in the College church Wednesday evening. His subject was "The Minister in Religion and Politics." It was an excellent and timely address. (The meeting was held in May, 1906.)

The Seminary graduating exercises, as announced last week, took place in Christ church when addresses were delivered by W. Frank Hersh on the subject, "Elijah the Preacher," and D. S. Weimer speaking on "Perspicuity of Styles in Preaching."

The diplomas were presented by Dr. J. A. Singmaster, President of the Board.

Meeting of Board

The regular annual meeting of the Board was held Thursday, May 17, in the new Seminary building. Rev. Dr. W. H. Dubar was re-elected President; Rev. Victor Miller, Vice President, and H. C. Picking, Secretary.

Charles S. Weiser, the faithful and efficient Treasurer of the board for the past 25 years resigned and the Citizens' Trust Company, of Gettysburg, was elected Treasurer in his place. The resignation of Mr. Weiser was accepted with much regret.

Rev. John B. Focht, D.D., of Selinsgrove, was elected to deliver the Holman lecture for the coming year.

Dr. J. W. Richard was granted leave of absence to Nov. 1, for the purpose of European travel and research.

Elect President

The new Constitution was adopted. The most important changes are noted as follows: 1st. The new Constitution will reduce the number of Directors in the Board, the present membership being 100. Under the new Constitution the maximum number will be 50 (the directors now in office will fill out their unexpired term). 2nd. The new Constitution gives the title of President of the Seminary to the chief executive office of the Board. Under the old he was known officially as Chairman of the Faculty.

Upon the adoption of the new Constitution Dr. John A. Singmaster was nominated for President of the Seminary and the Secretary was instructed to cast the ballot for him for the position.

Among those from a distance who were present at Commencement we note the following: Rev. Joseph B. Wolf, Glen Rock; D. S. Brumbaugh, Roaring Springs; Rev. and Mrs. J. A. Rudisill, Mount Carmel; Rev. A. R. Steck, D.D., York; Rev. Dr. C M. Stock and J. D. Zouck, Hanover; Rev. Charles S. Albert, D.D., and Rev. Luther Albert, D.D., of Philadelphia; Rev. E. H. Leisenring, Chambersburg; Rev. D. T. Koser, Arendtsville; Dr. W. H. Dunbar, Dr. E. K. Bell, Dr. George W. Miller, Baltimore; Rev. Victor Miller, Leitersburg; Dr. M. H. Valentine, Philadelphia; Rev. T. C. Pritchard, Phillipsburg; W. R. Yeager, Allentown; Joseph B. Dowing, Philadelphia; Dr. A. E. Wagner, O. C. Roth, Chas. Geasy, Esq., Altoona; Frank E .Colvin, Bedford.

This view of the Reading Railroad station building on N. Washington St. was taken about 1880 when the station was new. It then served the Gettysburg-Harrisburg Railway.

PEWS WILL BE RENTED

At a congregational meeting held after the regular service in St. James church Sunday morning it was decided to continue renting the pews. There were 173 votes cast, 91 favoring pew rental and 82 for the free system. (1906)

CAUGHT MAMMOTH CARP

George Riggs, of this place, who has gained quite a reputation as a fisherman, on Saturday night caught with hook and line, in Marsh creek, a carp weighing 15 pounds. The fish was 28 inches long and measured 20 inches around. (1906)

NEW CAMP INSTITUTED

A local camp of the United Spanish War Veteran Association was instituted in Gettysburg Thursday evening by State Department Commander Lubenstein and State Quartermaster Messinger, of Harrisburg. The camp was instituted with ten members and these officers were installed: Commander, Fred Lappen; 1st Sr. Vice Com., J. G. Gilheany; Jr. Vice Com., James McDannell; Adjutant, C. A. J. F. Wisotzkey Resigns From Town Council; Name Remmel

The regular monthly meeting of Gettysburg Town Council, was held last Tuesday evening. In the absence of both President (A. B.) Plank and Secretary J. F. Wisotzkey, E. P. Wisotzkey was chosen temporary president and Mr. Hammond secretary.

The resignation of J. F. Wisotzkey, who has secured a position in New York, was read and on motion of Mr. Oyler the same was accepted.

Mr. Oyler nominated Henry W. Kalbfleisch and Mr. Wisotzkey Mr. Remmel was elected on the second ballot by a vote of four to two. Messrs. Menchey and Becker arrived just at the completion of the vote. Mr. Remmel will fill the unexpired term until after the spring election.

A petition from the Atlantic Refining Company was read asking for permission to erect a gasoline tank of about 11,000 gallons capacity on the lot North of the Blocher coal yards, where they already have a coal-oil tank. The petition was accompanied by a number of letters addressed to the company asking for the change to wagon deliveries and giving reasons for the desired change, among others that the barrels were a menace to property.

Butt Files Protest

J. L. Butt, Esq., was present and protested against placing the tank in the vicinity of his property in the rear of Carlisle street. The Company ought to be compelled to locate tanks outside of town, he said; ought to be willing to locate where there would be no danger to property. M. J. Bupp who has property near the proposed location, was also present to enter a protest. He admitted that the Oil Company agreed to pay any excess of insurance over ordinary rate. Mr. Oyler spoke against giving consent to having tank located at the place proposed. Geo. A. Shetrone, representative of the Oil Company, made reply to the arguments advanced by Mr. Butt and the other speakers, among other things citing instances when gasoline tanks are located in the heart of towns and cities, Mt. Joy, Columbia, Red Lion, Delta, York, etc.

Petition Is Tabled

After some further talk Mr. Oyler moved to lay the petition on the table; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Martin Winter, in a letter, reported not all rights of way yet secured for extension of Lincoln St., so that the proposed ordinance authorizing the extension of this street had to be held over until next meeting.

The report of the Board of Health for the year 1905 was read. It gave in considerable detail the report of the expenses incident to the smallpox scare of last winter and summer, the total being somewhat over $1,000. Mr. Oyler moved to accept and file the report; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Mr. Oyler moved to grant the board the usual appropriation, $125 was asked for in its report and to make $65 of this amount at once available, as requested; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Dr. Stewart Re-elected

The term of the secretary of the board, Dr. Henry Stewart, having expired, President Wisotzkey placed his name in nomination to serve as a member of the board for three years. A division was called on the vote, four voting yea and three nay.

The Highway Committee reported several crossings laid and others repaired.

Mr. Hammond, for the Property Committee, reported on the widening of Hanover St., that the property owners on the south side had set in their hundred 1.4 feet from the south property line, if street is left at width of 60 feet as fixed by ordinance.

Mr. Hammond moved that the Ordinance Committee be instructed to prepare an ordinance, amending present ordinances so as to make width of Hanover St. 66 feet. Mr. Menchey seconded; carried on a rising vote, three voting yea, two nay. Messrs. Beck and Oyler expressed the view that the damages resulting from the proposed widening of the street would be too great for the borough to bear.

Mr. Gilbert presented the report of the Sewer Committee to January 1, 1906. It is in part:

Feet of sewer laid	15,910
First Ward sewer bought	6,300
Total feet of sewer	22,210
Due contractors	$16,163.53
Paid contractors	13,739.15
Paid for 1st Ward sewer	2,000.00
Paid engineer	607.38
Total cost to date	18,770.91

Treasurer Reports

They estimate that 1,000 feet of pipe remain to be laid, at a cost of $7,630, making the total estimate cost $26,400.91. The sewer bonds with premium amount to $30,975, leaving a balance for septic tank, rock excavation, right of way, etc., about $4,500.

Treasurer Oyler reported as follows:

Balance at last report	$ 22.88
Transferred from Sewer account	600.00
William H. Frock, taxes	310.30
	$933.18
Paid out on orders	561.01
Balance in Treasury	372.17

The pay roll and the following bills were approved and ordered paid:

W. F. Herman, supt.	25.00
George Degroft, labor	17.50

Runaway Horses Hurl Woman From Vehicle

The two horses owned by the Holtsworth Bros. and used as cab horses for the Eagle Hotel, were left standing last Tuesday afternoon by Eden Barns, the driver, in front of his home on Breckenridge street extended. While he went into the house a little son of Wm. Menchey crawled into the cab and started the animals off. The little fellow being unable to hold the horses they ran down Franklin street, colliding with a sewer wagon near Caldwell's blacksmith shop. The collision resulted in detaching the horses from the cab. Leaving the boy, who was uninjured, and the cab behind. They continued their flight up Chambersburg and out Carlisle street. In front of the News office Mrs. C. B. Tate, upsetting the vehicle and throwing Mrs. Tate out. Fortunately she escaped unhurt. The horses were caught at this point. (March 1906)

51 Students Are Suspended 50 Years Ago

"Fired, Fired," was the song half a hundred students sang last Friday evening (The Gettysburg Compiler reported fifty years ago) as they paraded the streets of the town in single file, and next day they were fired. They belonged to the Sophomore class.

This class on Wednesday evening had a banquet at Eagle Hotel. It was expected that the Freshmen would attempt to break it up. While they banqueted the Freshman ran up their pennant near entrance to campus and painted everywhere 1909.

The Sophomores accepted this as a challege when they reached the campus. Finding no Freshmen to fight they visited their rooms, got some out in full dress, put them through stunts and gave one a shower bath. A number of Freshmen took refuge in a Fraternity house. The Sophs besieged the place. Failing to get at them they visited their rooms, piled up their furniture, tied their clothes into knots and in the general tear up of the rooms did much damage.

The faculty took up the matter Friday and there was a long session. Appearances indicating that several of the class were to be punished on Saturday morning a paper was presented to faculty, signed by 51 members of the class that they were equally guilty of the rampage. Next day the fifty-one were fired, indefinitely suspended.

The excesses of college boys are beyond any defense. To fire 51 members of a class can not help however, but injure an institution and the community in which it is located. It is in effect a confession of inability to manage college boys. Environment, traditions of rampages, and many surrounding circumstances have a share in the development of the rampaging college boys and firing won't wash out this responsibility. It is to be hoped the faculty will reconsider their action, get the boys back, compel them to pay for every penny of damage done, punish as they may see fit within their own sphere and so counteract the notoriety and injury done this college and community by firing the big end of a class.

Colored Residents Of Gettysburg Divided Into Four Religious Groups; History Of Local Negro Churches From Scanty Records

(The following history of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church of Gettysburg was taken from the files of the Adams County Historical Society and is the work of Jacob Longacre, completed in 1950.)

St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church is in the 4th Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Zion Church, the Philadelphia and Baltimore Annual Conference and the Philadelphia District. The church is located at the northwest corner of Breckenridge and South Washington Streets; the pastor lives with his family in an adjacent house which is owned and furnished by the congregation. The membership of the church numbers approximately 60 members and 25 children and young people in the Sunday School. There are morning and evening services each Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., respectively, with Sunday School at 10 a.m.

The history of St. Paul's, as well as of the other two Negro churches in Gettysburg, seems closely connected with that of the Gettysburg Methodist Church, and I owe a particularly deep debt of gratitude to Miss Margaret M. McMillan and her study "Our Colored Churches in Gettysburg" for helpful information in this area where few records are available.

"Colored Class" In 1837

The first official mention of Negroes in the records of the Gettysburg Methodist Church was in April, 1837, when, at the Quarterly Meeting Conference, a "colored class" was listed, and Charles Pearman, colored, was represented as qualified to exhort and therewith given a license to exhort, by the Conference. He became the "class leader of the class of colored members" and apparently attended the official class leaders' meetings. He was still the class leader on May 19, 1838, when a committee was appointed to secure a lot and arrange to build a church for the Negro people of Gettysburg. From a later record of the Quarterly Meeting Conference, Miss McMillan feels that the lot secured for this purpose was probably one located on Weed Alley near the west end of Franklin Street and owned by Thaddeus Stevens, Esquire; the church building erected was probably a small frame building.

In February, 1841, the "Colored Class" was reported withdrawn from the Methodist Church except for twenty-one members of the class who remained in the church; the members who withdrew joined a party called the "Bethelites." This caused the Quarterly Meeting Conference to take the following action:

"Resolved that this Conference affectionately request the colored members of our Church of this town and vicinity to come back and worship in the Gallery of this church as they have formerly done, and that they have our confidence and respect as Christians, and that the money left after repairing the Colored Church be placed in their hands, and that we suggest to them the propriety of purchasing with said money two lamps for their accommodation and comfort on the Gallery."

Lack Of Records

The apparent lack of records renders difficult the tracing of the early history of the A.M.E.Z. Church, and Miss McMillan suggests the possibility that it was formed by the small group that took over the frame building on Weed Alley and later sold it to the Baptists. Investigation of the history of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church also suffers from a lack of records, but it was probably built after the separation caused by the organization of the A.M.E.Z. Church. The leading members of the Asbury M.E. Church were the Penn family, and for a number of years this was the leading Negro church while the smaller group worshipped in the old frame building on Weed Alley. The membership of the Asbury M.E. Church has gradually declined until now (1950) only one last member of the Penn family is left. The church building and property belong to the Washington Methodist Conference, and ministers are supplied for services on an infrequent basis.

St. John's Baptist Church, the third of the Negro churches in Gettysburg, has a membership of about five families, and Rev. Shadney comes from Harrisburg twice a month to conduct services. This group has succeeded to the ownership of the little frame building on Weed Alley, which, as we have seen apparently housed the earlier Methodist groups. Another religious grouping in the community is composed of the Negro members of the Catholic Church. At present there are seven or eight families, some 30 members, in this group chiefly composed of the descendants of one William Williams.

In order to more fully appreciate the significance of the above-mentioned diversity of religious expression, it should be noted that at the time of the 1940 Census there were 216 Negroes living in Gettysburg, all located in the Third Ward and mostly on South Washington and Breckenridge Streets. The small size of the total Negro population, presently estimated at 240-260 persons, and the division of its church-going membership among four religious groups have made pressing the problem of obtaining sufficient financial support, especially in the case of the A.M.E.Z. Church to extricate itself from serious financial difficulties.

Because this church seemed to be the largest center for most of the Negro people in the community, and especially the young people, the Gettysburg Ministerium (i.e. the local council of Protestant pastors) felt that here was a proper place to apply practical Christian assistance and demonstrate the reality of Christian brotherhood. The more immediate cause for the formation of an organization seems to have been the offer of a donation on the part of a local citizen toward paying off the mortgage of $450 which the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, held on St. Paul's A.M.E.Z. Church as the result of a loan which the Seminary had made to the Church. Several of the Protestant churches cooperated at this time to pay off the difference. An underlying motive, also contributing to this movement although less directly, seems to have been concern in some areas of the white community about the apparent lack of responsible organization within the Negro churches, as evidenced by the constant stream of "raffles" and solicitations for which the members of these churches sought patronage among the general community.

In any case, under the leadership of Rev. D. F. Putman, then pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, a committee was appointed, including the pastor and two lay representatives from each of the following churches: Christ Lutheran, St. James Lutheran, Trinity Reformed, Presbyterian, United Brethren and Methodist. Subsequently the Church of the Brethren added its support to the movement and was accorded representation on the Committee. Each church represented in the Committee was asked to contribute a sum in proportion to its membership. The Committee was to take charge of the funds so contributed and apportion them for the salary of the pastor of St. Paul's A.M.E.Z. Church, and for necessary repairs and other essential expenses. At first, the amount contributed toward the pastor's salary was $20 per month; this was raised to $25 per month in 1939; in 1947 it was raised to $35 per month and currently represents at least half of the pastor's total salary. We have already noted the special help given in paying off the mortgage (1937). In 1939, a bathroom and plumbing were installed in the parsonage with the help of the Committee. In 1940, assistance was given with repairs to

J. F. Wisotzkey Resigns From Town Council; Name Remmel

The regular monthly meeting of Gettysburg Town Council, was held last Tuesday evening. In the absence of both President (A. B.) Plank and Secretary J. F. Wisotzkey, E. P. Wisotzkey was chosen temporary president and Mr. Hammond secretary.

The resignation of J. F. Wisotzkey, who has secured a position in New York, was read and on motion of Mr. Oyler the same was accepted.

Mr. Oyler nominated Henry W. Kalbfleisch and Mr. Wisotzkey Mr. Remmel was elected on the second ballot by a vote of four to two. Messrs. Menchey and Becker arrived just at the completion of the vote. Mr. Remmel will fill the unexpired term until after the spring election.

A petition from the Atlantic Refining Company was read asking for permission to erect a gasoline tank of about 11,000 gallons capacity on the lot North of the Blocher coal yards, where they already have a coal-oil tank. The petition was accompanied by a number of letters addressed to the company asking for the change to wagon deliveries and giving reasons for the desired change, among others that the barrels were a menace to property.

Butt Files Protest

J. L. Butt, Esq., was present and protested against placing the tank in the vicinity of his property in the rear of Carlisle street. The Company ought to be compelled to locate tanks outside of town, he said; ought to be willing to locate where there would be no danger to property. M. J. Bupp who has property near the proposed location, was also present to enter a protest. He admitted that the Oil Company agreed to pay any excess of insurance over ordinary rate. Mr. Oyler spoke against giving consent to having tank located at the place proposed. Geo. A. Shetrone, representative of the Oil Company, made reply to the arguments advanced by Mr. Butt and the other speakers, among other things citing instances when gasoline tanks are located in the heart of towns and cities, Mt. Joy, Columbia, Red Lion, Delta, York, etc.

Petition Is Tabled

After some further talk Mr. Oyler moved to lay the petition on the table; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Martin Winter, in a letter, reported not all rights of way yet secured for extension of Lincoln St., so that the proposed ordinance authorizing the extension of this street had to be held over until next meeting.

The report of the Board of Health for the year 1905 was read. It gave in considerable detail the report of the expenses incident to the smallpox scare of last winter and summer, the total being somewhat over $1,000. Mr. Oyler moved to accept and file the report; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Mr. Oyler moved to grant the board the usual appropriation, $125 was asked for in its report and to make $65 of this amount at once available, as requested; seconded by Mr. Beck and carried.

Dr. Stewart Re-elected

The term of the secretary of the board, Dr. Henry Stewart, having expired, President Wisotzkey placed his name in nomination to serve as a member of the board for three years. A division was called on the vote, four voting yea and three nay.

The Highway Committee reported several crossings laid and others repaired.

Mr. Hammond, for the Property Committee, reported on the widening of Hanover St., that the property owners on the south side had set in their hundred 1.4 feet from the south property line, if street is left at width of 60 feet as fixed by ordinance.

Mr. Hammond moved that the Ordinance Committee be instructed to prepare an ordinance, amending present ordinances so as to make width of Hanover St. 66 feet. Mr. Menchey seconded; carried on a rising vote, three voting yea, two nay. Messrs. Beck and Oyler expressed the view that the damages resulting from the proposed widening of the street would be too great for the borough to bear.

Mr. Gilbert presented the report of the Sewer Committee to January 1, 1906. It is in part:

Feet of sewer laid	15,910
First Ward sewer bought	6,300
Total feet of sewer	22,210
Due contractors	$16,163.53
Paid contractors	13,739.15
Paid for 1st Ward sewer	2,000.00
Paid engineer	607.38
Total cost to date	18,770.91

Treasurer Reports

They estimate that 14,000 feet of pipe remain to be laid, at a cost of $7,630, making the total estimate cost $26,400.91. The sewer bonds with premium amount to $30,975, leaving a balance for septic tank, rock excavation, right of way, etc., about $4,500.

Treasurer Oyler reported as follows:

Balance at last report	$ 22.88
Transferred from Sewer account	600.00
William H. Frock, taxes	310.30
	$933.18
Paid out on orders	561 01
Balance in Treasury	372.17

The pay roll and the following bills were approved and ordered paid:

W. F. Herman, supt.	25 00

the church furnace, and in 1943 help was given for the church roof.

Over and beyond the financial aspects of the work of the Committee, occasional union services and interchanges of pulpit were organized between the A.M.E.Z. Church and the churches represented by the Committee. Gradually, non- religious groups in the community, such as the service clubs, became interested in the work of the Committee and cooperated in its program; many felt that this reflected, and further aided, the improvement of general inter-racial attitudes in the community. With regard to community attitudes concering the assistance program itself, Dr. Putman has indicated that the members of the Committee were conscious of, and stroye constantly to meet, a two-fold problem; first, the problem of the effect on the members of the A.M.E.Z. Church whereby the Committee sought to avoid the possibility of pauperization with its resultant paralytic stagnation of effort on the part of the Negro congregation; on the other hand, they were cognizant of the danger of the effect on their own congregations and tried to resolve any tendencies toward the development of an attitude of condescending charity.

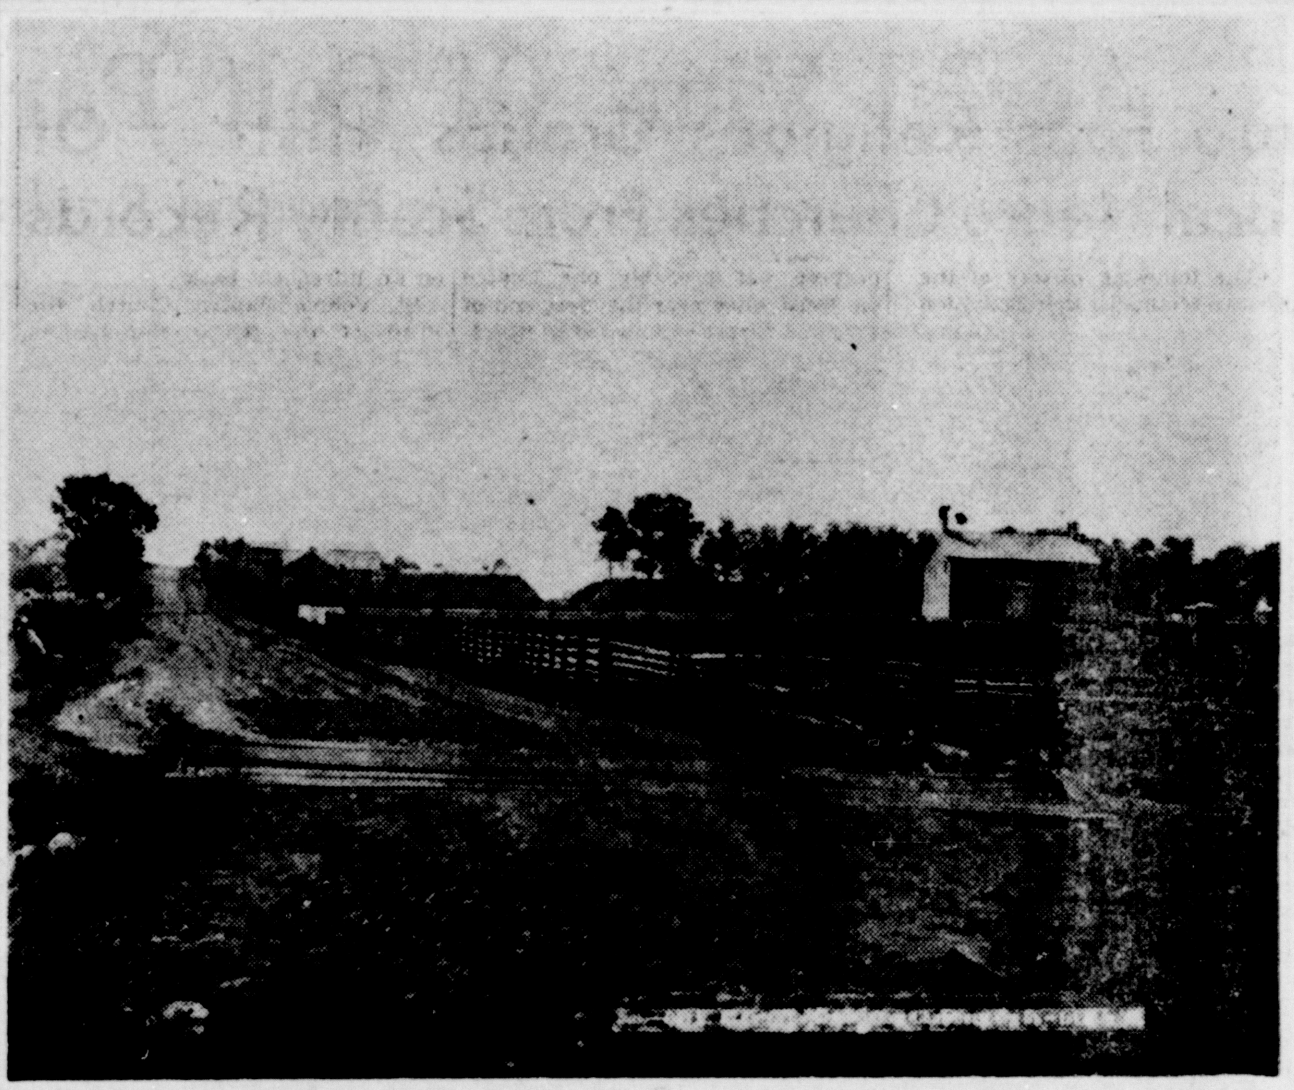
No account of St. Paul's A. M. E. Zion Church would be complete without mention of the work being done by the Inter-racial Committee of the Gettysburg College Student Christian Association. Since the work of this organization is being treated in another study, it will suffice here to note that this Committee, established in 1942, maintains a weekly recreational and religious program on every Thursday evening for the children of St. Paul's Church.

Another important factor in structuring the present situation has been the effect, on both Negro and white members of the community, of certain unfortunate incidents associated with the immediately preceding pastors of St. Paul's; because of their influence on the current situation, and examination of the personalities involved would seem pertinent and valid, although the ills to which second-hand analysis is subject are particularly prevalent here.

Reverend X——, pastor of St. Paul's A. M. E. Zion Church from 1944-47, had comparatively little education and was not an ordained minister. In order to supplement his salary, he worked part time as a janitor in one of the fraternity houses at Gettysburg College. He left in 1947.

The church was then left without a minister for a time until the coming of Reverend Y——, who, serving the congregation for about a year, provided a vivid contrast to his predecessor. He had a large, powerful physique and rather light skin; his manner was dynamic. Apparently he had had a rather good education and was an eloquent speaker with strong emotional appeal. He had tendencies toward formality in worship and introduced several liturgical practices and symbols which have been retained to the present. Because he was somewhat militant on the racial issue, the Inter-racial Committee of the Gettysburg College Student Christian Association was forced to suspend its weekly programs because of his firm refusal to cooperate unless a truly inter-racial policy was adopted with non-segregated participation of the white children from the other Protestant churches. He left quite suddenly leaving the congregation deeply in debt.

A student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary supplied the congregation for several weeks prior to the coming of the present pastor, Reverend J. O. Fountain, who came to Gettysburg from a successful pastorate in Harrisburg. (The Rev. Robert Roberts recently concluded a pastorate in the A. M. E. Zion Church.)



Buford Avenue looking west had this appearance about 100 years ago. The photograph was taken in 1868 and the road was considered a turnpike in the old days.

the church furnace, and in 1943 help was given for the church roof.

Over and beyond the financial aspects of the work of the Committee, occasional union services and interchanges of pulpit were organized between the A.M.E.Z. Church and the churches represented by the Committee. Gradually, non- religious groups in the community, such as the service clubs, became interested in the work of the Committee and cooperated in its program; many felt that this reflected, and further aided, the improvement of general inter-racial attitudes in the community. With regard to community attitudes concering the assistance program itself, Dr. Putman has indicated that the members of the Committee were conscious of, and stroye constantly to meet, a two-fold problem; first, the problem of the effect on the members of the A.M.E.Z. Church whereby the Committee sought to avoid the possibility of pauperization with its resultant paralytic stagnation of effort on the part of the Negro congregation; oh the other hand, they were cognizant of the danger of the effect on their own congregations and tried to resolve any tendencies toward the development of an attitude of condescending charity.

No account of St. Paul's A. M. E. Zion Church would be complete without mention of the work being done by the Infer-racial Committee of the Gettysburg College Student Christian Association. Since the work of this organization is being treated in another study, it will suffice here to note that this Committee, established in 1942, maintains a weekly recreational, and religious program on every Thursday evening for the children of St. Paul's Church.

Another important factor in structuring the present situation has been the effect, on both Negro and white members of the community, of certain unfortunate incidents associated with the immediately preceding pastors of St. Paul's; because of their influence on the current situation, and examination of the personalities involved would seem pertinent and valid, although the ills to which second-hand analysis is subject are particularly prevalent here.

Reverend X——, pastor of St. Paul's A. M. E. Zion Church from 1944-47, had comparatively little education and was not an ordained minister. In order to supplement his salary, he worked part time as a janitor in one of the fraternity houses at Gettysburg College. He left in 1947.

The church was then left without a minister for a time until the coming of Reverend Y——, who, serving the congregation for about a year, provided a vivid contrast to his predecessor. He had a large, powerful physique and rather light skin; his manner was dynamic. Apparently he had had a rather good education and was an eloquent speaker with strong emotional appeal. He had tendencies toward formality in worship and introduced several liturgical practices and symbols which have been retained to the present. Because he was somewhat militant on the racial issue, the Inter-racial Committee of the Gettysburg College Student Christian Association was forced to suspend its weekly programs because of his firm refusal to cooperate unless a truly inter-racial policy was adopted with non-segregated participation of the white children from the other Protestant churches. He left quite suddenly leaving the congregation deeply in debt.

A student at the Lutheran Theological Seminary supplied the congregation for several weeks prior to the coming of the present pastor, Reverend J. O. Fountain, who came to Gettysburg from a successful pastorate in Harrisburg. (The Rev. Robert Roberts recently concluded a pastorate in the A. M. E. Zion Church.)

Colored Residents Of Gettysburg Divided Into Four Religious Groups; History Of Local Negro Churches From Scanty Records

(The following history of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church of Gettysburg was taken from the files of the Adams County Historical Society and is the work of Jacob Longacre, completed in 1950.)

St. Paul's African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church is in the 4th Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Zion Church, the Philadelphia and Baltimore Annual Conference and the Philadelphia District. The church is located at the northwest corner of Breckenridge and South Washington Streets; the pastor lives with his family in an adjacent house which is owned and furnished by the congregation. The membership of the church numbers approximately 60 members and 25 children and young people in the Sunday School. There are morning and evening services each Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m., respectively, with Sunday School at 10 a.m.

The history of St. Paul's, as well as of the other two Negro churches in Gettysburg, seems closely connected with that of the Gettysburg Methodist Church, and I owe a particularly deep debt of gratitude to Miss Margaret M. McMillan and her study "Our Colored Churches in Gettysburg" for helpful information in this area where few records are available.

"Colored Class" In 1837

The first official mention of Negroes in the records of the Gettysburg Methodist Church was in April, 1837, when, at the Quarterly Meeting Conference, a "colored class" was listed, and Charles Pearman, colored, was represented as qualified to exhort and therewith given a license to exhort, by the Conference. He became the "class leader of the class of colored members" and apparently attended the official class leaders' meetings He was still the class leader on May 19, 1838, when a committee was appointed to secure a lot and arrange to build a church for the Negro people of Gettysburg From a later record of the Quarterly Meeting Conference, Miss McMillan feels that the lot secured for this purpose was probably one located on Weed Alley near the west end of Franklin Street and owned by Thaddeus Stevens, Esquire; the church building erected was probably a small frame building.

In February, 1841, the "Colored Class" was reported withdrawn from the Methodist Church except for twenty-one members of the class who remained in the church; the members who withdrew joined a party called the "Bethelites." This caused the Quarterly Meeting Conference to take the following action:

"Resolved that this Conference affectionately request the colored members of our Church of this town and vicinity to come back and worship in the Gallery of this church as they have formerly done, and that they have our confidence and respect as Christians, and that the money left after repairing the Colored Church be placed in their hands, and that we suggest to them the propriety of purchasing with said money two lamps for their accommodation and comfort on the Gallery."

Lack Of Records

The apparent lack of records renders difficult the tracing of the early history of the A.M.E.Z. Church, and Miss McMillan suggests the possibility that it was formed by the small group that took over the frame building on Weed Alley and later sold it to the Baptists. Investigation of the history of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church also suffers from a lack of records, but it was probably built after the separation caused by the organization of the A.M.E.Z. Church. The leading members of the Asbury M.E. Church were the Penn family, and for a number of years this was the leading Negro church while the smaller group worshipped in the old frame building on Weed Alley. The membership of the Asbury M.E Church has gradually declined until now (1950) only one last member of the Penn family is left. The church building and property belong to the Washington Methodist Conference, and ministers are supplied for services on an infrequent basis.

St. John's Baptist Church, the third of the Negro churches in Gettysburg, has a membership of about five families, and Rev. Shadney comes from Harrisburg twice a month to conduct services. This group has succeeded to the ownership of the little frame building on Weed Alley, which, as we have seen apparently housed the earlier Methodist groups. Another religious grouping in the community is composed of the Negro members of the Catholic Church. At present there are seven or eight families, some 30 members, in this group chiefly composed of the descendants of one William Williams.

In order to more fully appreciate the significance of the above-mentioned diversity of religious expression, it should be noted that at the time of the 1940 Census there were 216 Negroes living in Gettysburg, all located in the Third Ward and mostly on South Washington and Breckenridge Streets. The small size of the total Negro population, presently estimated at 240-260 persons, and the division of its church-going membership among four religious groups have made pressing the problem of obtaining sufficient financial support, especially in the case of the A.M.E.Z. Church to extricate itself from serious financial difficulties.

Because this church seemed to be the largest center for most of the Negro people in the community, and especially the young people, the Gettysburg Ministerium (i.e. the local council of Protestant pastors) felt that here was a proper place to apply practical Christian assistance and demonstrate the reality of Christian brotherhood. The more immediate cause for the formation of an organization, seems to have been the offer of a donation on the part of a local citizen toward paying off the mortgage of $450 which the Lutheran Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, held on St. Paul's A.M.E.Z. Church as the result of a loan which the Seminary had made to the Church. Several of the Protestant churches cooperated at this time to pay off the difference. An underlying motive, also contributing to this movement although less directly, seems to have been concern in some areas of the white community about the apparent lack of responsible organization within the Negro churches, as evidenced by the constant stream of "raffles" and solicitations for which the members of these churches sought patronage among the general community.

In any case, under the leadership of Rev. D. F. Putman, then pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, a committee was appointed, including the pastor and two lay representatives from each of the following churches: Christ Lutheran, St. James Lutheran, Trinity Reformed, Presbyterian, United Brethren and Methodist. Subsequently the Church of the Brethren added its support to the movement and was accorded representation on the Committee. Each church represented in the Committee was asked to contribute a sum in proportion to its membership. The Committee was to take charge of the funds so contributed and apportion them for the salary of the pastor of St. Paul's A.M.E.Z. Church, and for necessary repairs and other essential expenses. At first, the amount contributed toward the pastor's salary was $20 per month; this was raised to $25 per month in 1939; in 1947 it was raised to $35 per month and currently represents at least half of the pastor's total salary. We have already noted the special help given in paying off the mortgage (1937). In 1939, a bathroom and plumbing were installed in the parsonage with the help of the Committee. In 1940, assistance was given with repairs to

County Mourned Death Of Judge

The county mourned the passing fifty years ago of the Hon. Thaddeus S. Blocher, business man and justice of the peace. His death was reported as follows:

Hon. Thaddeus S. Blocher, one of Adams county's most prominent citizens and widely known business men, died at his home in Littlestown Saturday evening at 6:40 o'clock from stomach trouble, from which he had been suffering for several months, aged 69 years and a few days.

Deceased was born in Butler township, this county, in May, 1836; was a son of Thomas and Mary (Hartzell) Blocher, the former a native of Lebanon county, and the latter of Butler township, this county. Deceased learned the saddler trade with his father, and in 1858 bought a half interest in the harness shop of Mr. Yount at Littlestown and two years later bought out Mr. Yount's interest and continued the business until 1864, when he sold out and bought a half interest in the coach-making business of Isaac Sell. In 1880 he bought the entire business and carried it on until a short time ago, when he sold out to his sons.

Mr. Blocher was a staunch Republican and served in every office in the gift of the borough of Littlestown, except that of Justice of the Peace. He was elected Associate Judge in the fall of 1894 by a majority of 471 and served this position with honor to himself and his constituents.

Mr. Blocher was married in 1858 to Eliza E. Bishop, who with the following children survive: Clarence W., Charles L., Howard G., Misses Emma and Mary, of Littlestown; Mrs. Edith Gilbert, of Philadelphia, and Dr. E. T. Blocher, of York.

Deceased was a member of Good Samaritan Lodge, F. & A. M., and Gettysburg Lodge, I.O.O.F., of this place.

Funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from his late residence in Littlestown and was conducted by the Masonic Order. (May 30, 1906)

PRAISE CIVIC CLUB

The Harrisburg Civic Club invited the presidents and a delegate from all the clubs belonging to the State Federation of Clubs, of the Eastern District, to a reciprocity meeting held May 16 at the Harrisburg Country Club. Mrs. Walter H. O'Neal, Miss Julia Gilbert and Miss Emily Horner represented the Civic Club of Gettysburg. Mrs. O'Neal was called upon for a report. After making the same the Gettysburg Club was congratulated on the work it had accomplished in two years, which equalled that of any club, even of cities. Many instructive and interesting subjects were discussed. The Juvenile Court, Child Labor, and other civic betterment. About two hundred women were present. Mrs. Lyman Gilbert, president of the Civic Club, of Harrisburg, appointed Miss Myra Dock, of Graffenburg, chairman of the meeting. A sumptuous luncheon was served. (1916)

McPHERSON FOR GOVERNOR

Hon. Donald P. McPherson, State Senator from this district, is being boomed for the Governorship. Mr. McPherson would make an admirable candidate, not having been connected with any faction. His record in the Legislature for the past six years has been one on which both the Lincolnites and regular Republicans could unite upon. During his six years' service he was frequently mentioned by the leading papers as being one of the cleanest and most honorable men occupying a seat at Harrisburg.

Should the nomination be given Mr. McPherson, he would poll the largest vote ever given a candidate in this county. (1906)

Addition To Court House Built In '06

A new addition to the court house was authorized by the county commissioners in May, 1906. It was announced that it "will be a great improvement; the Sheriff and District Attorney to have offices in new building." The Star and Sentinel reported the announcement as follows:

Hamme & Leber, of York, the architects, whom the County Commissioners employed to draft plans for the new addition to the Court House, have submitted same to the Board. The new addition, as planned, will cover the entire space in the rear of the house, back to the alley and from the Culp property to W. Middle Street, thus making the building a "T" shape. An additional entrance will be provided for Middle Street and changes will be made as follows:

The vault now occupied by the Prothonotary and Treasurer, will, after the addition is built, be used exclusively by the former. The room now used by the Treasurer will be occupied by the Sheriff with a small vault added. The present Commissioners' office will be fitted up for the District Attorney with a private room at the end.

Additional Vault

An additional vault will be built on the south side, the new one to be used by the Register and Recorder and the present one by the Clerk of the Courts. About half of the Arbitration Room will be added to the Register's office and the other half will be combined with the room now occupied by the County Superintendent of Schools for an Arbitration Room.

According to the plans, the first floor of the proposed addition will contain four rooms. The one on Middle Street, for the County Commissioners, next a vault, then County Treasurer's office and County Superintendent's office.

At the rear of the present hall there will be an open stairway to the second story, where the space is divided into Law Library room. Grand Jury room, Petit Jury room, Judges' chambers, male witness room, female witness room and toilet rooms.

A vault and two toilet rooms will be placed in the cellar. The improvements will cost about $10,000.

The annual growth in world population has increased from about 20 to about 40 million a year in the past 20 years.

FATAL SHOOTING ACCIDENT UPSET BOROUGH IN 1906

The accidental shooting of a Gettysburg woman fifty years ago spread a pall of gloom over this community. Below is how The Compiler reported the tragedy in March, 1906.

A distressing pistol accident took place on the farm of Emanuel M. Ziegler along the York turnpike, tenanted by Isaac H. Weikert, on last Saturday night.

Mr. Weikert had never owned a revolver before three or four weeks ago. He had decided to have a sale this spring and remove to a farm near Philadelphia. In making his plans for removal he found that it would be necessary for him to go to the farm before his family and that he might be alone for about a week. In view of this contingency he bought a self-cocking revolver in this place several weeks ago. He took it home and it was put in the bureau drawer loaded.

Miss Eliza Weaver, daughter of the late Peter Weaver and Mary Bushman Weaver, and sister-in-law of Mr. Weikert, came to the Weikert home on last Friday to help them get ready for the sale.

Feared Burglars

Saturday evening Mrs. Weikert and her sister, Miss Eliza Weaver, went upstairs with four or five of the children. Mr. Weikert shortly afterwards followed, carrying the baby. The two women went into the room where the pistol had been placed in a bureau drawer. There was some talk about a balcony door that the wind had blown open on several previous nights.

Mrs. Weikert pulling the drawer open and taking up the pistol said to her sister "Take this and use it if any burglars get after you."

The words were hardly out of her mouth, when the pistol went off. The ball cut through the right eyeball and went through the head. Miss Weaver fell to the floor.

Death Instantaneous

Mr. Weikert ran at once to the Eckert farm and John Eckert rode to town and brought out Dr. H. L. Diehl, who said death had been instantaneous.

Miss Eliza Weaver had been taking care of her aged mother living near Fairfield, being the only child at home. Mrs. Weikert was in a serious condition Sunday, the terrible accident and her part in it completely prostrating her. The arrival of her mother on Sunday helped her and latest reports say she is better.

Miss Eliza Weaver was 35 years, one month and six days old. The Delivery And Installation In Ten Days

This photograph by Tyson was taken June 21, 1867 at the Orphans Home on Baltimore St. near the National Cemetery. In the group are General U. S. Grant, Governor John W. Geary, General Horace Porter and General S. W. Crawford.

Mrs. Lincoln's Kin Married James Gettys

One of the most notable men in this section in the days when Adams County was carved out of York County and the county seat was located at Gettysburg, was James Gettys. Not even in his wildest dream could he have imagined that the town to which he gave his name would be known the whole world around three-quarters of a century later.

The questions have often presented themselves. Who was this James Gettys? Where did he come from? What was his personality? What manner of man was he whose name was made immortal by the great battle? It has been difficult to find any sufficient answer to these questions. The information obtained gives no more than a silhouette of the man.

The Compiler is, however, able to give more than a shadow picture of the man, for the accompanying picture is said to be a good likeness.

Moved To Tennessee

Representatives of the Gettys family in Tennessee were written to and the information was forthcoming that James Gettys II went to Tennessee when fifteen years old, an age when one is not apt to give much thought to his genealogy and afterwards lived a busy life far away from his native land and could not give but little account of his ancestry. When in later years he became much interested he found the sources of information cut off by death.

Necessarily the personality of James Gettys is one to be largely gathered from his work. He was a frontiersman, living an arduous life, doing things. That much is certain.

The father of James Gettys was Samuel Gettys. He was of Scotch Irish origin, one of those ardent Scotchmen that would take sides and probably found it conducive to longevity of days to move over to Emerald Isle and then travel over seas to America. He emigrated from Donegal in Ireland in 1740 and first settled in Lancaster County. He stayed in the latter county about twenty-five years, and during this time, on August 4, 1759, a son, James Gettys, was born. The warrant for the 250 acres in the Manor of Maske, the site of the present town of Gettysburg, to Samuel Gettys was dated in 1765, and the family moved to their new home about 1767. The nearest neighbor of the Gettys family is said to have been the Dobbin family, the former occupying the log house erected north of the Globe Hotel and the latter the old stone house standing on Steinwehr Avenue in this place.

Foresaw Town Site

The idea that this place would measure up to the purposes of a site for a town must have occurred to the Gettys family soon after taking up the land. There is a record at Harrisburg indicating that a town was plotted as early as 1780. The various roads centering at this place evidently pointed to the future town to be built along those roads. The place is referred to in a marriage certificate given by Rev. Alexander Dobbin in 1787 as Gettystown and seems to have been better known by that name for the next decade than by its present name. The year 1783 is given as the date when the log house was built by the Gettys family. A trading store was opened by them and proved profitable and soon afterwards they built the first tavern on the site of the Globe Inn.

James Gettys must have been the righthand man of his father, for when the latter died on March 15, 1790, the son, not yet 31 years of age, takes the big farm and goes strenuously at the work of developing his property and the embryo town.

James Gettys was a man of brains, force of character and resources and undoubtedly educated, likely one of the scholars of Rev Dobbin, when he conducted at this point the first educational institution west of the Susquehanna River.

Wed Mrs. Lincoln's Cousin

James Gettys was not married at the date of death of his father, but the following year on December 20, 1791, he was married to Mary Todd, who was a cousin of Abraham Lincoln's wife.

The agitation for a new county began in 1790 and continued for ten years, and James Gettys won in the fight, when he was turning the fortieth year of his age. This was no child's fight, but an intense struggle between the Scotch Irish of the Great Conowago and those of Marsh Creek, and arrayed with Gettys were the McPhersons, McCleans, McSherrys, Horners, Cobeans, Crawfords, Dunwoodys and others, and against them a determined party in the Dicksons, Brinkerhoffs, Cassatts, Duncans, Kings, Longwells, Morrisons and others who were upholding the claims of Hunterstown.

The two towns had been plotted and each had adopted methods of their own in furthering their campaign, to become the county seat. Hunterstown had been plotted, and if the county seat had been located at that point it is altogether likely the county seat would not have borne that name, but would have been called "Woodstock," for that is the name of the town as plotted. Citizens from many portions of the town became lot owners and presumably could then be depended upon to lend their voice to the selection of Woodstock as the county seat.

Deeded Ground To Town

James Gettys was wide awake to what was going on and when things began to get warm, in 1799, he deeded to Rev. Mr. Dobbin and David Moore, the commissioners, to select the county seat, 200 lots in Gettysburg with the quit rents, and also a lot for a "gaol" and courthouse. This was a masterstroke of Gettys and followed by promises of private citizens to sub-

College Freshmen Capture Interclass Debate; Senior Wins Oratorical Contest

Gettysburg College freshmen won the interclass debate, fraternities held their annual dance and Strohmeir captured the intercollegiate prize in an oratorical contest according to an article in The Star and Sentinel March 14, 1906.

All but one of the Sophomores, who were suspended indefinitely several weeks ago have been reinstated.

The Seniors have decidd to wear their caps and gowns to church from and including Easter.

The second of the series of interclass debates for the present school year was held in Brua Chapel Thursday evening, the contestants being the teams from the Junior and Freshman classes, the latter winning by a margin of five per cent. The subject for debate was: Resolved, that the Government should Seek to Regulate the Use of Mines of Coal, Iron and other Raw Materials, whose Supply May Become the Subject of Monopoly.

Had Four Judges

W. A .Berkey, G. R. Haaf and C. S. Bream composed the Freshman team and defended the affirmative side. The Junior speakers were: C. E. Arnold, E. V. Roland and S. E. Smith.

The judges were Dr. J. W. Richard, Dr. G. D. Stahley, W. Arch McClean and Prof. Harry Lantz. Charles S. Duncan was chairman of the meeting.

The winning team was given the prize of $24 donated by Prof. William J. Gies of Columbia University and also entitles them to debate against the Senior team in the final contest in May.

The six fraternities held their annual Washington's Birthday dance Friday evening, which had been postponed owing to the suspension of the sophomores. It was quite a success.

The patronesses for the function were Mrs. C. S. Duncan, Mrs. D. P. McPherson, Mrs. S. McC. Swope and Mrs. Wm. Arch McClean, of Gettysburg and Mrs. N. S. Shearer and Mrs. H. R. Rupp, of York.

Wins Oratorical Contest

Bertram A. Strohmeir of the Senior class, who represented the College at the Intercollegiate Oratorical contest, held by the Pennsylvania Union at Ursinus College Friday night, won a victory for Gettysburg, he having won the contest and was awarded $25.

The contestants and their subjects were as follows:

E. J. Brown, of Lafayette, "A Psychology of Life."

D. R. Foringer, of Ursinus, "A Tribute to the Grand Army."

B. A. Strohmeir, of Gettysburg, "The Price of a Principal." First place.

F. A. Reiter, of Muhlenberg, "The Hero of the South."

W. F. Kosman, of Franklin and Marshall, "America—A World Power." Second place.

Twenty-eight members of the Junior class held their banquet at Hotel Gettysburg, Friday evening. After feasting heartily toasts were responded to by a number of the class.

The Freshmen are wearing their new caps.

TWO HORSES KILLED

A collision occurring in this place on last Wednesday evening, (Fifty Years ago) near the west-end bridge, has resulted in death of one horse and the other one is fatally injured. William Peason and Edward Day were coming into town, the former driving latter's horse, and George Stambaugh was leaving town. The teams ran into each other in such a way that a shaft of each buggy pierced the breast of each horse about six inches. The horse of Day died on Sunday and the horse of Stambaugh it is said can not get well.

MEMORIAL SERMON

The committee on arrangements for Memorial Day has selected Rev. W. W. Hartman, pastor of the Methodist Church, to deliver the annual sermon to Corporal Skelly Post, G.A.R. on Sunday afternoon, May 27. (1906)

scribe several thousand dollars toward the building of jail and court house, won the day for Gettysburg.

A young man of forty to win in such a fight must have been a man of influence, enterprising, of sound judgment, not afraid to back up his judgment. He must have been all this and more to have men back of him helping to accomplish his purposes.

The likeness of the man plainly tells that James Gettys was a man of determination, of firmness, forceful, alert and bold, and in the matter of dress it as plainly appears that he stood by traditions.

James Gettys did not live to be an old man, dying March 29, 1815, in his 56th year, and three days later his wife, Mary Todd Gettys, died. Two children, sons, had been born to them, Robert, who died in his 16th year, and James Gettys II, who in 1824 moved to Tennessee and died there several years ago.

General James Gettys was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature three times, in 1807, 1808, 1809.

FATAL SHOOTING ACCIDENT UPSET BOROUGH IN 1906

The accidental shooting of a Gettysburg woman fifty years ago spread a pall of gloom over this community. Below is how The Compiler reported the tragedy in March, 1906.

A distressing pistol accident took place on the farm of Emanuel M. Ziegler along the York turnpike, tenanted by Isaac H. Weikert, on last Saturday night.

Mr. Weikert had never owned a revolver before three or four weeks ago. He had decided to have a sale this spring and remove to a farm near Philadelphia. In making his plans for removal he found that it would be necessary for him to go to the farm before his family and that he might be alone for about a week. In view of this contingency he bought a self-cocking revolver in this place several weeks ago. He took it home and it was put in the bureau drawer loaded.

Miss Eliza Weaver, daughter of the late Peter Weaver and Mary Bushman Weaver, and sister-in-law of Mr. Weikert, came to the Weikert home on last Friday to help them get ready for the sale.

Feared Burglars

Saturday evening Mrs. Weikert and her sister, Miss Eliza Weaver, went upstairs with four or five of the children. Mr. Weikert shortly afterwards followed, carrying the baby. The two women went into the room where the pistol had been placed in a bureau drawer. There was some talk about a balcony door that the wind had blown open on several previous nights.

Mrs. Weikert pulling the drawer open and taking up the pistol said to her sister "Take this and use it if any burglars get after you."

The words were hardly out of her mouth, when the pistol went off. The ball cut through the right eyeball and went through the head. Miss Weaver fell to the floor.

Death Instantaneous

Mr. Weikert ran at once to the Eckert farm and John Eckert rode to town and brought out Dr. H. L. Diehl, who said death had been instantaneous.

Miss Eliza Weaver had been taking care of her aged mother living near Fairfield, being the only child at home. Mrs. Weikert was in a serious condition Sunday, the terrible accident and her part in it completely prostrating her. The arrival of her mother on Sunday helped her and latest reports say she is better.

Miss Eliza Weaver was 35 years, one month and six days old. The

Happy Birthday Gettysburg on your 150th Anniversary

Century Closed In Gettysburg With Disastrous, Costly Fire Wiping Out Alleman Warehouse

The closing of the first century of the existence of Gettysburg is made notable with the most disastrous single fire of 100 years. Other great fires have swept away carriage plants, power house and Eagle Hotel. The fire of Wednesday evening, February 28, in wiping out the L. M. Alleman Hardware Company warehouse entailed the greatest financial loss of any previous fire, $60,000 to $70,000 going up in flames in three hours.

The fire alarm was sounded at 5:20 exactly by Joe Carver's watch. The people of the town rushed pell mell down town to discover that the Alleman warehouse was on fire.

The fire broke out in the small frame office building, across the alley from Globe Hotel stable, being caused by a defective flue. The flames spread rapidly and before a stream of water was on the fire, it was burning furiously.

Threatened Buildings

The fire threatened the frame buildings near at hand, the stables of Globe and Gettysburg Hotels and the firemen after getting several streams on fire, went to work vigorously to prevent any spreading of the flames. The Globe Hotel stable roof was on fire more than once, but put out. The roof on the residence of Jesse Walter was on fire and put out, as well as roofs at other points. If most strenuous efforts had not been put forward and roofs soaked with water there would have been more outbreaks.

The fire meanwhile crept northward. As soon as the firemen realized the direction the fire was moving and not in the direction of the terrific gale at the time, they hurried with several streams on the main brick warehouse and additions. There was a big grame shed on the east side of the warehouse property and next came the Sykes property. Every effort was exhausted to get the fire under control and at about half past six the situation was alarming. The fire was in the warehouse beyond control. Hundreds believed the Sykes property was doomed and perhaps a portion of the east end.

The brave firemen did not lose heart nor abate any effort. Streams were poured on the furnace of fire. The frame shed and Sykes house was soaked with water and in the cold atmosphere the water and near heat made a steam at times mistaken by the watchers for smoke.

Stables Were Saved

In the fire fighting up to this point the stables near the southern part of the warehouse had been saved. The livery stables of Holtzworth and Hoffman looked doomed at one time but the firemen turning their attention to it prevented it from going up in smoke.

The fear or danger of being unable to control the fire led to telegrams sent to Hanover, York and Hagerstown, asking that aid be ready to come as soon as word was sent. York and Hagerstown had their engines in readiness to start when word was sent. Hanover could not spare the only steamer in place. At 8:15 word was sent that help would not be needed.

At about 8 p.m. the magnificent work of the firemen was bringing results. It was apparent then that the fire would be confined to the warehouse and that adjoining buildings, even the east frame shed, would be saved. The fire fighting lasted the entire night.

Enormous Stock

The Alleman warehouse contained an enormous stock, as the only jobbing store in the county. It contained all kinds of farming implements and machinery, wagons, carriages, building supplies, paints, oils, rope, flour, feed, sugar, canned goods, groceries, queensware, in fact supplies of all commodities sold in the retail store. A carload of sugar and flour had been unloaded at the warehouse the same day.

What the exact value of this stock may have been, the contents of the east shed being the only part saved, only a laborious examination of books, accounts, bills of lading, etc., will disclose. It is though it may reach, including the building, from $60,000 to $75,000. The insurance on buildings and stock in same is carried in over thirty different insurance companies and aggregated about $60,000. The companies upon who loss will fall are all foreign companies. The Alleman Hardware Company will likely have a net loss over and above insurance of $10,000 to $15,000.

Expect To Rebuild

As soon as the loss has been adjusted the Alleman Hardware Company expects to build up a big warehouse that may cover the entire ground owned by them at point of fire.

The Gettysburg firemen and all who helped in any way to fight the fire fiend deserve the highest praise. No one dreamed when it started that it could be confined to one building in such a gale. The night was cold. It was a magnificent fight, courageously made. All praise to the Gettysburg firemen.

On the afternoon of the day of the Alleman fire news reach town of the complete destruction of the house

Gettys-Town Became County Seat Of Adams Thru Land Gift

During the controversy which resulted in the erection of Adams County from a part of York, the question of a county seat for the new county was one of great importance; and, while several places were suggested as suitable for the purpose, Gettys-town and Hunters'-town were the principal rivals. The finishing argument in the matter, however, was furnished by General Gettys and his wife, Mary, when, on the 24th day of January, 1799, he deeded to Rev. Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, in trust, two hundred quit rents and a lot for a "goal" upon the condition that the seat of justice be established at Gettys-town.

These deeds are of very great interest, and read as follows: (Deed. — Gettys to Dobbin and Moore.)

THIS INDENTURE, made the twenty-fourth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, between James Gettys of Gettys-town, Cumberland township, in the County of York and State of Pennsylvania, and Mary his wife, of the one part, and the Rev'd. Alex'd. Dobbin and David Moore, Sen'r., of the township, county and State aforesaid, of the other part, Witnesseth that John Penn, Junior, and John Penn, Esquires, late proprietaries of Pennsylvania, had for the consideration therein mentioned, granted, bargained, sold, aliened and confirmed unto the said James Gettys, a certain plantation or tract of land, (part of a larger track known by the name of the Manor of Maske), lying and being situated in the county of York, aforesaid.

Beginning at a post on the side of the York road, thence crossing the same, and extending by Samuel Gettys' land north nineteen degrees, west seventy-two perchs to a post, thence south eighty-three and a half, west 72 perches to a post, in the side or near Black's Gap road, thence by the said Samuel Gettys' land south seventy-one degrees and three-quarters, west forty perches to a post, thence fifty-one degrees and a half west, seventy-seven perches and seven tenths of a perch, re-crossing the said York road to a post, in the side of the same, thence by the Rev'd. Alex'd. Dobbin's land, south sixty degrees, east thirteen perches and a-half to a white oak stump, thence south forty-nine degrees one hundred and forty-nine perches to a white oak, thence extending by Robert Scott's land, north forty degrees east, re-crossing the said Black's Gap road, fifty-eight perches to a black oak stump, thence north twenty-five degrees, east sixty-three perches and a half to a black oak, and north forty-one degrees east eight perches to the place of beginning. Containing one hundred and sixteen acres and the usual allowance, together with all and singular the ways, woods, waters, water-courses, and whatsoever thereunto belonging, or in any ways appertaining, To Have and to Hold to the said James Gettys, his heirs and assigns forever, as in and by the said recited indenture, recorded at York, for the county of York, in Book D. D., page 505, &c., reference thereunto being had it will more fully and at large appear; and whereas the said James Gettys has laid out two hundred lots, in the form of a town, which is known by the name of Gettystown, a considerable number of which are improved upon, reserving to himself and to his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, the yearly ground rent of seven shillings and six pence upon each and every lot laid out as aforesaid, to be paid on the tenth day of January, each and every year; and whereas, also it is in contemplation by the legislature now assembled, to divide the county of York, and also to fix upon a suitable place for the seat of justice, for the new county. Now Know Ye, that for and in consideration of the advantage which we may derive from the increase in value of the remainder of our property by Gettystown being fixed upon for the seat of justice, we, for ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, do bargain, sell, assign, transfer and set over unto the said Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, Sen'r., their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, the following property in trust for, and to the only proper use and behoof of the said county, so to be erected, viz., all our right, title interest and claim whatsoever, of, in and to the ground rent aforesaid, which may accrue after the fourth day of Jan'y, 1779. And also, our right, title, interest and claim to a suitable lot of ground for the purpose of building a Goal thereon, To Have

The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas and eight children, six of latter were at school, two youngest at home. Mr. Thomas was only able to save a little bedding and in doing this was caught in second story and to save himself had to jump out of the window. Insurance was allowed recently to expire, so that the loss was a total one leaving Mr. Thomas in a destitute condition as the flames had consumed his entire possessions.

College Freshmen Capture Interclass Debate; Senior Wins Oratorical Contest

Gettysburg College freshmen won the interclass debate, fraternities held their annual dance and Strohmeir captured the intercollegiate prize in an oratorical contest according to an article in The Star and Sentinel March 14, 1906.

All but one of the Sophomores, who were suspended indefinitely several weeks ago have been reinstated.

The Seniors have decidd to wear their caps and gowns to church from and including Easter.

The second of the series of interclass debates for the present school year was held in Brua Chapel Thursday evening, the contestants being the teams from the Junior and Freshman classes, the latter winning by a margin of five per cent. The subject for debate was: Resolved, that the Government should Seek to Regulate the Use of Mines of Coal, Iron and other Raw Materials, whose Supply May Become the Subject of Monopoly.

Had Four Judges

W. A. Berkey, G. R. Haaf and C. S. Bream composed the Freshman team and defended the affirmative side. The Junior speakers were: C. E. Arnold, E. V. Roland and S. E. Smith.

The judges were Dr. J. W. Richard, Dr. G. D. Stahley, W. Arch McClean and Prof. Harry Lants. Charles S. Duncan was chairman of the meeting.

The winning team was given the prize of $24 donated by Prof. William J. Gies of Columbia University and also entitles them to debate against the Senior team in the final contest in May.

The six fraternities held their annual Washington's Birthday dance Friday evening, which had been postponed owing to the suspension of the sophomores. It was quite a success.

The patronesses for the function were Mrs. C. S. Duncan, Mrs. D. P. McPherson, Mrs. S. McC. Swope and Mrs. Wm. Arch McClean, of Gettysburg and Mrs. N. S. Shearer and Mrs. H. R. Rupp, of York.

Wins Oratorical Contest

Bertram A. Strohmeir of the Senior class, who represented the College at the Intercollegiate Oratorical contest, held by the Pennsylvania Union at Ursinus College Friday night, won a victory for Gettysburg, he having won the contest and was awarded $25.

The contestants and their subjects were as follows;

E. J. Brown, of Lafayette, "A Psychology of Life."

D. R. Foringer, of Ursinus, "A Tribute to the Grand Army."

B. A. Strohmeir, of Gettysburg, "The Price of a Principal." First place.

F. A. Reiter, of Muhlenberg, "The Hero of the South."

W. F. Kosman, of Franklin and Marshall, "America—A World Power." Second place.

Twenty-eight members of the Junior class held their banquet at Hotel Gettysburg, Friday evening. After feasting heartily toasts were responded to by a number of the class.

The Freshmen are wearing their new caps.

TWO HORSES KILLED

A collision occurring in this place on last Wednesday evening, (Fifty Years ago) near the west-end bridge, has resulted in death of one horse and the other one is fatally injured. William Peason and Edward Day were coming into town, the former driving latter's horse, and George Stambaugh was leaving town. The teams ran into each other in such a way that a shaft of each buggy pierced the breast of each horse about six inches. The horse of Day died on Sunday and the horse of Stambaugh it is said can not get well.

MEMORIAL SERMON

The committee on arrangements for Memorial Day has selected Rev. W. W. Hartman, pastor of the Methodist Church, to deliver the annual sermon to Corporal Skelly Post, G.A.R. on Sunday afternoon, May 27. (1906)

scribe several thousand dollars toward the building of jail and court house, won the day for Gettysburg.

A young man of forty to win in such a fight must have been a man of influence, enterprising, of sound judgment, not afraid to back up his judgment. He must have been all this and more to have men back of him helping to accomplish his purposes.

The likeness of the man plainly tells that James Gettys was a man of determination, of firmness, forceful, alert and bold, and in the matter of dress it as plainly appears that he stood by traditions.

James Gettys did not live to be an old man, dying March 29, 1815, in his 56th year, and three days later his wife, Mary Todd Gettys, died. Two children, sons, had been born to them, Robert, who died in his 16th year, and James Gettys II, who in 1824 moved to Tennessee and died there several years ago.

General James Gettys was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature three times, in 1807, 1808, 1809.

Gettys-Town Became County Seat Of Adams Thru Land Gift

During the controversy which resulted in the erection of Adams County from a part of York, the question of a county seat for the new county was one of great importance; and, while several places were suggested as suitable for the purpose, Gettys-town and Hunters'-town were the principal rivals. The finishing argument in the matter, however, was furnished by General Gettys and his wife, Mary, when, on the 24th day of January, 1799, he deeded to Rev. Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, in trust, two hundred quit rents and a lot for a "goal" upon the condition that the seat of justice be established at Gettys-town.

These deeds are of very great interest, and read as follows: (Deed. — Gettys to Dobbin and Moore.)

THIS INDENTURE, made the twenty-fourth day of January, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and ninety-nine, between James Gettys of Gettys-town, Cumberland township, in the County of York and State of Pennsylvania, and Mary his wife, of the one part, and the Rev'd. Alex'd. Dobbin and David Moore, Sen'r., of the township, county and State aforesaid, of the other part, Witnesseth that John Penn, Junior, and John Penn, Esquires, late proprietaries of Pennsylvania, had for the consideration therein mentioned, granted, bargained, sold, aliened and confirmed unto the said James Gettys, a certain plantation or tract of land, (part of a larger track known by the name of the Manor of Maske), lying and being situated in the county of York, aforesaid.

Beginning at a post on the side of the York road, thence crossing the same, and extending by Samuel Gettys' land north nineteen degrees, west seventy-two perchs to a post, thence south eighty-three and a half, west 72 perches to a post, in the side or near Black's Gap road, thence by the said Samuel Gettys' land south seventy-one degrees and three-quarters, west forty perches to a post, thence fifty-one degrees and a half west, seventy-seven perches and seven tenths of a perch, re-crossing the said York road to a post, in the side of the same, thence by the Rev'd. Alex'd. Dobbin's land, south sixty degrees, east thirteen perches and a-half to a white oak stump, thence south forty-nine degrees one hundred and forty-nine perches to a white oak, thence extending by Robert Scott's land, north forty degrees east, re-crossing the said Black's Gap road, fifty-eight perches to a black oak stump, thence north twenty-five degrees, east sixty-three perches and a half to a black oak, and north forty-one degrees east eight perches to the place of beginning. Containing one hundred and sixteen acres and the usual allowance, together with all and singular the ways, woods, waters, water-courses, and whatsoever thereunto belonging, or in any ways appertaining, To Have and to Hold to the said James Gettys, his heirs and assigns forever, as in and by the said recited indenture, recorded at York, for the county of York, in Book D. D., page 505, &c., reference thereunto being had it will more fully and at large appear; and whereas the said James Gettys has laid out two hundred lots, in the form of a town, which is known by the name of Gettystown, a considerable number of which are improved upon, reserving to himself and to his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns, the yearly ground rent of seven shillings and six pence upon each and every lot laid out as aforesaid, to be paid on the tenth day of January, each and every year; and whereas, also it is in contemplation by the legislature now assembled, to divide the county of York, and also to fix upon a suitable place for the seat of justice, for the new county. Now Know Ye, that for and in consideration of the advantage which we may derive from the increase in value of the remainder of our property by Gettystown being fixed upon for the seat of justice, we, for ourselves, our heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, do bargain, sell, assign, transfer and set over unto the said Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, Sen'r., their heirs, executors, administrators, and assigns, the following property in trust for, and to the only proper use and behoof of the said county, so to be erected, viz., all our right, title interest and claim whatsoever, of, in and to the ground rent aforesaid, which may accrue after the fourth day of Jan'y, 1779. And also, our right, title, interest and claim to a suitable lot of ground for the purpose of building a Goal thereon, To Have

Gettysburg 100 Years Ago

Picture of beginning of borough of Gettysburg. Primitive living in primitive conditions and surroundings.

(Reprinted from The Gettysburg Compiler of March 7, 1906)

March 10 is Gettysburg's Birthday and March 10, 1906, Gettysburg was one hundred years old as a borough, for it was on March 10, 1806, the Act of Assembly creating the borough went into effect.

One hundred years and the greatest one hundred years that will likely ever pass over the town. Why?

Picture the town a hundred years ago. It was a small village from across the water. With land in abundance there was no reason why the town should not have been spread from Cemetery Hill to Keckler's Hill, but the inherited idea of a village prevailed and made it what it is.

The village of a hundred years ago was much foreshortened from dimensions. Near the top of Baltimore Hill and down through Sleepy Hollow there was a forest and while it was cut by roads at points, yet many walked the path which led to the springs on the Duttera property, which later became the first supply of water for the town. Women carried their clothes to the spring to wash them.

Had Log School

Half way down York Street was another woods and the name of Greenfield was given to that end of the town.

Out Carlisle street, where the Mummasburg road and the Harrisburg road joined, about 100 yards beyond the present railroad stood the log schoolhouse and the limit of the town in that direction.

The town not many years before its creation as a borough in 1806 had been the farm of James Gettys, the farmhouse being the old stone house later owned by the Doersoms and destroyed by fire about twenty-five years ago. It stood on a spot along the alley back of the Globe Hotel stable.

Another early plantation was the Dobbin, and the residence, the old stone house now on Steinwehr avenue was built in 1776. It is one of the oldest houses in the town and one of the best types of a hundred years ago. It was away off, however, from the Gettys farm with a woods between.

Gettys Was Promoter

When the agitation began of the formation of a county out of the western end of York County, at the same time commenced the plotting of a town by James Gettys. Along with the efforts to create the county of Adams went the efforts to make Gettystown or Gettysburg the county seat.

James Gettys was a pioneer promoter. He did his work so well that the larger town of Hunterstown was not in it. The promoter of those days sought to win by showing how liberally the dear public was to be treated.

The town of Gettysburg was plotted and ground was set aside for a court house at one point and at another for a jail. A quit rent of $1 was put on every 60-foot lot and these quit rents presented to commissioners for the use of the county, and there were 210 of these lots. There was but one thing to do and that was to let the diplomacy and liberal public spiritedness of the founder of Gettysburg win out.

Had Native Wit

James Gettys was possessed of a certain crude native wit, and it was probably his experience in securing the location of the county seat at Gettysburg that was responsible for the memorial he planned for himself in the Evergreen Cemetery, the marble hound keeping watch beside his grave. At one time there was about the neck of the dog a collar inscribed "I am James Gettys' dog, whose dog are you?" This inscription was later removed by the family.

Think of the town one hundred years ago largely clustered around the Diamond, low houses tight up against each other and most of them right on the building line. There were some brick pavements. A few flag stone walks, tan walks, and dirt walks. What was walked on was of little consequence for it was a day of boots.

This photograph taken by William Tipton in 1909 shows The Bank of Gettysburg, now the Gettysburg National Bank, in its old quarters on York St. across from its present location. The bank was first opened in a private residence, then moved into the quarters pictured above, and finally into its present location.

Dr. Crawford's Folly

The ways to get in or out of the town were primitive, either you walked or you went by the freight trains of Conestoga wagons or the passenger trains of stage coaches, or you might ride a horse.

A conveyance of one's own wasn't to be thought of. It was either too rich for the times or it indicated a proud spirit. So when Dr. Crawford out near Marsh Creek brought into the county the first private conveyance, a Doctor's gig, and used it to go to meeting on Sunday it was nicknamed "Dr. Crawford's Folly."

The homes of a hundred years ago were barren compared to the present home. The first ones were of log and later the logs were incased. Stones being abundant the first permanent dwellings were of stones. The laths were split hickory. The mortar on them a mud mixed with straw. Wood was planed and mortised together for there was not a wealth of nails as at present. The blacksmith hammered out hinges. The entrance way to the houses was by the lifting of a latch.

Tallow Dip Lights

The water for household purposes came from wells, either on your own or a neighbor's lot. There was no water company until in 1823. The light was the tallow dip. The gas company is quite a modern appendage. The houses were heated sometimes with stoves, the old fashioned ten plate stove being a luxury and sometimes the burning wood on the iron dogs in the chimney place gave the only heat in the house. Wood was the fuel in those days.

Living in those days was toiling with the hands. Every home had its spinning wheel. The clothes worn were homespun. The clothing of all inmates of the home were made by hand. The flax raised was the supply of one kind of material and wool ofrm the back of sheep another.

Everything Hand Made

Bedding was homemade. chaff bed, sheets, blankets and the home raised geese furnished the feathers for the big feather bed that kept them warm in winter.

One hundred years ago men and women toiled from the rising to the setting of the sun for the living they had and their work was never done. Everything worn, everything used in the domestic economy, everything eaten was hand made by slow processes.

The farmer of those days had his time fully occupied getting the ground ready for the crops, cutting the crops with the scythe, beating the harvest out with the flail, and doing the endless number of things that had to be done with homemade tools.

The contents of the houses were in a sense homemade. The bedsteads, bureaus, tables, chairs, cupboards, secretaries and whatknots were made slowly by hand by the local cabinet maker. They were mortised and glued together so that to this day many remain perfect.

Think of this picture of one hundred years ago and how much of it is left. Nothing at all. The town is a totally different place. Hardly a vestige left of that which existed a century ago.

If James Gettys should arise from his grave and totter down town with his hound he would not be in the same class with Rip Van Winkle, but more hopelessly lost.

The people of today are not doing a single thing the people of a hundred years ago did, expect breathing, eating and sleeping to live.

Living is largely dished up by machinery. We sleep in beds made by machinery, with bedding made by the same process. We eat a large amount of manufactured food. We still breath out-of-door air but in many houses you have to go out-of-doors to get it.

Old Ways Are Gne

The houses are heated with hot air, steam, hot water or coal stoves. There is water from Marsh Creek by way of the water company plant, analyzed as absolutely pure, and we have it hot and cold, and in bath rooms. The tin pail on the bench in the yard has disappeared. There is gas and electric light instead of the tallow dip and fat lamp. Clothes and furniture, in fact nearly every need of the day is ready made by machinery.

The inventive Yankee with machinery has done away with nearly every vestige of the manner of living of the people of a hundred years ago.

The man of a hundred years ago lived like human beings had largely lived for centuries with a very very slow betterment of the material things about him. Machine-furnished living is thrust upon the 19th century man and hence to the race the past one hundred years have been like no other hundred years and so much development may never be thrust in another hundred years.

Founder Of Gettysburg Built First Home, Opened The First Store, Conducted First Tavern

James Gettys, proprietor of Gettysburg, was not only a man of brains, of determination, of force of character, of resources and bold, but from the distance of almost a century must have been the new County of Adams' foremost citizen in public spiritedness. The prevailing and predominating tone and makeup of this man's life during the quarter of a century expiring between death of his father in 1790, and his own death in 1815 was a public spiritedness, not alone for the sake of self, but for the advancement and good of his county and town.

He not only built the first house, opened the first store and conducted the first tavern, but encouraged others to locate near him and plotted the town. He gave his strenuous support to the movement to create Adams county out of the west end of York county. When the decision hung in the balance he made a gift to the proposed county which had much to do in winning out. This gift had no string to it except that the town should be created and the county seat be located at Gettystown, the only consideration being the advantage it would be to have his town as the county seat.

Create County In 1800

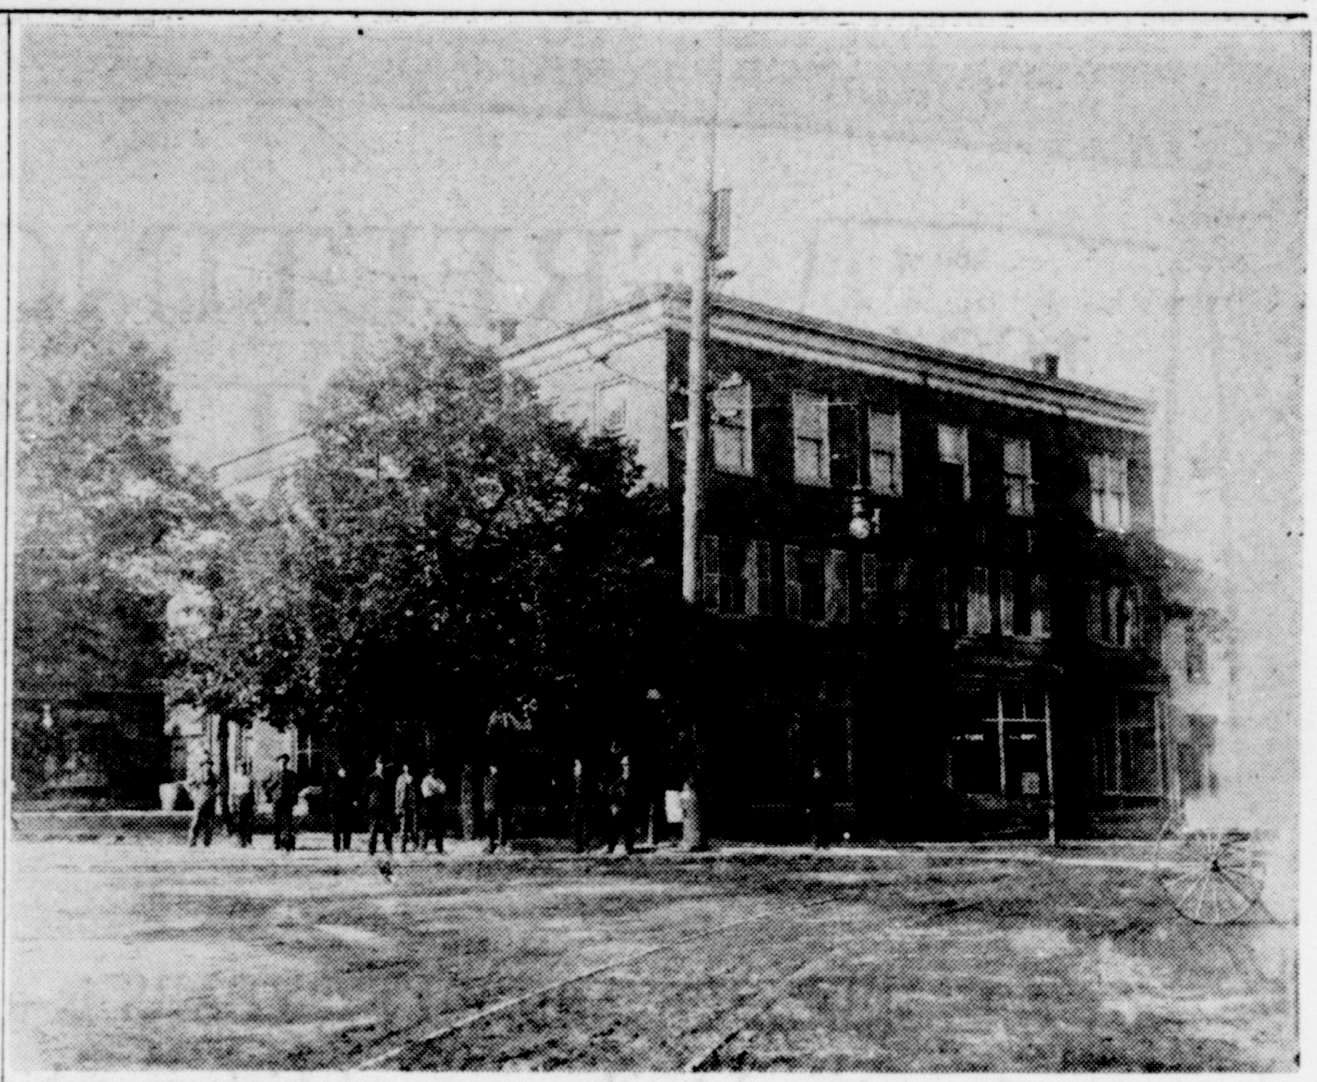
The county of Adams was created by Act of Legislature on January 22, 1800, but a year before, on January 24, 1799, James Gettys and Mary, his wife, executed a paper to Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, which was among the first papers to be recorded when the new county of Adams was created and one clause in it read as follows:

"Whereas, the said James Gettys has laid out two hundred lots in the form of a town which is known by the name of Gettystown, a considerable number of which are improved upon, reserving to himself, and to his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns the yearly ground rent of seven shillings and six pence upon each and every lot as aforesaid to be paid on the 10th day of January of each and every year. And whereas it is in contemplation by the Legislature now assembled, to divide the county of York, and also to fix upon a suitable place for the seat of justice for the new county. Now know ye that for and in consideration of the advantages which we may derive from the increase in value of the remainder of our property by Gettystown being fixed upon for the seat of justice, we therefore, transfer and set over unto the said Alexander Dobbin and David Moore in trust for and to his only proper use and behoof of the said county so to be created all our rights, title and claim whatsoever to the ground rent aforesaid which may accrue after January 4, 1799, and also our right, title, interest and claim to a suitable lot of ground for the purpose of building a goal thereon."

Derived Little Benefit

Reading history backward it is known now that James Gettys derived little benefit from this gift, while the county has enjoyed quit rents amount to about $200 a year for 108 years, a total of over $21,000 due to the liberality and public spiritedness of the proprietor of Gettysburg.

The quit rents given to the county from 200 lots were the lots surrounding the Diamond, along Chambersburg, Carlisle and York Streets for about a square and along Baltimore Street for over two squares, and on East and West Middle Street and East and West High Street.



The photograph shows Lincoln Square at the corner of Chambersburg St. with the IOOF hall pictured. The site is now the First National Bank of Gettysburg. Trolley tracks are shown in the plate. The trolley ran through Gettysburg beginning at the Victor Products plant to Little Round Top.

When Adams county was created, January 22, 1800, no provision had been made for the courts. Room for a court was necessary and James Gettys was equal to the emergency. His home was the first house to be built in the town, was the site of the first store to be opened, was the first tavern to welcome the traveler and now was the first court house for the county of Adams. This necessarily meant much inconvenience to his family then consisting of his mother, Isabelle Gettys, his wife, Mary Todd Gettys, and himself.

The first court was held in the home of James Gettys on June 9th, 1800. There were four terms of court during the year, beginning on the second Mondays of March, June, September and December, and the courts were held in the Gettys home during the years 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803, and until the court house in the Diamond was completed and occupied in 1804.

James Gettys and Samuel Gettys, in building their home about 1783 on virgin land where a building had never stood before, erected the same of logs along generous lines. There was probably some foresight of the uses it would be put to. The rooms were large and had great open fireplaces as the big chimneys made possible.

At the first court session James Gettys was the sixth person to be recommended to the Governor to receive a license for his tavern. Licensed taverns were more numerous in the year 1800 than at present, for while the number does not reach 40 now, in those days the number was over 60.

Founder Of Gettysburg Built First Home, Opened The First Store, Conducted First Tavern

James Gettys, proprietor of Gettysburg, was not only a man of brains, of determination, of force of character, of resources and bold, but from the distance of almost a century must have been the new County of Adams' foremost citizen in public spiritedness. The prevailing and predominating tone and makeup of this man's life during the quarter of a century expiring between death of his father in 1790, and his own death in 1815 was a public spiritedness, not alone for the sake of self, but for the advancement and good of his county and town.

He not only built the first house, opened the first store and conducted the first tavern, but encouraged others to locate near him and plotted the town. He gave his strenuous support to the movement to create Adams county out of the west end of York county. When the decision hung in the balance he made a gift to the proposed county which had much to do in winning out. This gift had no string to it except that the town should be created and the county seat be located at Gettystown, the only consideration being the advantage it would be to have his town as the county seat.

Create County In 1800

The county of Adams was created by Act of Legislature on January 22, 1800, but a year before, on January 24, 1799, James Gettys and Mary, his wife, executed a paper to Alexander Dobbin and David Moore, which was among the first papers to be recorded when the new county of Adams was created and one clause in it read as follows:

"Whereas, the said James Gettys has laid out two hundred lots in the form of a town which is known by the name of Gettystown, a considerable number of which are improved upon, reserving to himself, and to his heirs, executors, administrators and assigns the yearly ground rent of seven shillings and six pence upon each and every lot as aforesaid to be paid on the 10th day of January of each and every year. And whereas it is in contemplation by the Legislature now assembled, to divide the county of York, and also to fix upon a suitable place for the seat of justice for the new county. Now know ye that for and in consideration of the advantages which we may derive from the increase in value of the remainder of our property by Gettystown being fixed upon for the seat of justice, we therefore, transfer and set over unto the said Alexander Dobbin and David Moore in trust for and to his only proper use and behoof of the said county so to be created all our rights, title and claim whatsoever to the ground rent aforesaid which may accrue after January 4, 1799, and also our right, title, interest and claim to a suitable lot of ground for the purpose of building a goal thereon."

Derived Little Benefit

Reading history backward it is known now that James Gettys derived little benefit from this gift, while the county has enjoyed quit rents amount to about $200 a year for 108 years, a total of over $21,000 due to the liberality and public spiritedness of the proprietor of Gettysburg.

The quit rents given to the county from 200 lots were the lots surrounding the Diamond, along Chambersburg, Carlisle and York Streets for about a square and along Baltimore Street for over two squares, and on East and West Middle Street and East and West High Street.

When Adams county was created, January 22, 1800, no provision had been made for the courts. Room for a court was necessary and James Gettys was equal to the emergency. His home was the first house to be built in the town, was the site of the first store to be opened, was the first tavern to welcome the traveler and now was the first court house for the county of Adams. This necessarily meant much inconvenience to his family then consisting of his mother, Isabelle Gettys, his wife, Mary Todd Gettys, and himself.

The first court was held in the home of James Gettys on June 9th, 1800. There were four terms of court during the year, beginning on the second Mondays of March, June, September and December, and the courts were held in the Gettys home during the years 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803, and until the court house in the Diamond was completed and occupied in 1804.

Gettysburg 100 Years Ago

Picture of beginning of borough of Gettysburg. Primitive living in primitive conditions and surroundings.

(Reprinted from The Gettysburg Compiler of March 7, 1906)

burning wood on the iron dogs in the chimney place gave the only heat in the house. Wood was the fuel in those days.

Living in those days was toiling with the hands. Every home had its spinning wheel. The clothes worn were homespun. The clothing of all inmates of the home were made by hand. The flax raised was the supply of one kind of material and wool ofrm the back of sheep another.

Everything Hand Made

Bedding was homemade. chaff bed, sheets, blankets and the home raised geese furnished the feathers for the big feather bed that kept them warm in winter.

One hundred years ago men and women toiled from the rising to the setting of the sun for the living they had and their work was never done. Everything worn, everything used in the domestic economy, everything eaten was hand made by slow processes.

The farmer of those days had his time fully occupied getting the ground ready for the crops, cutting the crops with the scythe beating the harvest out with the flail, and doing the endless number of things that had to be done with homemade tools.

The contents of the houses were in a sense homemade. The bedsteads, bureaus, tables, chairs, cupboards, secretaries and whatknots were made slowly by hand by the local cabinet maker. They were mortised and glued together so that to this day many remain perfect.

Think of this picture of one hundred years ago and how much of it is left. Nothing at all. The town is a totally different place. Hardly a vestige left of that which existed a century ago.

If James Gettys should arise from his grave and totter down town with his hound he would not be in the same class with Rip Van Winkle, but more hopelessly lost.

The people of today are not doing a single thing the people of a hundred years ago did, expect breathing, eating and sleeping to live.

Living is largely dished up by machinery. We sleep in beds made by machinery, with bedding made by the same process. We eat a large amount of manufactured food. We still breath out-of-door air but in many houses you have to go out-of-doors to get it.

Old Ways Are Gne

The houses are heated with hot air, steam, hot water or coal stoves. There is water from Marsh Creek by way of the water company plant, analyzed as absolutely pure, and we have it hot and cold, and in bath rooms. The tin pail on the bench in the yard has disappeared. There is gas and electric light instead of the tallow dip and fat lamp. Clothes and furniture, in fact nearly every need of the day is ready made by machinery.

The inventive Yankee with machinery has done away with nearly every vestige of the manner of living of the people of a hundred years ago.

The man of a hundred years ago lived like human beings had largely lived for centuries with a very, very slow betterment of the material things about him. Machine-furnished living is thrust upon the 19th century man and hence to the race the past one hundred years have been like no other hundred years and so much development may never be thrust in another hundred years.

60 ATTEND BANQUET

Fifty years ago "The Gettysburg Fire Company with members of the Town Council and borough officials thoroughly enjoyed themselves at the annual banquet on last Thursday evening at Globe Hotel. Over sixty persons sat down to the banquet board and when the good things to eat had disappeared and the toasts had been said the banquet was voted to have been one of the best ever held."

ity to open the doors of your home to the wayfarer, for the travelers of those days were literal wayfarers.

James Gettys soon became a political figure in Adams County. The man who had helped to bring about the formation of the county and won the county seat for his town was a man of influence, one held in respect, and when he became candidate for sheriff in 1803 he won easily at the polls and at the December court, 1803, it is James Gettys, Sheriff of Adams County, who summons the jurors to serve at court, which is held at the home of James Gettys.

The public spiritedness of the man is shown in the interest he took in all developments of his town and county. The turnpike was to his day what the railroad and trolley has been to later days, and he was a subscriber to the stock of the Gettysburg and Petersburg turnpike, one of the great pikes of the county.

When the Bank of Gettysburg was incorporated in 1814, James Gettys subscribed for stock in it and became a director of the bank.

Known As General

Those were the days when the military spirit was fostered. The United States had thrown off the English yoke but had not become strong and a patriotic people, peradventure the need, formed military companies and militia wherever there was enough men for the purpose. Gettysburg was no exception. James Gettys gave his encouragement to these organizations took an active interest in them, and derived the title of colonel from that source, and before his death this military title had grown until he was known by every one as General James Gettys.

The record of what James Gettys, proprietor, did certainly shows that he was a public spirited patriot, whose memory the town ought always to cherish. His hand was ever ready to help along a good cause. He presented the ground to the Lutheran and Reformed congregations upon which they built their first union church at the eastern end of High street. He ratified his obligation of 1799 seven or eight years later by making a deed to the county for the land on High street upon which the jail was built.

Home Burned In 1880

A concluding word as to the old log house of the Gettys family would be in place. The first house in Gettysburg, the first store, the first tavern, the first court house stood almost one hundred years. It was after midnight in the early morning of October 28, 1880, that the hay shed of John Gilbert near to the Gettys house caught fire. By the formation of the town the latter stood along the alley, back of the Globe Inn. On the evening before there had been a big Democratic demonstration in Gettysburg in the Hancock-Garfield campaign. McDowell Sharp, of Chambersburg, was one of the speakers of the evening.

In the dead of the night the fire broke out in the hay shed and the flames quickly spread to the Gettys home and in a short time it was burning furiously. The home was then occupied by the Doersom family. The fire gained such headway that an aged aunt, Barbara Smith, had to be carried out of the house scantily clothed. A few things on the first floor were saved, but everything on the second floor went up in flames. That fire was one of the great ones of the town, the Gilbert shed, old Gettys house, Globe Inn stable, Jesse Walter's stable and S. J. Codori's butchering establishment being destroyed.

But the last word has not as yet been said as to James Gettys, proprietor.

Build First Cement Span 50 Years Ago

On last Thursday (Fifty Years Ago) Commissioners Group, Rebert and Bushey opened the bids for the erection of a concrete or cement bridge over Swift Run where the old York turnpike crosses the creek.

It was absolutely necessary to erect this bridge, as the old stone bridge at that point is a ruin and has been pronounced unsafe and dangerous. Recently the commissioners had to put up warnings to prevent heavy wagons using the bridge. A grand jury and the court had approved the building of a bridge at that point.

In determining upon the kind of a bridge the Commissioners decided that a concrete or cement bridge was the kind to erect. Bridgemen say it is the bridge of the future, the kind railroads are now building. The cost is about the same as an iron bridge and when built does not require repairs and one of the big items of expense to the county is the repairing of the 125 bridges owned by county.

9 Feet Above Water

The Swift Run bridge, the first cement bridge to be erected in the county, requires a span of 40 feet in the clear. It will be a single span, 9 feet above the water line with a sixteen foot road bed. The bridge contractor builds all the walls and approaches and the bridge itself is a network of steel of rough surface, firmly planted in the wing walls of cement and every part of the iron imbedded in cement. When finished not an inch of iron is in sight, and bridge is solid cement or rock. The bridge floor is macadamized and there is nothing about the bridge to require repair. The specifications called for a high grade of cement equal to Lehigh. The contractor is to clean up all refuse and turn bridge over complete.

There were two bidders, the Nelson Construction Company bid $2,700 and the York Bridge Co. $3,040. The contract was awarded the Nelson Co., A. G. Shaw, C. E.; of Pittsburgh, to be supervising engineer.

Lovers of music will be glad at the news that Master Bovies, the young violinist, and Master Hahn, the soprano, who gave such a fine concert here last fall under the direction of Mr. Ralph Lewars, will return and give another concert in Brua Chapel next Wednesday, May 29. Chart open at Buehler's Monday. (1906)

Dems Pleased With GOP Rift Over P. O. Post

"The Democrats are having lots of fun these days watching the race for Postmastership in this place and hearing things, The Gettysburg Compiler reported 50 years ago.

"Of course the present incumbent, William B. McIlhenny, believes he is the only one in the race, but the Western Maryland has been collecting fares galore from the politicians as they go down to see 'Lafean'.

"There are others in the race, however, David M. Wolf, Daniel Skelly, Guyon H. Buehler and one or two others have been hinted at, and they have all been busy seeing Lafean. From the reports brought back from Lafean it looks as though Lafean was loaded to side-track all others from the great 'Me Too' of the Republican party in the county, the present incumbent.

"All newcomers are told, at least so it is said by those who go to see Lafean, that the latter makes it plain that incumbents have the inside track as long as the office has been officially inspected and found to be in shape. When they begin to talk politics to the man they go down to see he is ready for them with the inquiry; 'Do you want an inspector sent to the office?' and when they answer 'Pshaw,' indicating that they are talking politics and not inspection, enough light is let loose from the man they are seeing to indicate to most men who are even poor guessers, that the Hon. D. F. Lafean is depending upon the Postmaster of Gettysburg, William B. McIlhenny, to carry Adams county for him this fall. No doubt he is of the opinion no one else can do it. What fun for the Democrats! There are lots of people wondering what President Roosevelt would say about the whole affair if he saw it down in Washington as it is seen by many up here."

Townsman Observes 78th Anniversary

Our estimable townsman, David Troxell, passed his seventieth-milestone in life last Wednesday and was given a delightful surprise in the evening by his five children, serving in his honor a most bountiful supper. Mr. Troxell who is assisting his son-in-law, Chas. B. Dougherty, in the Treasurer's office was busily engaged during the entire day and knew nothing of the surprise that awaited him. It is needless to say that the evening was delightfully spent.

Those present were: Charles W. Troxell and family, William Gilbert and family, Charles B. Dougherty and family, Misses Fannie and Jennie, at home, and Miss Lucy Klunk. (January, 1906).

Build First Cement Span 50 Years Ago

On last Thursday (Fifty Years Ago) Commissioners Group, Rebert and Bushey opened the bids for the erection of a concrete or cement bridge over Swift Run where the old York turnpike crosses the creek.

It was absolutely necessary to erect this bridge, as the old stone bridge at that point is a ruin and has been pronounced unsafe and dangerous. Recently the commissioners had to put up warnings to prevent heavy wagons using the bridge. A grand jury and the court had approved the building of a bridge at that point.

In determining upon the kind of a bridge the Commissioners decided that a concrete or cement bridge was the kind to erect. Bridgemen say it is the bridge of the future, the kind railroads are now building. The cost is about the same as an iron bridge and when built does not require repairs and one of the big items of expense to the county is the repairing of the 125 bridges owned by county.

9 Feet Above Water

The Swift Run bridge, the first cement bridge to be erected in the county, requires a span of 40 feet in the clear. It will be a single span, 9 feet above the water line with a sixteen foot road bed. The bridge contractor builds all the walls and approaches and the bridge itself is a network of steel of rough surface, firmly planted in the wing walls of cement and every part of the iron imbedded in cement. When finished not an inch of iron is in sight, and bridge is solid cement or rock. The bridge floor is macadamized and there is nothing about the bridge to require repair. The specifications called for a high grade of cement equal to Lehigh. The contractor is to clean up all refuse and turn bridge over complete.

There were two bidders, the Nelson Construction Company bid $2,700 and the York Bridge Co. $3,040. The contract was awarded the Nelson Co., A. G. Shaw, C. E.: of Pittsburgh, to be supervising engineer.

MUSICAL CONCERT

Lovers of music will be glad at the news that Master Bovies, the young violinist, and Master Hahn, the soprano, who gave such a fine concert here last fall under the direction of Mr. Ralph Lewars, will return and give another concert in Brua Chapel next Wednesday, May 23. Chart open at Buehler's Monday. (1956)

Loses Arm In Corn Shredder

Charles C. Carey, residing on the old Carey farm and in the stone house made famous from the fact that General Washington ate a dinner in the structure lost an arm last Tuesday afternoon by having it caught in a corn shredder which he was operating on the farm of William H. Johns, along the Mill Road.

The fodder had all been shredded when Mr. Carey, to make a clean job, gathered up some fine pieces and placing them in the machine his left hand was caught by the rollers and the arm was practically torn off at the elbow. What remained of the arm was so tightly fastened in the machinery that, to obtain Mr. Carey's release, it had to be taken apart.

Dr. Walter H. O'Neal was hastily summoned and after examining the arm advised amputation. In this he was assisted by Drs. Stewart and Dalbay, they taking the arm off between the elbow and shoulder.

Mr. Carey, who is a farmer and a hard working man, has been unfortunate during his life. About five years ago he lost five horses, and 3 years later his son, Ralph, was literally ground to pieces by a freight train on the Reading Road within sight of his home. (January 10, 1906).

The regular meeting of the Civic Club will be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the usual place. At the last meeting of the club Mrs. Stewart was re-appointed Secretary and Mrs. Keith Press Correspondent. (1906)

SEMINARY FINANCES

The Citizens' Trust Company, of this place, having been made treasurer of the Seminary in place of Charles S. Weiser, of York, means the transfer to this place of the management of Seminary funds, now largely invested in York. The total on hand is over $203,000 and the institution stands today practically without a debt. Practically because it was stated that all outstanding obligations amounted to $1,000 and that there are promises of contributions to cover this sum. (1906)

Many Flittings In Town 50 Years Ago Despite Deep Mud

Up until comparatively recent years flittings (change of residence) were unusually popular the first of each April. Many made much ado over their and other's flittings and some attractive large gatherings climaxed with a sumptuous meal.

First Todd In America Is Traced Back To Year 1737

In tracing the ancestry of Gen. James Gettys' wife, Mary Todd, the first one of the name found in America was who was born in 1697 in the County of Down, Ireland, came with his second wife, Isabella Hamilton, and five children to America in 1737. Three children were born afterwards two sons, John and David, were by a former wife, Rebecca Dayton. By his second wife, Isabella, there were three sons and four daughters, namely, Mary Elizabeth, Robert, Sarah, William, Rebecca and Andrew. His first wife, Rebecca, died in the County of Down, Ireland; his second wife, of the County of Armagh, Ireland, is buried by the side of her husband in the Providence (Pa.), Churchyard.

They came to Montgomery County, Pa. John, the eldest son, became a Presbyterian minister, and moved to Virginia. David, the second son, settled in Montgomery County and raised four children, who all emigrated to Kentucky. It is from this branch of the family that Mrs. Abraham Lincoln, Mrs. Ex-Governor Helm and Dr. S. S. Todd are descendants.

Came To Pennsylvania

Robert Todd, the second, a son of the second wife, Isabella Hamilton, first settled in Montgomery County, then removed to Chester County, Pa., and there raised his family, one of whom was my grandmother, Mary Todd. Robert Todd, the first, and Robert Todd, the second, both are buried side by side in the Providence Churchyard, the former dying in 1775, the latter in 1815. For the most of this history of the Todd family I am indebted to Col. John Todd, now dead, of Chester County, Pa., and Dr. S. S. Todd, the latter furnishing me a very interesting chart of the family (see on file). He and Mrs. Ex-Governor Helm of Kentucky have collaborated a very thorough history with the intention of putting it in book form. The wife of the second Robert Todd was Eleanor McFarland, daughter of James McFarland.

James Gettys of Tennessee

General James Gettys and wife, Mary Todd, had several daughters, who all died young, and two sons, James and Robert, the latter dying at Gettysburg, aged about 17 years. James removed to Athens, Tennessee in the fall of 1826 where he spent the rest of his life and where he died and was buried, January 27, 1879, in his 80th year. He was the only direct descedant of General James Gettys, the founder of Gettysburg. In the early days of the present century it was, and should be now, to a great extent, thought proper for every boy, of limited or no means, to learn a trade of some kind, therefore soon after his father's death and when he was 17 years of age, my father, James Gettys, apprenticed himself by indenture, (see original on file and worthy of perusal by poor young men of the present day), to one David Beecher of Strabane Township, Pa., a "Tanner and Currier," to learn his "art and mystery" for the period of two years from that date December 26, 1816. On the 18th day of May, 1821, he married Hannah Dickson, of Adams County, Pa., who came with him, together with the only child, Ann Mariah, afterwards the wife of Richard M. Fisher, to Athens, Tennessee, having driven all the way in a carriage, as that was before the day of railroads—in 1826. Here he followed his trade for 25 years and in milling and manufacturing enterprises. Near Athens he built and operated a paper mill for the manufacture of brown wrapping paper, a flour mill, lumber and oil mill.

Built Railroad

About the year 1853 he built the first stone pillars and abutments for the old East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad across the Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia Railroad across the Tennessee River at Loudon, in which transaction ne narrowly escaped bankruptcy. While at Loudon he was stricken with cholera, an epidemic of which disease was then prevailing in various towns of East Tennessee. In 1854 or 1855 he bought and moved to the Sewee mill property in Meigs County, 12 miles north of Athens, where he lived for 12 years, operating farm lands, flour mill, saw mill, cotton spinning, cotton gin and wool carding machines. In 1863 or 1864 the cotton mill burned, without insurance, leaving about one hundred bales of cotton on hand, which he sold to Judge John Baxter for fifty cent per pound in "greenback," who hauled the cotton by wagons to Louisville, Ky., and sold it for one dollar per pound, the prevailing jrice of cotton during these war times. The large profits in the cotton mill had been judiciously invested in lands so that the close of the war my father owned the Sewee Mills property, consisting of thirteen hundred acres and various kinds of mills, and the McClatchey property, with one thousand acres and the mills thereon, twelve miles blow Athens, and from twenty-five to thirty thousand dollars in United States Bonds. He had little knowledge of personal property, such as horses and cattle, but was a fine judge of real estsate investments. These private matters might interest some member of the family.

Son Inherits Property

The Sewee Mills Property in 1866 fell to his son, J. R. Gettys, my father living in Athens the remainder of his life, but having always led a very active life, still engaged in one enterprise and another till advancing years and infirmity prevented. Since manhood he had been an earnest member of the Presbyterian Church and was active in building the first church erected by the Mars Mill Congregation at Athens in 1834. His residence in Meigs County deprived the family of all Presbyterian Church privileges, but during the last fifteen years' residence in Athens and until the close of his life, he was a ruling Elder in the Mars Hill Church and contributed much of his means to its support. He was a man of strong constitu-

The old Eagle Hotel at the corner of N. Washington and Chambersburg St. was built by William T. Ziegler. It burned down in 1894 and was rebuilt the same year. In 1896 Frank Eberhart purchased the hotel which had 60 rooms and was 3 stories high, purchased an adjoining building from his son George Eberhart and added a 4th story. By 1907 the Eberhart Hotel had 165 modern rooms and a dining room capable of seating 300 people. After the retirement of the elder Eberhart the hotel was leased to several groups and then was purchased by George Eberhart in 1927. It is now known as the Adams House and is owned by George F. tion and health, erect in his carriage, about five feet, eleven inches in height and weighing about 177 pounds, but for the most of his life he was defective in his hearing.

Life Without Frills

Life was to him earnest and without frills, and void of much sentiment. He never took vacations from business or enjoyed outdoor sports, telling me once, when I was a boy, that he never had time to go fishing, a strange remark to me then, but not so strange now; seldom indulged in jokes, never tolerating vulgar ones, in his presence; apparently of an austere nature, but really kind and benevolent, and scrupulously honest and upright in his business dealings. Deficient in his early education, not polished in manner, yet he loved educated company, was select in his associations and had sufficient self-esteem to carry him, without embarrassment, in any kind of company.

By his first wife, Hannah Dickson, he had two children, John and Mary, who died in childhood; five children who grew to maturity. First—Ann Mariah (afterwards Mrs. R. M. Fisher) born at Gettysburg, October 26, 1825 (still living June, 1908); Second—Robert Todd, born May 17, 1827, died February 3, 1863, at Tate Springs where he had gone for his health; Third—Margaret Dickson, born March 23, 1829, married George W. Bridges, Esq., died August 19, 1853; Fourth—Eliza J., born April 12, 1831, married John L. Bridges, died December 12, 1854; Fifth—James Ramsey, born June 28, 1833, died June, 1906. To James Gettys and his second wife, Dorothea ("Dolly") Brattan Ramsey, whom he married March 25, 1834, were born the following children:

William Lynn, born June 23, 1835, died unmarried, April 3, 1860.

Hannah Amelia, born January 10 1837, died Sunday, March 4, 1917.

Samuel Francis, born Decembe 13, 1840, still living.

Richard Parshall, born March 1 1844, still living.

Wilberforce, born November 1846, still living.

In August, 1866, James Gett married his third wife, Rebec Glenn of Newville, Pa., by whom had no children and but little pea of mind afterwards.

TROLLEY CAR TAX BIG ISSUE FIFTY YEARS AGO

Tax on trolley cars was an important subject in Gettysburg fifty years ago as reported in the Compiler March 6, 1906.

The March argument court was held on Monday, President Judge S. McC. Swope and Associate Judges George H. Trostle and C. D. Smith on Bench.

Monday was taken up with the argument of trolley car tax case. Gettysburg sued the Gettysburg Transit Company for $150, $50 tax for each of three cars run in 1905. The defendant denied right of borough to pass such taxation law, and that the borough had done nothing by way of inspection to lay the tax and that it was unreasonable. The argument was on a motion for judgment for want of a sufficient affadavit of defense. J. L. Williams Esq. represented the trolley company. Court reserved decision.

The accounts of executors and administrators as advertised were confirmed.

Papers Granted

Authority was granted Caroline Darr, administratrix of Henry C. Darr, late of York Springs borough, deceased to execute a deed for real estate of decedent to G. C. Smith, purchaser, and bond approved.

The return of sale of real estate of Peter Decker, late of Straban Twp., dec'd, was confirmed.

William Heiser was appointed Supervisor of Hamiltonban Twp. to fill a vacancy existing in said office, owing to the failure to elect a supervisor at February election.

Musselman Resigns

J. Elmer Musselman filed his resignation as auditor of Gettysburg, having been elected a school director and H. C. Sanders was appointed auditor to fill vacancy.

William F. Eicholtz was discharged as executor of John Eicholtz, late of Tyrone Twp., deceased.

The widow's list under $300 in estate of Jonas Oyler, late of Menallen Twp., dec'd was filed and ordered to be recorded.

The argument on citation for appeal from probate of will of Dr. David McC. White dec'd was continued to March 12.

Process was awarded for George W. Smith and Raymond Staub.

Alumnae Of Xavier School Form Group

A meeting of the graduates and former pupils of St. Francis Xavier Institute was held Wednesday evening, March 14, 1906. The object of the meeting was to organize an Alumnae Association.

The meeting was opened with a musical program which was creditably rendered. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Miss Emily Brinkerhoff; vice president, Lena Eberhart; treasurer, Annie Codori; secretary, Mary Wassem; executive committee, Misses Rose Stock, Dora Stock, Annie Wisotzkey, Annie McSherry; committee on Entertainments, Misses Marie Stock, Ella Brinkerhoff, Mary Ramer, Kathleen Power.

Every member seemed glad to once more enter into the work, and the association promiss to be helpful in furthering the interests of the institute.

A meeting of the graduates and former pupils of St. Francis Xavier Institute was held Wednesday evening, March 14, 1906. The object of the meeting was to organize an Alumnae Association.

The meeting was opened with a musical program which was creditably rendered. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: President, Miss Emily Brinkerhoff; vice president, Lena Eberhart; treasurer, Annie Codori; secretary, Mary Wassem; executive committee, Misses Rose Stock, Dora Stock, Annie Wisotzkey, Annie McSherry; committee on Entertainments, Misses Marie Stock, Ella Brinkerhoff, Mary Ramer, Kathleen Power.

A very enjoyable evening was spent. This was the first time in the history of the school that the young people have met as an association. Many pleasant school day memories were recalled. Every member seemed glad to once more enter into the work, and the association promiss to be helpful in furthering the interests of the institute.

tion and health, erect in his carriage, about five feet, eleven inches in height and weighing about 177 pounds, but for the most of his life he was defective in his hearing.

Life Without Frills

Life was to him earnest and without frills, and void of much sentiment. He never took vacations from business or enjoyed outdoor sports, telling me once, when I was a boy, that he never had time to go fishing, a strange remark to me then, but not so strange now; seldom indulged in jokes, never tolerating vulgar ones, in his presence; apparently of an austere nature, but really kind and benevolent, and scrupulously honest and upright in his business dealings. Deficient in his early education, not polished in manner, yet he loved educated company, was select in his associations and had sufficient self-esteem to carry him, without embarrassment, in any kind of company.

By his first wife, Hannah Dickson, he had two children, John and Mary, who died in childhood; five children who grew to maturity. First—Ann Mariah (afterwards Mrs. R. M. Fisher) born at Gettysburg, October 26, 1825 (still living June, 1908); Second—Robert Todd, born May 17, 1827, died February 3, 1863, at Tate Springs where he had gone for his health; Third—Margaret Dickson, born March 23, 1829, married George W. Bridges, Esq., died August 19, 1853; Fourth—Eliza J., born April 12, 1831, married John L. Bridges, died December 12, 1854; Fifth—James Ramsey, born June 28, 1833, died June, 1906. To James Gettys and his second wife, Dorothea ("Dolly") Brattan Ramsey, whom he married March 25, 1834, were born the following children:

William Lynn, born June 23, 1835, died unmarried, April 3, 1860.

Hannah Amelia, born January 10 1837, died Sunday, March 4, 1917.

Samuel Francis, born Decembe 13, 1840, still living.

Richard Parshall, born March 1 1844, still living.

Wilberforce, born November 1846, still living.

In August, 1866, James Gett married his third wife, Rebec Glenn of Newville, Pa., by whom had no children and but little pea of mind afterwards.

Thaddeus Stevens Was Iron Baron, Legislator And U.S. Congressman; Practiced Law Here Several Years

Thaddeus S. Stevens, one of the great "iron barons" of the area, and an influential figure in national politics was at one time one of Gettysburg's leading citizens.

The man who served in the Pennsylvania General Assembly and in seven sessions of Congress in Washington, D. C., as a Whig and had a hand in the attempted impeachment of Andrew Johnson as President of the United States in 1868, began his law practice in Gettysburg in 1816.

After graduating from Dartmouth in 1814 Stevens read law for a few months at Peacham Academy, where he prepared for college, and later left his native Vermont for York, Pa. There Stevens taught in Dr. Perkins' Academy while continuing his legal studies. Because of the rules of that district requiring lawyers to expend extra hours reading law in a law office to be admitted to the bar, Stevens found it expedient to cross the state line to Belair, Md., where the court admitted applicants who passed an examination and fulfilled the qualifications. He was admitted to the bar in a short time.

Stroke Of Luck

Stevens practised law in an office on Chambersburg St., and also in offices of what is now the southeast corner of the Hotel Gettysburg lobby, or flower shop.

A murder committed near Gettysburg proved to be a stroke of luck for Stevens who until that time had not been overly busy. No lawyer would undertake the defense. Stevens was engaged for the case. He conducted the defense so well, his natural ability was immediately recognized. The fee of $1,500 which he received for his work became the basis of his fortune.

Soon after he achieved success Stevens' first act was to provide for the comfort of his mother who was still residing in Vermont.

Sought Water Works

Afte his election to the Gettysburg Borough Council in 1822 Stevens began a campaign for public water works. The first water supply of Gettysburg became a reality largely through his efforts.

Many important cases brought before court were counseled by Stevens during his career in Adams County. Living in a border county helped to provoke his interest in fugitive slaves. Many illegally held negroes were liberated by his efforts. When the law did not avail, he bought and freed the slaves.

One incident often quoted demonstrating Stevens' sentiments on the slave issue is the following: "Stevens set out on a journey to Baltimore for the purpose of making additions to his law library. He had saved several hundred dollars for the purpose and started for Baltimore, but at Hagerstown came upon the intended sale of a slave. The attending circumstances made it one of the worst instances of the kind. Stevens loved his profession, and badly needed the books. He may have hesitated, but he did buy and free the slave. The law library waited."

Served In Assembly

Stevens was elected a member from Adams County to the General Assembly in 1831 where he became active in the interest of public schools.

Stevens ranked among the foremost men as a member of the convention for the reform of the State Constitution in 1837. In 1838 he was appointed one of the canal commissioners of Pennsylvania, and in 1830 was active in the Harrison campaign.

The close of Stevens' legislative career came in 1841. The next years he devoted himself to his profession and the repair of his fortunes. In 1842 he moved to Lancaster where his income during his first year's residence reached the immense sum—for that period—of $15,000.

Elected To Congress

He was first elected to Congress from the Lancaster district in 1844. He served with distinction, but retired to private life at the close of his term. He maintained an active interest in politics, and was one of the delegates to the first Republican convention.

The Congressional election of 1853 put Stevens in the political limelight again. He served until his death August 11, 1868. The highlight of his congressional career was his appointment as chairman of the committee on ways and means throughout the war period. His entire Congressional career covered a little less than fourteen years.

Strongly interested in education throughout his career Stevens supported all educational measures in politics. One of the last acts of his life was the preparation of a plan for education in the District of Columbia. Requesting a new member of Congress to vote in favor of a college appropriation Stevens adjured him: "Young man, never in all your life oppose any measure for the education of the people. You will never regret it."

Stevens is often credited with the creation of the public school system in Pennsylvania when actually he did not design it but strengthened it and helped it to endure. After the system had been constructed by people of the state, and it was about to undergo annihilation Stevens gathered together all the arguments against popular education and showed them to their upholders. The arguments were clad in language that those who had come to oppose it remained to support. Single-handed Stevens met and conquered a tremendous uprising of the elements of fear, prejudice and ignorance in the case of popular education.

The iron industry, another important phase of Stevens' life, did not help his career financially, but was an interesting phase of his life. His connection with the iron industry began early in his Gettysburg career. His first real interest in iron began in 1826 when several hundred acres of land were bought on the eastern side of the mountain, above Fairfield, and the Maria Furnace was built by J. D Paxton and Company. The other members of the firm were J. B. McPherson and T. C. Miller.

Colonel Paxton, who managed the property and lived for some years at Maria Furnace, was well known for his ability as an iron-master. The chief industry was the casting of stoves and hollow ware, but the venture was not very successful, owing to the poor quality of the ore, which made a very brittle iron.

The partners mulled over some other method of using the iron, and in 1830 bought land on the eastern side of the South Mountain, where they built a forge, called Mifflin forge. It was a short distance below the forks of the Conococheague, and was supplied with water from that stream by a race, which also supplied a rolling mill and a second forge, both built some years afterward.

Mifflin forge ran successfully until 1833, when on the night of the "falling stars" it was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt, and about the same time the "big house" was built. Colonel Paxton removed from Maria furnace to Caledonia.

Maria furnace was shut down in 1838.

The universal event among iron men in 1840, bankruptcy, hit Stevens too but bounced off just as quickly because of his resourcefulness. His own saying that Stevens the lawyer had often saved Stevens the iron-master from bankruptcy was literally true. In 1842 he purchased Colonel Paxton's half of the estate and assumed all of the debt.

He left the practical management of the furnace in competent hands while he undertook the reduction of his debts, and in five years' time reduced them from $217,000 to $30,000.

The ore used at Caledonia was at first brought from a mine near the "furnace bank," but a fortunate washout in a rain storm accidentally disclosed the celebrated Pond Bank ore. It was this ore which gave the Caledonia iron its reputation as the best in the state and large quantities of boiler iron were made at the forge.

Every building of the iron works was destroyed during the Civil War. The total loss in property and material amounted to $80,000 but no indemnity was ever asked for or received.

With the exception of the lower forge and rolling mill, the works were rebuilt and business was resumed; but after Mr. Stevens' death in 1868 they closed for all time.

The First Hundred Years

Turnpike, Railroad Building, County Fair, Lost Industries . . . Epochs Of Development

The following is an interesting article on life in Gettysburg from 1806 to 1906

The tale of the last hundred years is another story, as Kipling would say, and a story upon which chapter after chapter could be written.

The decision that Gettysburg should be the county seat was followed by an epoch of building, over 60 buildings being erected in a few years. The court house was erected in Center Square. Business men of the day put up buildings around the square. A jail was built. In the first score of years the first building at the Almshouse was put up. Churches and homes were also added to the county seat.

Gettysburg was hardly created before the era of turnpike building began. Gettysburg was on the highway between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and was the junction of another turnpike to Baltimore.

Taverns And Inns

The building of the pikes developed the taverns and inns. Gettysburg became a famous stopping place and nearly every square had a tavern or inn. They were different from the hotels of today.

A necessary part of a wagon inn was a big yard, usually paved with cobblestones, into which the Conestoga wagons could be driven and sheltered. Sometimes the wagons would be used by the emigrants to live in, sometimes the inns gave a night's lodging.

The wagoneers were a picturesque feature of that epoch. Perhaps his team was one of six horses and over each horse was a half hoop to which several bells were fastened. The advent of a wagon could be heard ringing afar off.

Everything was carried in the Conestoga wagons, boxes, barrels, coal and over the end board often could be seen a row of eyes belonging to the emigrants destined to develop the great west land

Water Company Started

The teamster often rode the saddle horse, or he would stretch himself on the lazy board, or he would walk the hills.

The stage coach was just as picturesque a mode of travel, with its big belly into which one could disappear and be rolled and jolted over the long stretches of pike.

The Gettysburg Water Company came into existence in 1823 and the first method of distributing the spring water was primitive, through wooden pipe, and the remains of one of these old wooden pipes was dug up during the past year.

Later the reservoir on Stratton St. was built and iron pipe substituted for the wooden ones.

When the railroad building epoch struck the county, Gettysburg had many hopes which failed to materialize. It looked in the thirties as through the Pennsylvania railroad might follow the turnpike road and Gettysburg would be on its main line. The Gettysburg branch of the Pennsylvania railroad was incorporated.

"Tunnel In Mountains"

Thaddeus Stevens worked hard to get a railroad built through Gettysburg to his iron works in the mountains and much work was done on a road bed, which was caricatured in those days as beginning nowhere and ending in a hole in the ground—a tunnel in the mountains.

It was late in the fifties, after a score of years in which a railroad had been talked about that the first railroad was completed to this place. The first train arrived July 1, 1858, and it came under the name of Hanover Junction, Hanover and Gettysburg railroad.

The first half century of existence of the town was marked with a fame of carriage building plants. When this industry was at its height, Gettysburg was undoubtedly building more carriages than any other community in the country.

Many Carriage Plants

Nearly every one in the town was interested in the carriage building industries. The stores kept certain supplies needed and there was plenty of work in all the branches.

The carriage plant of David Little was one of the largest and that of William Hoffman a good second to it. There were numerous other establishments, those of Leonard Stough, William Graham, Dauner and Ziegler and others.

The various branches of the business required separate buildings and a carriage plant was an imposing business concern.

There was the blacksmith shop in which the iron work was made and tires put on wheels.

In the cabinet making shop the bodies of the carriages were made and built.

Then they went to the trimming shops, where the canvas covers were made and stretched over the tops.

Silversmith Shop

The paint shop was near at hand in which they were finished. The business required a silversmith shop in which the silver plating for the carriages was done. Robert D. Armor, one of our oldest citizens, for many years conducted the silversmith shop in one of the establishments.

The war broke up the business for the town and one by one the shops ceased until today there is but one shop run, that of Harry Troxel.

It was a sight to see a float of carriages leave Gettysburg. They

Silversmith Shop

The paint shop was near at hand in which they were finished. The business required a silversmith shop in which the silver plating for the carriages was done. Robert D. Armor, one of our oldest citizens, for many years conducted the silversmith shop in one of the establishments.

The war broke up the business for the town and one by one the shops ceased until today there is but one shop run, that of Harry Troxel.

It was a sight to see a float of carriages leave Gettysburg. They

THE JAYCEE CREED

We believe:

That faith in God gives meaning and purpose to human life:

That the brotherhood of man transcends the sovereignty of nations;

That economic justice can best be won by free men through free enterprise;

That government should be of laws rather than of men;

That earth's great treasure lies in human per[illegible]lity;

And that service to humanity is the best work of life.

WE EXTEND CONGRATU[illegible]S TO THE TOWN OF GETT[illegible]G!

The George E. Stock retail cigar store was located on Baltimore St. where the Haines Shoe store now stands. Stock had his cigar factory in the alley near the store. The photograph shows some of the employes and patrons. Gracing the front is a huge cigar store Indian. Stock's daughter Mrs. Michael Flynn still lives in the building above the shoe store. The sign between the two gentlemen seated on the bench reads "Best 2 for 5 in town."

were not taken out by train, or knocked down in the Conestoga wagons. The finished carriage in a neat cover of muslin was hitched one behind the other, as many as a pair of horses could pull and these floats would start southward for a market. The work of a season would go away in the floats and the return of those in charge would be awaited anxiously for wages and profits were tied up in them. When the money arrived in town it meant good times.

Made Some Hats

The carriage making business with its many branches is not the only one that has disappeared in the one hundred years. At one time the making of hats was quite an extensive business in Gettysburg.

William Paxton was engaged in the making of hats, so also was Smith McCreary, Samuel Ziegler and others. Not a hatter remains and there hasn't been one in the place for many years.

The lace weaving was an industry of the past. Robert Sheads, the oldest native born citizen of the borough, was among the last to be engaged in this business.

A number of tanneries flourished during the century and all but one have disappeared. Those last to disappear were the Winebrenner tannery down in Sleepy Hollow, the Rupp tannery on Stratton street, opposite St. James Lutheran Church and the Gilbert tannery along the railroad. There were older ones that had disappeared before those mentioned.

Spinning Wheel Factory

A spinning wheel factory was started soon after the borough was incorporated. A large pottery was doing a good business at that time. Among the last of the old potteries to be operated was the Menchey pottery. A sugar cane mill was operated for a number of years by Henry Utz. Chair making was quite a business of the town before the war. The town had its full quota of good cabinet makers, shoemakers and other expert workmen.

The Gas Company commenced business about 1860.

Four years of Civil War passed over the land and Gettysburg had become a name known around the world. Here the greatest Anglo-Saxon armies that ever waged war met and Gettysburg was the beginning of the end of the issue that determined that the Union must forever remain indissoluble.

The battlefield epoch is the name of the period of time the town entered nearly 43 years ago and in which it still goes forward and is destined to go forward perhaps for ages to come.

National Cemetery

The great battle, the creation of the National Cemetery, the organization of the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association have developed this epoch. It fittingly led up to a Battlefield Commission maintained by the United States, with an ultimate object in view of the Gettysburg National Military Park.

Before the battlefield epoch got in full swing there was a County Fair era, beginning after the war and lasting a number of years. There were races, good horses, fat cattle, prize hogs, poultry, etc.

There was the house in which the big pumpkin was exhibited, or biggest cabbage, or largest cucumber, or big yam.

There was the old Agricultural Hall, holding the main exhibit in needle work, knitting, preserves, jellies and jams, bread, biscuits and cake.

Adams County Fair

The Adams County Fair was a picnic looked forward to from year to year and talked about for weeks afterwards. County Fairs however seem to be a thing of the past.

The intellectual development of Gettysburg began long before the town was chartered. Away back in 1776 Alexander Dobbin was conducting the first classical school west of the Susquehanna River.

The County had no sooner been created than Pennsylvania was asked and appropriated $2,000 for the establishment of the Gettysburg Academy. The building at the corner of Washington and High Streets, now known as Linwood was erected. Samuel Ramsey, of Dickinson College was supposed to be the first teacher. In 1820 Rev. David McConaughy had charge of the school.

In 1826 the Lutheran Theological Seminary was established and soon became apparent that there was need for a preparatory department. Rev. David Jacobs with Michael Jacobs later took charge of the Gettysburg Academy.

The Academy was sold at Sheriff Sheriti's sale in 1829 and was bought by Rev. Dr. S. S. Schmucker and a classical and scientific department to the Seminary organized. This led up to the founding of Gettysburg College in 1832. Preparations are being made to celebrate the 75 years of successful career of the college next year.

From the opening of the railroad in 1858 Gettysburg was for more than a quarter of a century a jumping off point. There were those who believed it would never be anything else.

In 1884 however the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad was completed, instead of being a terminus Gettysburg was now two of them or a termini.

About the same time the old Hanover Junction and Gettysburg railroad passed into the hands of the Western Maryland and the work of building westward began.

Today Gettysburg, if not on the main line of a transcontinental railroad, the Wabash, is on one of the most important of its branches and is easy of access by both railroads.

The last decade or two has given a new Gettysburg, one that has moved forward rapidly. New business buildings, new enterprises new water plant in that time, electric light plant and street railway complete modern sewer plant and many other up-to-date and up-to-the-minute developments.

There are those who have been away from the town only 20 years when they return have to hunt around for the familiar.

This chapter is only the merest outline sketch of the past hundred years. It could be filled in with a million and one details.

he devoted himself to his profession and the repair of his fortunes. In 1842 he moved to Lancaster where his income during his first year's residence reached the immense sum—for that period—of $15,000.

Elected To Congress

He was first elected to Congress from the Lancaster district in 1844 He served with distinction but retired to private life at the close of his term. He maintained an active interest in politics, and was one of the delegates to the first Republican convention.

The Congressional election of 1853 put Stevens in the political limelight again. He served until his death August 11, 1868. The highlight of his congressional career was his appointment as chairman of the committee on ways and means throughout the war period. His entire Congressional career covered a little less than fourteen years.

Strongly interested in education throughout his career Stevens supported all educational measures in politics. One of the last acts of his life was the preparation of a plan for education in the District of Columbia. Requesting a new member of Congress to vote in favor of a college appropriation Stevens adjured him: "Young man, never in all your life oppose any measure for the education of the people. You will never regret it."

Stevens is often credited with the creation of the public school system in Pennsylvania when actually he did not design it but strengthened it and helped it to endure. After the system had been constructed by people of the state, and it was about to undergo annihilation Stevens gathered together all the arguments against popular education and showed them to their upholders The arguments were clad in language that those who had come to oppose it remained to support Single-handed Stevens met and conquered a tremendous uprising of the elements of fear, prejudice and ignorance in the case of popular education.

The iron industry, another important phase of Stevens' life, did not help his career financially, but was an interesting phase of his life. His connection with the iron industry began early in his Gettysburg career His first real interest in iron began in 1826 when several hundred acres of land were bought on the eastern side of the mountain, above Fairfield, and the Maria Furnace was built by J. D Paxton and Company. The other members of the firm were J. B. McPherson and T. C. Miller.

Colonel Paxton, who managed the property and lived for some years at Maria Furnace, was well known for his ability as an iron-master. The chief industry was the casting of stoves and hollow ware, but the venture was not very successful, owing to the poor quality of the ore, which made a very brittle iron.

The partners mulled over some other method of using the iron, and in 1830 bought land on the eastern side of the South Mountain, where they built a forge, called Mifflin forge. It was a short distance below the forks of the Conococheague, and was supplied with water from that stream by a race, which also supplied a rolling mill and a second forge, both built some years afterward.

Mifflin forge ran successfully until 1833, when on the night of the "falling stars" it was destroyed by fire. It was rebuilt, and about the same time the "big house" was built. Colonel Paxton removed from Maria furnace to Caledonia.

Maria furnace was shut down in 1838.

The universal event among iron men in 1840, bankruptcy, hit Stevens too but bounced off just as quickly because of his resourcefulness. His own saying that Stevens the lawyer had often saved Stevens the iron-master from bankruptcy was literally true. In 1842 he purchased Colonel Paxton's half of the estate and assumed all of the debt.

He left the practical management of the furnace in competent hands while he undertook the reduction of his debts, and in five years' time reduced them from $217,000 to $30.000.

The ore used at Caledonia was at first brought from a mine near the "furnace bank," but a fortunate washout in a rain storm accidentally disclosed the celebrated Pond Bank ore. It was this ore which gave the Caledonia iron its reputation as the best in the state and large quantities of boiler iron were made at the forge.

Every building of the iron works was destroyed during the Civil War. The total loss in property and material amounted to $80,000 but no indemnity was ever asked for or received.

With the exception of the lower forge and rolling mill, the works were rebuilt and business was resumed: but after Mr. Stevens' death in 1868 they closed for all time.

Weekly Editor Omits Name Of Candidate From Story

The editor of The Star and Sentinel reported a meeting of the Democratic county committee in his May 23, 1906 edition but "forgot" to mention the name of a prominent democrat whom some sought to unseat. In a paragraph underneath the one-line head of the article was this sentence: "Resolution denying Mr. McSherry the right of renomination defeated."

The article which folows telling of the meeting failed to even mention Mr. McSherry's name.

This is the article:

At the meeting of the Democratic County Committee at the Globe Hotel on Saturday the following were elected delegates to the State Convention: Walter S. Olewine, Reading Township; James R. Neely, Huntington and Joseph S. Felix, Freedom.

A resolution was introduced by ex-Secretary A. J. Bucher, which caused a heated discussion among the committeemen. It follows:

Whereas, We deem the present time a propitious one to inspire renewed devotion to Democratic principles, and

Whereas, The People's rights, though alway⁺ full and definite, at times seem vague and uncertain, be it therefore

Resolution Is Defeated

Resolved, That no candidate, even though the right to select his own conferees has been delegated by convention, can have the right or power either personally or through his conferees to pledge the future action of the people. We love to think of our country as a Democracy; we cannot think of it as an autocracy. Be it therefore further

Resolved, That when the conferees of Adams County met the conferees of York County and fulfilled their mission; namely, to arrange a system of nominations for Congress from the 20th Congressional district that shall be just and equitable and properly protect the right of each county, "the limit of their powers was reached." We believe with the Democratic convention of August, 1904, that, "The Congressional nomination is not a species of property to which any individual can acquire an indefeasible claim."

Resolved, That the time is here to elect a Democratic Representative who will 'ruly represent the people. Such man's qualifications must be evident capability and old fashioned honesty, signed by the chairman and Secretary and published in two county papers of general circulation.

After considerable discussion the resolution was referred to a committee of three, composed of the following gentleman: A. J. Bucher, L. H. Rice and E. C. Weisensale. The committee met in the afternoon and voted the resolution down, one being in favor of and two against the same.

The George E. Stock retail cigar store was located on Baltimore St. where the Haines Shoe store now stands. Stock had his cigar factory in the alley near the store. The photograph shows some of the employes and patrons. Gracing the front is a huge cigar store Indian. Stock's daughter Mrs. Michael Flynn still lives in the building above the shoe store. The sign between the two gentlemen seated on the bench reads "Best 2 for 5 in town."

were not taken out by train, or knocked down in the Conestoga wagons. The finished carriage in a neat cover of muslin was hitched one behind the other, as many as a pair of horses could pull and these floats would start southward for a market. The work of a season would go away in the floats and the return of those in charge would be awaited anxiously for wages and profits were tied up in them. When the money arrived in town it meant good times.

Made Some Hats

The carriage making business with its many branches is not the only one that has disappeared in the one hundred years. At one time the making of hats was quite an extensive business in Gettysburg.

William Paxton was engaged in the making of hats, so also was Smith McCreary, Samuel Ziegler and others Not a hatter remains and there hasn't been one in the place for many years.

The lace weaving was an industry of the past Robert Sheads, the oldest native born citizen of the borough. was among the last to be engaged in this business.

A number of tanneries flourished during the century and all but one have disappeared. Those last to disappear were the Winebrenner tannery down in Sleepy Hollow, the Rupp tannery on Stratton street, opposite St. James Lutheran Church and the Gilbert tannery along the railroad. There were older ones that had disappeared before those mentioned.

Spinning Wheel Factory

A spinning wheel factory was started soon after the borough was incorporated. A large pottery was doing a good business at that time. Among the last of the old potteries to be operated was the Menchey pottery. A sugar cane mill was operated for a number of years by Henry Utz. Chair making was quite a business of the town before the war. The town had its full quota of good cabinet makers, shoemakers and other expert workmen.

The Gas Company commenced business about 1860.

Four years of Civil War passed over the land and Gettysburg had become a name known around the world. Here the greatest Anglo-Saxon armies that ever waged war met and Gettysburg was the beginning of the end of the issue that determined that the Union must forever remain indissoluble.

The battlefield epoch is the name of the period of time the town entered nearly 43 years ago and in which it still goes forward and is destined to go forward perhaps for ages to come.

National Cemetery

The great battle. the creation of the National Cemetery, the organization of the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association have developed this epoch. It fittingly led up to a Battlefield Commission maintained by the United States, with an ultimate object in view of the Gettysburg National Military Park.

Before the battlefield epoch got in full swing there was a County Fair era, beginning after the war and lasting a number of years There were races, good horses, fat cattle, prize hogs, poultry, etc.

There was the house in which the big pumpkin was exhibited, or biggest cabbage, or largest cucumber, or big yam.

There was the old Agricultural Hall, holding the main exhibit in needle work, knitting, preserves, jellies and jams, bread, biscuits and cake.

Adams County Fair

The Adams County Fair was a picnic looked forward to from year to year and talked about for weeks afterwards. County Fairs however seem to be a thing of the past.

The intellectual development of Gettysburg began long before the town was chartered. Away back in 1776 Alexander Dobbin was conducting the first classical school west of the Susquehanna River.

The County had no sooner been created than Pennsylvania was asked and appropriated $2,000 for the establishment of the Gettysburg Academy. The building at the corner of Washington and High Streets, now known as Linwood was erected. Samuel Ramsey, of Dickinson College was supposed to be the first teacher. In 1820 Rev. David McConaughy had charge of the school.

In 1826 the Lutheran Theological Seminary was established and soon became apparent that there was need for a preparatory department. Rev. David Jacobs with Michael Jacobs later took charge of the Gettysburg Academy.

The Academy was sold at Sheriff Sheriti's sale in 1829 and was bought by Rev. Dr. S. S. Schmucker and a classical and scientific department to the Seminary organized. This led up to the foundation of Gettysburg College in 1832. Preparations are being made to celebrate the 75 years of successful career of the college next year.

From the opening of the railroad in 1858 Gettysburg was for more than a quarter of a century a jumping off point. There were those who believed it would never be anything else.

In 1884 however the Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad was completed, instead of being a terminus Gettysburg was now two of them or a termini.

About the same time the old Hanover Junction and Gettysburg railroad passed into the hands of the Western Maryland and the work of building westward began.

Today Gettysburg, if not on the main line of a transcontinental railroad, the Wabash, is on one of the most important of its branches and is easy of access by both railroads.

The last decade or two has given a new Gettysburg, one that has moved forward rapidly. New business buildings, new enterprises new water plant in that time, electric light plant and street railway complete modern sewer plant and many other up-to-date and up-to-the-minute developments.

There are those who have been away from the town only 20 years when they return have to hunt around for the familiar.

This chapter is only the merest outline sketch of the past hundred years. It could be filled in with a million and one details.

Judge William McClean's Reminiscenes Of Gettysburg As It Was In The 1830's Were Printed In Compiler By Editor's Son

On March 7, 1906, William Arch McClean, editor of the Gettysburg Compiler, printed a letter of reminiscence from his father, Judge William McClean, in which the latter recalled the old days in Gettysburg when he was a youngster some thirty years before the Civil War. He called the recollections "A Rosary of Memories."

Judge McClean attended Gettysburg College in 1846-47 and then received his B.A. degree from Washington College. He took his law degree at Harvard, practiced law in Gettysburg from 1854 to 1875, was president judge, 42nd Pennsylvania district, 1875-1894. He retired in 1894 and died in 1915 at the age of 82. Judge McClean was also a member of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention in 1873. His "letter to the Editor" follows.

Mr. Editor: — I beg leave to present to your readers of today a few of my recollections of Gettysburg, as it was thirty years before the battle. I was born in that part of the three-story brick house on the S. W. corner of Baltimore street and the Public Square fronting on the Square and looking toward the old Court House. This building was erected by my maternal grandfather, John McConaughy, in 1817. He was admitted to practice law just one hundred years ago. My father, Moses McClean, was a law student in his office in the same building, and he married the oldest daughter of his preceptor.

Public Buildings

The old Court House was very different from any public building erected since the war. The Judge's bench was on the Carlisle street side and there were large pillars supporting the gallery, something like the old St. John's Church in Richmond, Va., in which Patrick Henry made his famous speech in the House of Burgesses before the Revolutionary War, his closing words being "Give me liberty or give me death." The jury rooms were in the second story. The first President Judge whom I can recollect was John Reed of Carlisle.

The public offices were on the N. E. corner of the Square where the store of G. W. Weaver & Son is now. The office of the Prothonotary was in the corner room, that of the Register and Recorder and Clerk of the Courts was next to it, on the Square. The County Commissioners' office was in the corner room of the second floor.

A market house stood on the east side of the Court House. There were no meat shops in town. The butchers, notably Nicholas Codori and James Pierce, had their stalls in the market house and would take orders for meat. In court weeks and on public occasions Pap Brigeal had a table in the market house supplied with hard boiled eggs, ginger bread and small beer.

The corner room on Carlisle street of the McClellan House was occupied as a general store by my grandfather, William McClean, and afterwards by John Fahnestock, the father of Mrs. Col. C. H. Buehler. There was an office on the east side of the hotel occupied by Thaddeus Stevens, Esq., James Dobbins, Esq., attorney-at-law, and which later became the den of Col. John H. McClellan.

Business Establishments

The three-story brick house on the S. E. corner of the Square and York street was a hotel kept by Anthony B. Kurtz, the father of Mrs. Amos Eckert.

The S. E. corner of the Square and Baltimore street was kept as a store by Sam Witherow, afterwards by Bob McSherry, with old Hugh Scott as clerk.

The S. W. corner on Baltimore street was kept as a general store by George Arnold, the S. W. corner on Chambersburg street by John Sell as a hardware store, and the N. W. corner was the Smith store, afterwards Boyer's. Miss Eliza Smith and her brother, Robert, president of the bank, living in the house, the site of which is now Amos Eckert's. Ephraim and Robert Martin, tailors, occupied the frame building still standing in the corner. John Stevenson, father of the late John M. Stevenson, carried on a store in the N. W. corner of Square and Carlisle street. David Kendlehart occupied what is now Miss Eva Danner's music room and parlor as a shoemaker shop.

Hal Reed, gay and merry Hal, a son of Judge Reed, had for his office what was John McConaughy's law office and as you entered you would find a large placard with the instructive directions, "Over at Bob McSherry's or Dave Kendlehart's," showing that Hal's practice was by no means burdensome or likely to bring on nervous prostration. He afterwards went to St. Paul, Minn., and came within one vote of being elected a Democratic U. S. senator.

Father's Law Office

Moses McClean had his law office where George Stock's cigar store is and where I studied my lessons in the evening by the light of a tallow dip requiring frequent snuffing, and used a goose quill pen for writing. Daniel M. Smyser had his law office where the post office was afterwards kept by George Geyer and what is now the Italian fruit store. James M. Cooper, afterwards a U. S. senator and general in the War of the Rebellion, resided and had his law office in what was afterwards the Neely building, now part of the Weaver store. David McConaughy had his office for a while in what was the office of his father, John McConaughy, afterwards in what is now the Quimby residence on Chambersburg street.

Where the present Court House now stands was a row of brick buildings, three on Baltimore street

The photograph shows a view of Baltimore St. looking north toward Lincoln Square and the Hotel Gettysburg. The man in the street has been identified as "Bert" Danner the proprietor of a novelty shop on Baltimore St. near what is now Minter's store. Danner was a brother of the donors of the YWCA building. The ad on the pole is for Peoples Drug store. The poster beneath the sign, with the photographs in the upper corners is said to be an ordinance forbidding the use of firearms in the borough. A few days later the Battle of Gettysburg is said to have broken out.

and two on Middle street, owned by John Barrett, father of Mrs. Sarah B. King. The corner one was occupied by Barrett family. The next on Baltimore street by Dr. Charles Berluchey, a practicing physician and a Democratic postmaster. The doctor had been a soldier of Napoleon in his wars and his speech was affected by a bullet shot through his cheeks. Miss Nancy Miller kept a boarding house, particularly for students in the house over the store now kept by George W. Spangler. Another Democratic postmaster was William Bell, who had his office in the building now of Charles E Stahle, Esq.

In this three decade period Gettysburg was noted for its manufacture of carriages and Lutheran preachers. Long strings of new carriages, covered with muslin would wind their way out of town, down into Maryland and Virginia and further South to supply the well-to-do Southerners with pleasure vehicles, the business affording work for numerous hands of wood-workers, blacksmiths, trimmers and painters and also platers, Mr. Robert D. Armor being a survivor of this latter class, whilst merchants sold the materials and supplies. The principal of these were Samuel Fahnestock and David Ziegler and Danner & Ziegler

Hotels Located

The students on Seminary Hill were trained by Dr. Hazelius, Dr. Schmucker and others, and sent all over the country to minister to Lutheran churches. I write chiefly of what occurred before the time of railroads and certainly before the era of battlefield guides.

The hotels were the Gettys Tavern on York street, long known as the "Globe," first kept by the original proprietor of the town, General James Gettys, afterwards by William Gillespie, then by his son-in-law, Harvey D. Wattles, Charles Will, Samuel Wolf et al.

The Franklin House, kept by William McClellan Sr, from and to which ran the old stages between York and Gettysburg, affording thus an outlet for travel to and from Philadelphia. The stages had a boot in the rear for passengers' trunks and baggage and the driver cracking his whip over his team was a conspicuous person in the public eye

Lashell's Tavern

Lashell's Tavern stood where Mr. Duncan's office and Mrs. William H. Wierman's building now are. It was afterwards kept by Gourley, John Yeatts, Henry Forry, Hugh M. Craig and others

The Eagle Hotel was kept by James A. Thompson, and a stage line ran from it to Harrisburg and one to Chambersburg.

There was also a hotel kept by Mrs. Winroth, at one time a temperance house, now the City Hotel.

Wagon Taverns

There were two wagon taverns, one at the junction of the Baltimore turnpike and the Emmitsburg road, kept by Conrad Snyder in his time, with the large surrounding yard for wagons, now the Battlefield Hotel, the other was on the south side of Chambersburg street about where Jerome Schwart's store is, which was kept by Ditterline. This had also a yard for the big wagons.

I recollect these turnpike schooners carrying large companies of robust German emigrants, men, women and children, who had landed in Baltimore and took this means of conveyance to Pittsburgh, where they could find boats for points further west and by their thrift and industry improve and beautify our glorious land of the free.

We had the martial spirit manifested more strikingly than at present. There were three companies entirely distinct. The Old Gettysburg Guards commanded by Capt. Daniel M. Smyser, with the negro fifer and drummers dressed in scarlet. The Gettysburg Troop, commanded by Capt. William McCurdy, afterwards by his son, Capt. Robert McCurdy, with Hill McCreary as Lieutenant. These troopers wore a large Roman helmet with long horse hair plumes. I recollect seeing these helmets stored in one of the upper rooms of the old court house. Then there was a company of Mountain Rangers commanded by Capt. Scott. Their uniform was green, the blouse being skirted with fringe after the style of frontier scouts. A leading feature of their tactics, and in which they excelled, was swift running. They were fine specimens of vigorous, athletic manhood. The fires of the Revolution had not burnt out in the hearts of the people and their love of country and readiness to defend her, whenever an occasion might call for them, were cherished and nurtured. Later Gen. James Reed, who had been a regular Army officer, one of our lawyers, and a half-brother of Hal, commanded for a while the Independent Blues.

Old Church Locations

Some of our churches have changed location. The Presbyterian stood near the P. & R. station on the west side of North Washington street, with its surrounding graveyard. The introduction of larc lamps in the church, in the place of candles for light, when Dr., David McConaughy was pastor, was considered a notable occasion and a special sermon was preached by him from the text. Genesis 1, 3, "And God said let there be light, and there was

Weekly Editor Omits Name Of Candidate From Story

The editor of The Star and Sentinel reported a meeting of the Democratic county committee in his May 23, 1906 edition but "forgot" to mention the name of a prominent democrat whom some sought to unseat. In a paragraph underneath the one-line head of the article was this sentence: "Resolution denying Mr. McSherry the right of renomination defeated."

The article which folows telling of the meeting failed to even mention Mr. McSherry's name.

This is the article:

At the meeting of the Democratic County Committee at the Globe Hotel on Saturday the following were elected delegates to the State Convention: Walter S. Olewine, Reading Township; James R. Neely, Huntington and Joseph S. Felix, Freedom.

A resolution was introduced by ex-Secretary A. J. Bucher, which caused a heated discussion among the committeemen. It follows:

Whereas, We deem the present time a propitious one to inspire renewed devotion to Democratic principles, and

Whereas, The People's rights, though always full and definite, at times seem vague and uncertain, be it therefore

Resolution Is Defeated

Resolved, That no candidate, even though the right to select his own conferees has been delegated by convention, can have the right or power either personally or through his conferees to pledge the future action of the people. We love to think of our country as a Democracy; we cannot think of it as an autocracy. Be it therefore further

Resolved, That when the conferees of Adams County met the conferees of York County and fulfilled their mission; namely, to arrange a system of nominations for Congress from the 20th Congressional district that shall be just and equitable and properly protect the right of each county, "the limit of their powers was reached." We believe with the Democratic convention of August, 1904, that, "The Congressional nomination is not a species of property to which any individual can acquire an indefeasible claim."

Resolved, That the time is here to elect a Democratic Representative who will 'ruly represent the people. Such man's qualifications must be evident capability and old fashioned honesty, signed by the chairman and Secretary and published in two county papers of general circulation.

After considerable discussion the resolution was referred to a committee of three, composed of the following gentleman: A. J. Bucher, L. H. Rice and E. C. Weisensale. The committee met in the afternoon and voted the resolution down, one being in favor of and two against the same.

light." The Roman Catholic was on the west side of South Washington street. It had a high pulpit and its seating capacity was small. The first priest I can recall was Father Dougherty. St. James Lutheran and the German Reformed were a union church, where the Reformed church now is. It had a high pulpit with a staricase leading to it, and galleries and two bells, which seemed never to be so happy after they were separated. Father Benjamin Keller, the good old Lutheran pastor, was one of the most polite men who ever lived in our community. He would raise his hat to every man, woman and child he met and spread the sunshine of his smile. He called two of his sons after two great Apostles, Peter Paul and Paul Peter.

The only colored church was a log one on Long Lane, with Old Uncle Charlie Pearson in the Amen corner.

The schoolhouses were one story buildings, except the stone one which stood about where the present school building is on High street, nearly opposite the jail. There was one at the junction of the Mummasburg turnpike and the Harrisburg road, this side of the run, the McCurdy lot being part of the playground. My grandfather, William McClean, taught in this building I have some recollection of passing under his rod, as an illustration of his impartiality Entertainments were sometimes held in this schoolroom, there being no public hall for this purpose.

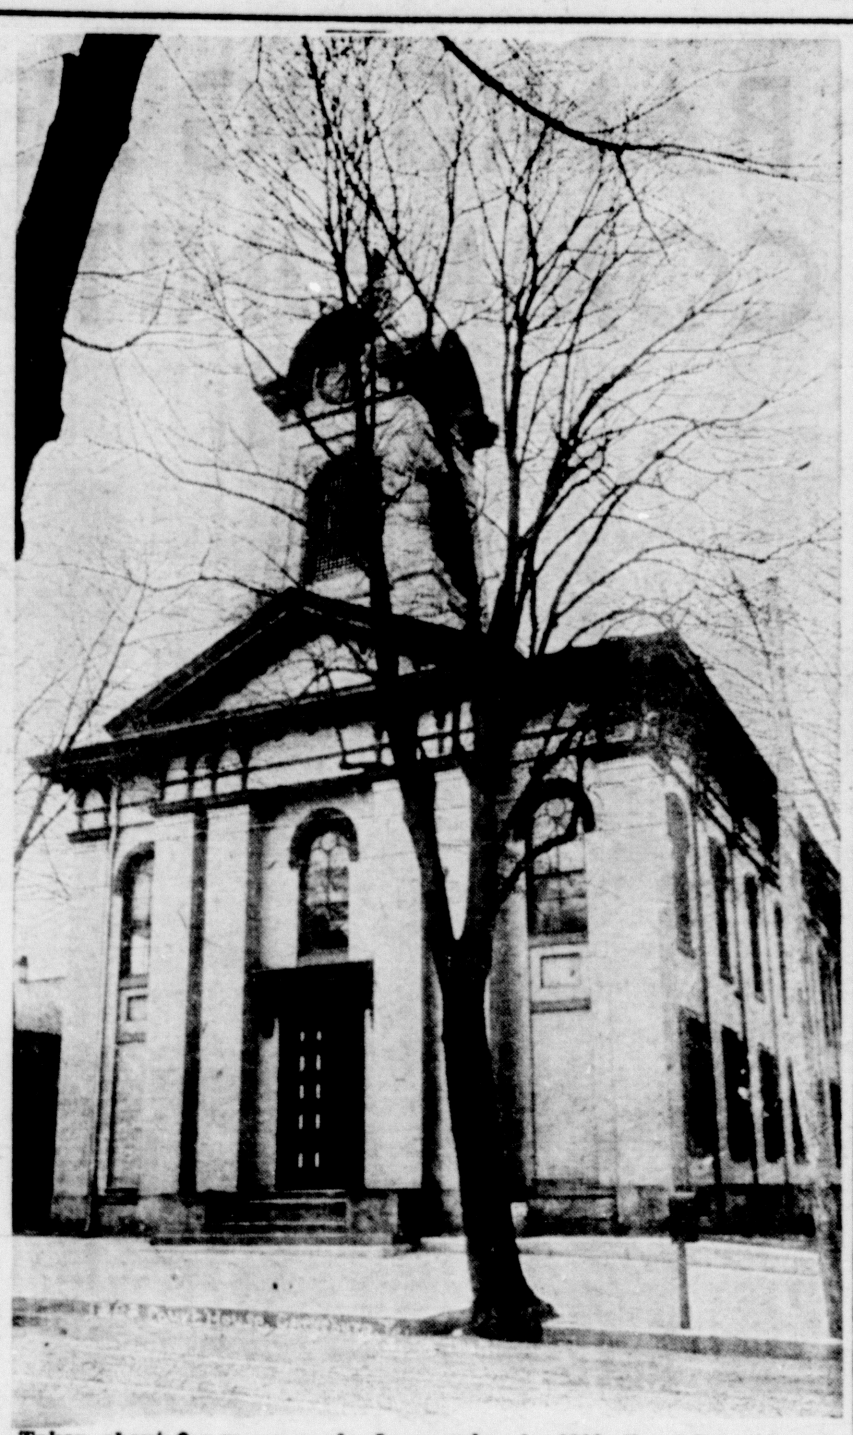
Schoolhouses

There was a brick schoolhouse on the south side of East Middle street in which Harvey D. Sweeney taught. He was somewhat stern and of quick temper. There was afterwards adjoining this building on the east, a sorghum mill operated by Henry Utz.

Billie Clark, an Irishman, taught in the High street school, roasted his potatoes in the school room stove and gave the tirls and boys a gay May First, near Spangler's Spring, with the Maypole and May Queen and merry dance. Oh these were joyous days! Sometimes there would be billetdoux passing containing the heart's utterances, such as

The rose is red,
The violet is blue,
Sugar is sweet
And so are you.

Young love's fair dream!



Taken about 8 a.m. on a cloudy morning in 1890, the Adams County Court House at its present location on Baltimore St. is shown with a tree mail box in the front. Both are gone now. The tree across the street in the upper foreground has been gone for years, too.

There was also a brick schoolhouse on S. W. corner of High and Washington streets. And then the good old Irish lady, Miss Matilda Scanlan, had her A B C school in a one story log building on the west side of Carlisle street, which stands, but has been weatherboarded. It is about opposite Mr. Butt's residence. The Utz family lived in it at one time.

Older Natives

Of the old native born people, the last child of John McConaughy died last Sunday, after celebrating her 87th birthday last Thursday. Mrs. Elizabeth Stover, whose sweet gentle life was one constant, quiet undertone of peace and praise. One of the oldest surviving natives of Gettysburg, perhaps the oldest, is Dr. Alexander Speer McClean, of Springfield, Mass., the only surviving child of my grandfather, Hon. William McClean, who had been one of the associate judges of our courts.

We had but one bank, with its dignified, courtly old Cashier, John B. McPherson and Teller Col. John McClellan. There was no rush or hurry or crowd there. Col. McClellan was, as many living know, a fearless man. A blazing turpentine ball had been thrown up and fell on the roof of the old court house, when quick as a flash the Col. hurried up to the cupola, jumped out on the steep roof and kicked the ball off, thus saving the building from fire at the risk of his life His fearless ascension in Wise's balloon in the play ground of the old schoolhouse at the junction of the Mummasburg and Harrisburg roads is a matter of history. He was somewhat like Napoleon in his features and possessed some of his dash.

Baptist Church Dedicated Here

The church edifice of the German Baptist Brethren on Stratton Street is typical of those who worshipped within its walls and dedicated it to the service of the Lord on last Sunday morning, fifty years ago.

The building is substantial, plain and simple. The former church on the Baltimore turnpike had been taken down carefully and as much of it as could be used entered into the present structure. The church was cased in brick, being unlike the former structure to this particular. The same pews were used.

The church is 33 by 49 feet and the whole space within is used for the auditorium, except a vestibule, which is separated from the room by three door ways, leading respectively to the middle and side aisles. It has a seating capacity of 300.

Elder Beahn Speaks

Elder N. H. Beahn, of Elizabethtown, delivered the dedication sermon taking as his text I Cor., 6 chapter, 13 verse. After speaking of the dedication of the building to the service of the Lord, he referred to the more important matter of the dedication of the human body to the same service. That this dedication could be best carried out by living the simple life, the plain life, which has been a characteristic of the Brethren. That this life was made up of old time virtues; honesty, and no man could be honest with his fellowman until he was first honest with himself. Patience was a need of the plain life as well as a need of the times, as also, was a sermon of great power and listened to most attentively by a large audience filling the church.

It was stated that a small debt remained to be met, as cost of erecting church had exceeded amount at first estimated and provided. A liberal collection was taken up.

Elder N. H. Beahn spoke at the services on Sunday evening.

light." The Roman Catholic was on the west side of South Washington street. It had a high pulpit and its seating capacity was small. The first priest I can recall was Father Dougherty. St. James Lutheran and the German Reformed were a union church, where the Reformed church now is. It had a high pulpit with a staricase leading to it, and galleries and two bells, which seemed never to be so happy after they were separated. Father Benjamin Keller, the good old Lutheran pastor, was one of the most polite men who ever lived in our community. He would raise his hat to every man, woman and child he met and spread the sunshine of his smile. He called two of his sons after two great Apostles, Peter Paul and Paul Peter.

99 YEARS OF BANKING SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY!

Back in the Horse and Buggy Days, a group of prominent men in Gettysburg and Adams County started a Bank right here on Lincoln Square. It commenced business on the 11th day of April in 1857 as a State Bank — The Farmers and Mechanics Savings Institution. About seven years later this same bank was granted a National Charter (No. 311) — the first Bank in Adams County to get a National Charter and it then became The First National Bank of Gettysburg.

The men who founded this Bank believed there was a need for the kind of Banking Service this Bank set out at that time to render. The great growth in size and the continuous broadening of the financial services rendered in these 99 years have confirmed the judgment of these men.

In the intervening years, the First National Bank of Gettysburg has appreciated the privilege of serving and of contributing materially to the growth and development of this area. The First National continues to serve in the same spirit, but with modern methods through sound, progressive policies and from the same location on Lincoln Square.

As this historic community celebrates its 150th birthday anniversary, The First National Bank extends greetings and congratulations. We are justly proud of the community in which we have been privileged to render a complete Banking Service for more than 99 years and we express our gratitude to all of those whose loyalty and patronage have made this growth and this opportunity possible.

The photograph shows a view of Baltimore St. looking north toward Lincoln Square and the Hotel Gettysburg. The man in the street has been identified as "Bert" Danner the proprietor of a novelty shop on Baltimore St. near what is now Minter's store. Danner was a brother of the donors of the YWCA building. The ad on the pole is for Peoples Drug store. The poster beneath the sign, with the photographs in the upper corners is said to be an ordinance forbidding the use of firearms in the borough. A few days later the Battle of Gettysburg is said to have broken out.

and two on Middle street, owned by John Barrett, father of Mrs. Sarah B. King. The corner one was occupied by Barrett family The next on Baltimore street by Dr. Charles Berluchey, a practicing physician and a Democratic postmaster. The doctor had been a soldier of Napoleon in his wars and his speech was affected by a bullet shot through his cheeks. Miss Nancy Miller kept a boarding house, particularly for students in the house over the store now kept by George W. Spangler. Another Democratic postmaster was William Bell, who had his office in the building now of Charles E Stahle, Esq.

In this three decade period Gettysburg was noted for its manufacture of carriages and Lutheran preachers. Long strings of new carriages, covered with muslin would wind their way out of town down into Maryland and Virginia and further South to supply the well-to-do Southerners with pleasure vehicles, the business affording work for numerous hands of wood-workers, blacksmiths, trimmers and painters and also platers. Mr. Robert D Armor being a survivor of this latter class, whilst merchants sold the materials and supplies. The principal of these were Samuel Fahnestock and David Ziegler and Danner & Ziegler

Hotels Located

The students on Seminary Hill were trained by Dr. Hazelius, Dr Schmucker and others, and sent all over the country to minister to Lutheran churches I write chiefly of what occurred before the time of railroads and certainly before the era of battlefield guides.

The hotels were the Gettys Tavern on York street, long known as the "Globe " first kept by the original proprietor of the town, General James Gettys, afterwards by William Gillespie, then by his son-in-law, Harvey D Wattles, Charles Will, Samuel Wolf et al

The Franklin House, kept by William McClellan Sr., from and to which ran the old stages between York and Gettysburg, affording thus an outlet for travel to and from Philadelphia. The stages had a boot in the rear for passengers' trunks and baggage and the driver cracking his whip over his team was a conspicuous person in the public eye

Lashell's Tavern stood where Mr Duncan's office and Mrs William H Wierman's building now are It was afterwards kept by Gourley, John Yeatts, Henry Forry, Hugh M. Craig and others

The Eagle Hotel was kept by James A Thompson, and a stage line ran from it to Harrisburg and one to Chambersburg.

There was also a hotel kept by Mrs Winroth, at one time a temperance house, now the City Hotel.

Wagon Taverns

There were two wagon taverns, one at the junction of the Baltimore turnpike and the Emmitsburg road, kept by Conrad Snyder in his time, with the large surrounding yard for wagons, now the Battlefield Hotel, the other was on the south side of Chambersburg street about where Jerome Schwart's store is, which was kept by Ditterline. This had also a yard for the big wagons.

I recollect these turnpike schooners carrying large companies of robust German emigrants, men, women and children, who had landed in Baltimore and took this means of conveyance to Pittsburgh, where they could find boats for points further west and by their thrift and industry improve and beautify our glorious land of the free.

We had the martial spirit manifested more strikingly than at present. There were three companies entirely distinct The Old Gettysburg Guards commanded by Capt Daniel M. Smyser, with the negro fifer and drummers dressed in scarlet The Gettysburg Troop, commanded by Capt. William McCurdy afterwards by his son, Capt. Robert McCurdy, with Hill McCreary as Lieutenant. These troopers wore a large Roman helmet with long horse hair plumes I recollect seeing these helmets stored in one of the upper rooms of the old court house. Then there was a company of Mountain Rangers commanded by Capt. Scott. Their uniform was green, the blouse being skirted with fringe after the style of frontier scouts. A leading feature of their tactics, and in which they excelled, was swift running. They were fine specimens of vigorous, athletic manhood. The fires of the Revolution had not burnt out in the hearts of the people and their love of country and readiness to defend her, whenever an occasion might call for them, were cherished and nurtured Later Gen. James Reed, who had been a regular Army officer, one of our lawyers, and a half-brother of Hal, commanded for a while the Independent Blues.

Old Church Locations

Some of our churches have changed location. The Presbyterian stood near the P. & R station on the west side of North Washington street with its surrounding graveyard. The introduction of iarc lamps in the church in the place of candles for light when Dr., David McConaughy was pastor, was considered a notable occasion and a special sermon was preached by him from the text. Genesis 1, 3, "And God said let there be light, and there was

On this the 150th Anniversary of Gettysburg, we extend to our town our hearty congratulations.

The Spirit of Gettysburg is far reaching—it is history, opportunity, life, death, and the rights of man.

Through the years the spirit of working together for one common cause—the advancement and betterment of our community—civic—education—industry—has made it a better place to live and work. Excerpts From Second Issue Of First Newspaper Published In Gettysburg, Nov. 19, 1800

The first newspaper published in Gettysburg (and Adams County) was The Adams Centinel. Its first issue was November 12, 1800. For some unknown reason a copy of the first edition was not preserved. Beginning with the second edition, November 19, 1800, all the issues were preserved and now, in bound form, and microfilmed, are preserved in the fireproof vaults of The Gettysburg Times.

The Centinel is published every Wednesday, on paper and type of which this is a specimen—and forwarded to such places as shall be directed, by the earliest opportunity. The annual price is TWO DOLLARS to be paid half yearly, in advance—viz. One dollar on receiving the first number of each half year.

Advertisements, of no more length than breadth, inserted the first four times for One Dollar; and for each continuance after, one-fifth of a Dollar. Those exceeding a square in the same proportion.

Those gentlemen who took charge of subscription papers, will please to accept the sincere thanks of the Editor for their attention; and will confer a farther obligation on him by forwarding them to the Printing Office as early as possible.

(Editor's Note—the above article appeared on the front page of this issue, the first on record at the Times' office.)

Volume On Washington

Also on the front page appears a paragraph telling of a volume being prepared on Washington, his life, his poems, orations, etc., by Francis Johnston and William Hamilton.

On the first page in the second column the Centinel advertises "For Sale at this printing-Office" Three Sermons stating briefly the evidences of Christianity, 31 cents, . . . a Short and Easy Method with the Deists, Price 19 Cents . . . The Prompter, an article on common sense, Price 25 Cents . . . an Oration on the Progress of the United States, 12½ Cents . . . an Address to the People of the United States by George Washington, Esq. . . . Price 12½ Cents . . . The Mothers' Catechism and the 1801 Almanac.

At the bottom of column two on page one is the following advertisement: RAGS—Two Cents per pound, will be given for Clean Linen and Cotton Rags—and one cent, per pound, for woolen Rags, delivered at this Printing Office. .

On the first page is the copy of a letter written by "An American to the Pittsburgh Gazette in connection with the general belief that "the people of this country are divided into two parties—of Monarchists, and Republicans; than which, there never was a greater falsehood. . . ."

Another letter, from "A Farmer" was also copied from The Gazette.

On page two appear the minutes of the Pennsylvania Legislature of the House of Representatives dated November 5 (1800) from Lancaster. Minutes from the Senate meeting are carried over to page three and are dated Wednesday, Nov. 21.

One Local Item

Seemingly the only local news item appears at the bottom of column one, page three, headed "Gettysburg." Dated November 19, the paragraph reads as follows: "On Monday next commences a Court of Over and Terminer and General Goal Delivery, in this town, for Adams County."

Beneath this brief statement is a notice that the War-Office in Washington had burnt. Dated Baltimore, Nov. 9, the article reads: "The War Office at Washington City, was destroyed by fire last evening, and all the papers belonging to it, except the Accountant's."

"We have seen a letter dated Washington, Nov. 8, 12 o'clock at night confirming the above—It states, "that two small engines and about fifty buckets of various kinds, with a bad supply of water, were all the means they were possessed of to quench it. . . ."

On page three, column two, appears a number of interesting international news briefs. One, of special interest, was "The President of the United States, occupies the city of Washington, the spacious building erected for the accommodation of our Chief Magistrate.

On page three is a letter from Moses McClean written from Carroll's Delight, Nov. 17, 1800. It is addressed "To the Citizens of Adams and part of York Counties" assuring them that he had his compass in good order and was ready for surveying jobs and that he was only prevented from "executing warrants after the appointment of Samuel Sloan."

He said he will survey privately whether or not he is re-appointed again by the people as county surveyor.

On the last page there appears

The above photograph was taken sometime between 1926 and 1929 before the entrance to the Wills House. The group shown are all residents of the area who were Civil War veterans. 49 Years With Community Service!

On April, 1907, the 78 men of Adams County were granted dispensation by the Grand Aerie to form the Gettysburg Lodge of Eagles. The original 78 men have now grown to over 1,300 members of Gettysburg Aerie Number 1562, and the fraternity has grown nationally to the largest of its kind in the nation, with over a million members. It is a benefit paying, fraternal order, composed of 1,000,000 Americans in more than 1,600 Aeries dedicated to building better communities in a finer country. It is an organization of good fellows finding fun and friendships in their Eagle memberships. It is a humanitarian organization, one that carried the fight for mothers' pensions, workman's compensation, old age pensions and social security laws. It is a patriotic organization which had more than 150,000 of its members serving in the armed forces of the United States and Canada and with its local units taking the lead in war bond sales, blood plasma campaigns, salvage collections and community war services. Its four cardinal virtues are Liberty, Truth, Justice, and Equality, and the greatest of these Equality—equality of opportunity for all and a fair chance in the race of life for every mother's son. Its emblem is the national emblem of the United States — the great American, white-crested eagle, synod of courage, strength and hardihood.

Seemingly the only local news item appears at the bottom of column one, page three, headed "Gettysburg." Dated November 19, the paragraph reads as follows: "On Monday next commences a Court of Over and Terminer and General Goal Delivery, in this town, for Adams County."

Beneath this brief statement is a notice that the War-Office in Washington had burnt. Dated Baltimore, Nov. 9, the article reads: "The War Office at Washington City, was destroyed by fire last evening, and all the papers belonging to it, except the Accountant's."

"We have seen a letter dated Washington, Nov. 8, 12 o'clock at night confirming the above—It states, "that two small engines and about fifty buckets of various kinds, with a bad supply of water, were all the means they were possessed of to quench it. . . ."

On page three, column two, appears a number of interesting international news briefs. One, of special interest, was "The President of the United States, occupies the city of Washington, the spacious building erected for the accommodation of our Chief Magistrate.

On page three is a letter from Moses McClean written from Carroll's Delight, Nov. 17, 1800. It is addressed "To the Citizens of Adams and part of York Counties" assuring them that he had his compass in good order and was ready for surveying jobs and that he was only prevented from "executing warrants after the appointment of Samuel Sloan."

He said he will survey privately whether or not he is re-appointed again by the people as county surveyor.

On the last page there appears

The above photograph was taken sometime between 1926 and 1929 before the entrance to the Wills House. The group shown are all residents of the area who were Civil War veterans. Three heard Lincoln deliver his Gettysburg Address. The Gettysburg Times offers the following identifications: First row, left to right: William H. 49 Years With Community Service!

On April, 1907, the 78 men of Adams County were granted dispensation by the Grand Aerie to form the Gettysburg Lodge of Eagles. The original 78 men have now grown to over 1,300 members of Gettysburg Aerie Number 1562, and the fraternity has grown nationally to the largest of its kind in the nation, with over a million members. It is a benefit paying, fraternal order, composed of 1,000,000 Americans in more than 1,600 Aeries dedicated to building better communities in a finer country. It is an organization of good fellows finding fun and friendships in their Eagle memberships. It is a humanitarian organization, one that carried the fight for mothers' pensions, workman's compensation, old age pensions and social security laws. It is a patriotic organization which had more than 150,000 of its members serving in the armed forces of the United States and Canada and with its local units taking the lead in war bond sales, blood plasma campaigns, salvage collections and community war services. Its four cardinal virtues are Liberty, Truth, Justice, and Equality, and the greatest of these Equality—equality of opportunity for all and a fair chance in the race of life for every mother's son. Its emblem is the national emblem of the United States — the great American, white-crested eagle, symbol of courage, strength and hardihood.

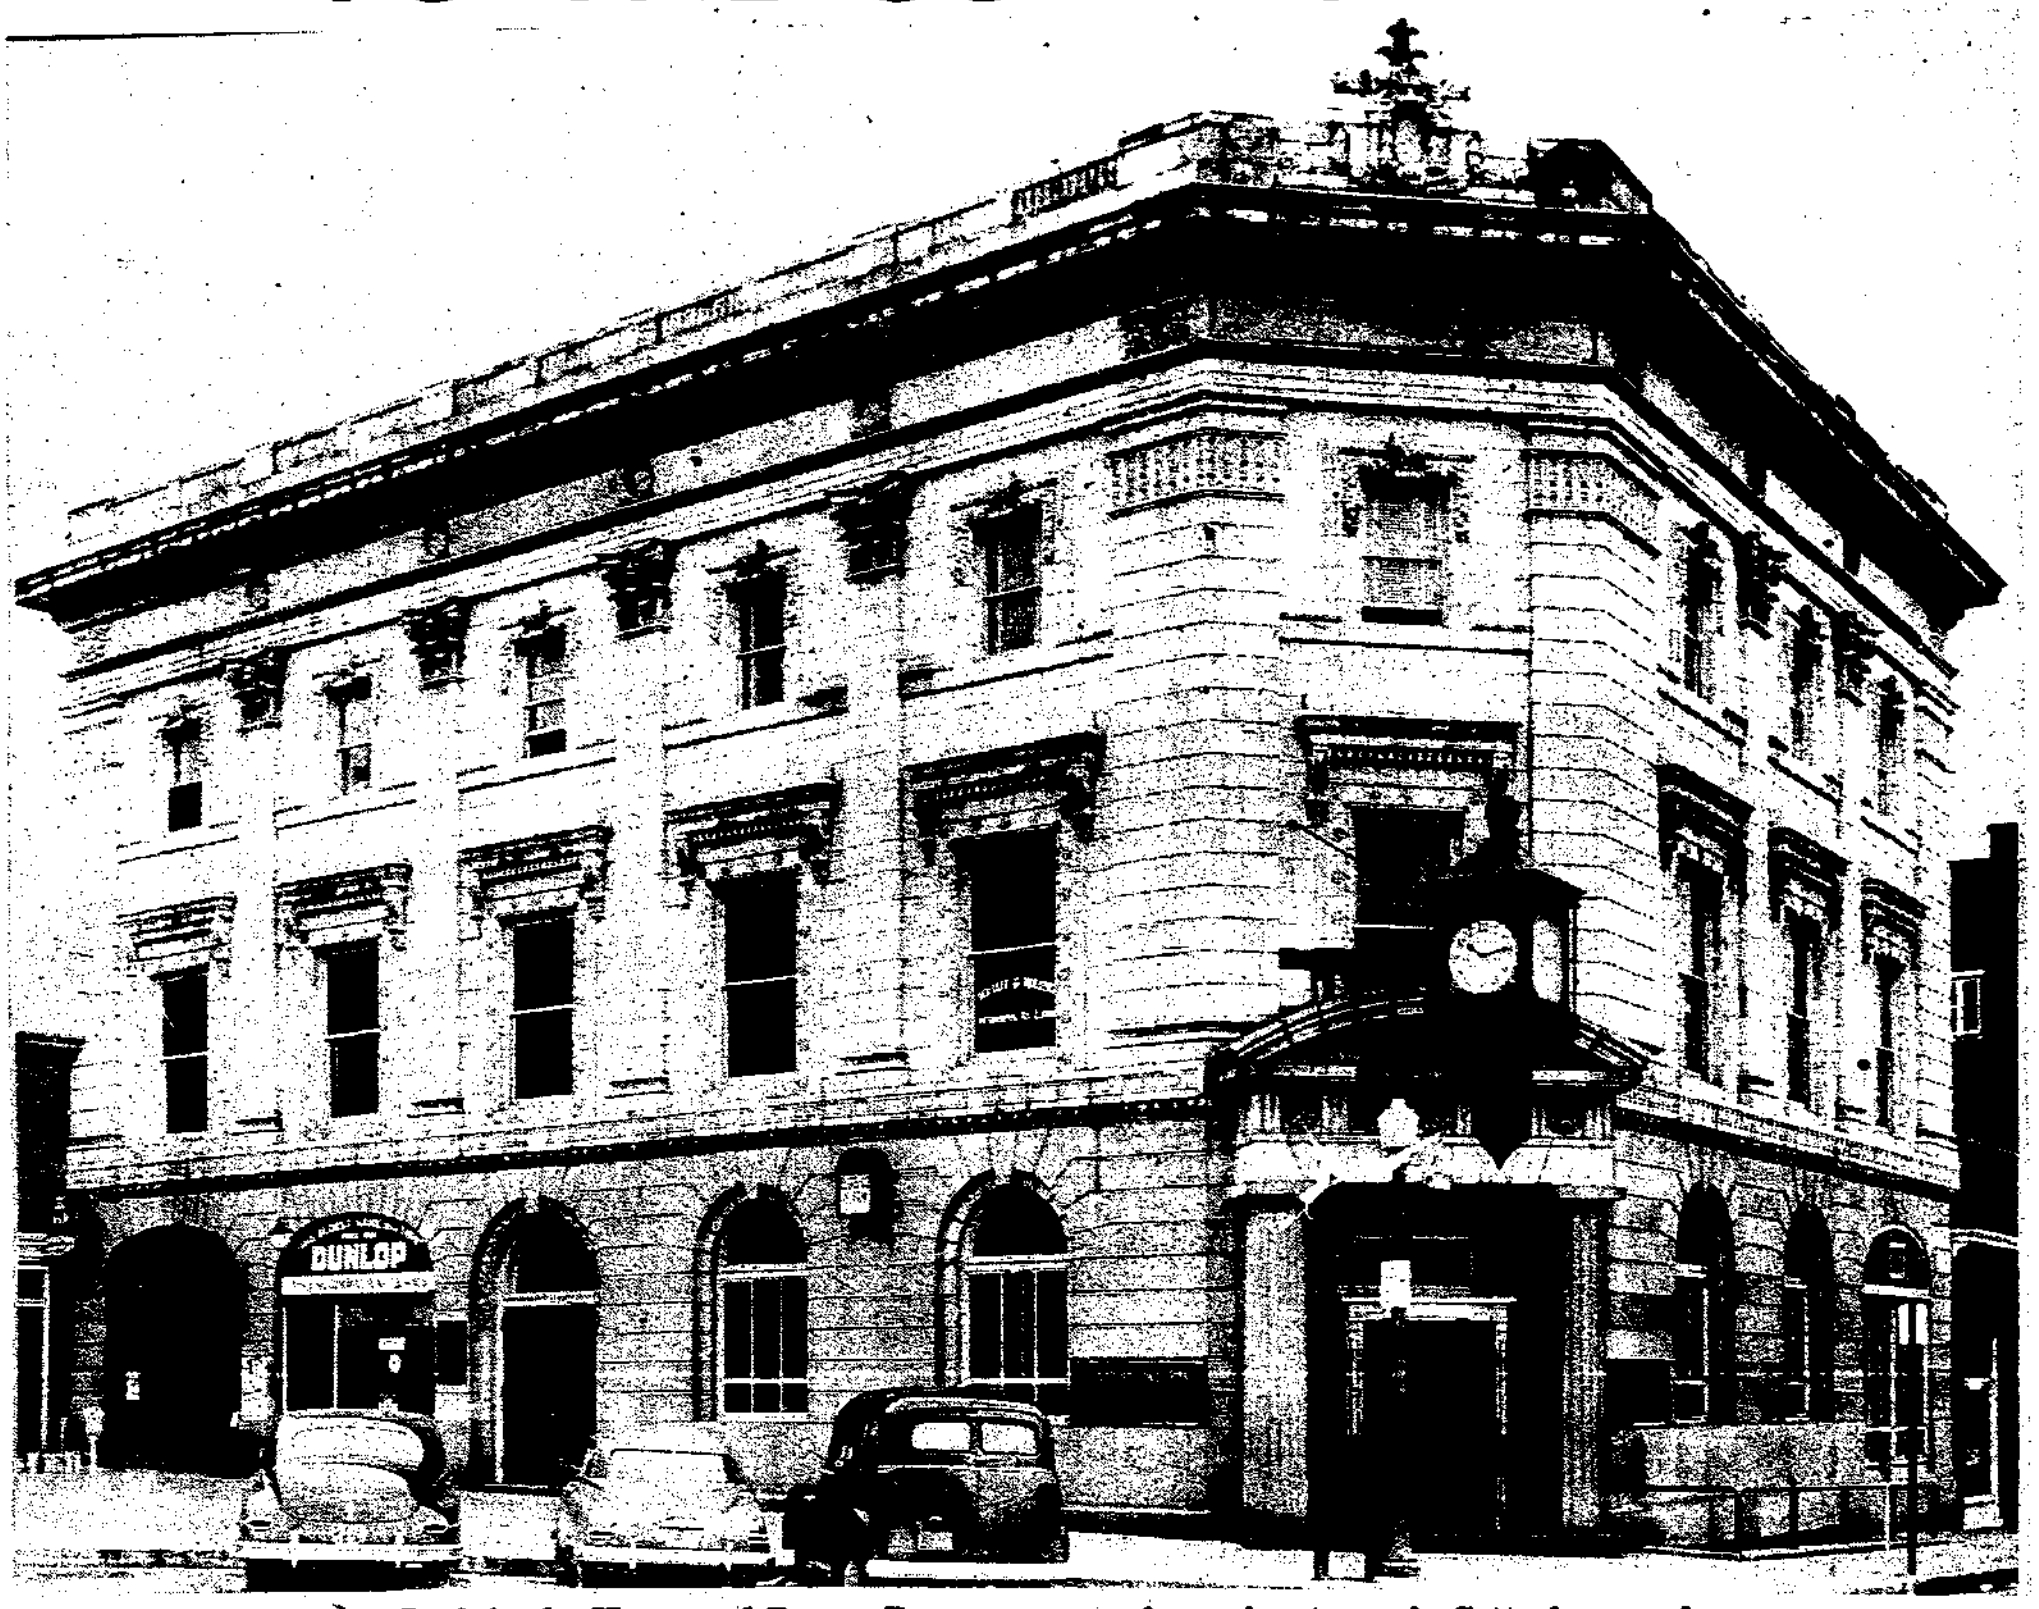
99 YEARS OF BANKING SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY!



Back in the Horse and Buggy Days, a group of prominent men in Gettysburg and Adams County started a Bank right here on Lincoln Square. It commenced business on the 11th day of April in 1857 as a State Bank — The Farmers and Mechanics Savings Institution. About seven years later this same bank was granted a National Charter (No. 311) — the first Bank in Adams County to get a National Charter and it then became The First National Bank of Gettysburg.

The men who founded this Bank believed there was a need for the kind of Banking Service this Bank set out at that time to render. The great growth in size and the continuous broadening of the financial services rendered in these 99 years have confirmed the judgment of these men.

In the intervening years, the First National Bank of Gettysburg has appreciated the privilege of serving and of contributing materially to the growth and development of this area. The First National continues to serve in the same spirit, but with modern methods through sound, progressive policies and from the same location on Lincoln Square.

As this historic community celebrates its 150th birthday anniversary, The First National Bank extends greetings and congratulations. We are justly proud of the community in which we have been privileged to render a complete Banking Service for more than 99 years and we express our gratitude to all of those whose loyalty and patronage have made this growth and this opportunity possible.

LEAP YEAR

The ladies appear determined to exercise their privileges, alias "Woman's Rights," this year, in various places. Even in our goodly town, the matter has been gone into in the most approved style. On Thursday last, a number of them assembled and procured a splendid four-horse sleighing out-fit, called at the residences of a number of gentlemen, went in and invited them, and handed them gracefully into the sleigh, and we learn that the party was a delightful one, and the pleasure much heightened by the novelty of the affair. Make good use of your time, ladies, as you have but one year out of four to play the gallant. (1856)

GETTYSBURG ITEMS

The question of a new Courthouse was before the Grand Jury last week. A majority was against the measure. We regret this, as the finances of the County are now in so prosperous a condition, that, we learn this much desired improvement could be accomplished without any additional tax being levied. (1856)

On Saturday evening last, during an altercation between Mr. Wm. Tate and Levi Weaver (son of Mr. Nicholas Weaver) all of this place, the latter stabbed the former in the side with a small knife. The wound we understand is a pretty severe, though not a dangerous one. Young Weaver was arrested, and committed to prison. (1856)

This photograph is believed to be a victory arch erected in Lincoln Square. The message suspended from the arch reads "Welcome. Welcome back to the field you won to the field you won to the pride of your country." The message seems to indicate that the arch may have been used to welcome home Union veterans for some sort of reunion in Gettysburg, since it was the Union Army which won the field for the nation in 1863 under General Meade. The arch was decorated with greenery and bunting.

Congratulations Gettysburg!

WHEN JAMES GETTYS laid out the town of Gettysburg, he and his fellow Americans faced the many and trying hardships of those frontier days. It was the harsh problem of carving a living out of the primitive land. To such pioneers whose fierce pride placed freedom above all other human gains . . . this creation of a new land with a new conception of human liberty and enterprise would seem a hollow accomplishment if we, today, were to lose the legacy which they created for us.

On Saturday evening last, during an altercation between Mr. Wm. Tate and Levi Weaver (son of Mr. Nicholas Weaver) all of this place, the latter stabbed the former in the side with a small knife. The wound we understand is a pretty severe, though not a dangerous one. Young Weaver was arrested, and committed to prison. (1856)

WARREN'S FACTORY BURNT

On the night of Saturday the 1st inst., the Woolen Factory on Middlecreek, owned by Messrs. T. & D. Warren, of this place, was entirely destroyed by fire, with all the machinery. They have an insurance of $2100, in the Cumberland Valley Company, on the building and machinery, which will partially cover the loss. Daniel Lee, the tenant, also has an insurance of $1000. Suspicion of firing the building fell on the latter person, and he was arrested on Monday, and is now in prison to answer the charge. (1856)

Interesting Facts About Fabulous Springs Hotel Resort That Was Doing Big Business Here In Late Decades Of 19th Century

The following information on the Springs Hotel, that once flourished west of Seminary Ridge near the famous Katalysine Mineral Springs on a site now occupied by part of the Gettysburg Country Club lands, was prepared by the late Dr. Henry Stewart of Gettysburg and is preserved in the files of the Adams County Historical Society.

"The first person to attach interest in the Katalysine Spring as a medicine and recommend its use was the Rev. Charles G. McClean, an Associated Reformed Minister who owned the property on which the Springs was located."

This is directly contradicted by the following:

Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal, in a pamphlet on the Spring and the qualities of the water, reprinted a paper read before the Adams County Medical Society in January, 1876, says:

"West of the ridge rendered famous by the death of Gen. Reynolds, and beyond the Run, bubbled the waters of a Spring, which up to this period had attracted little attention, and known only as a farm convenience or as a stopping place for wanderers in the neighborhood."

Paradoxically, both these statements may be correct.

Healing Towers Mythical

Mr. McClean's pastorate of the Gettysburg church terminated in 1842, and soon, I think, thereafter he moved westward and any belief that he may have had or attempted to spread may have been entirely forgotten in the 20 to 30-odd years that elapsed between his time and the exploitation of the Spring and Dr. O'Neal's publication.

Nevertheless, I think the following matter pretty positively demonstrated that the history of the Spring and its Hotel dates from the latter period.

"The wounded who dragged themselves to the spring to slake their thirst and bathe their wounds found that the water possessed wonderful healing powers."

This, I think, is purely mythical because there is nothing in the mineral content of the water that, by the wildest stretch of the imagination, could be credited with such results, especially immediate ones.

Fame From Battle

The emphasis in the therapeutic armamentarium of the day lay in the field of chronic diseases, especially the group dependent on, or associated with, an excess of uric acid in the body. Notwithstanding this, the promoters proceeded, as Dr. O'Neal regrets, to exploit the water as practically a universal panacea, an element, probably, in the ultimate downfall.

As my recollection serves me, in my boyhood days, around 1880, it was widely, believed that the discovery and exploitation of the medicinal properties of the Spring resulted from the (alleged) claim that the Rebels, during their occupation of this region, had been poisoned.

I am not alone in this belief. One gentleman says he has seen the story in print.

Named In 1868

It was orginally known as the "Lithia Spring" or the "Mineral Spring."

The first appearance of the name Katalysine Spring of which I have record was in May, 1868. It was probably devised by the promoters to express more euphoniously the laxative effect ascribed by the Rebles to poison.

If my recollection of etymology serves me correctly, it is combination of two Greek words meaning a downward flowing—kata and lysis.

Influence On Gettysburg

The effect on business must here have been considerable. The erection of the hotel, the operation of an institution with a capacity of 600 guests even at the now fantastic rates of $3 per day and $15 per week (Star & Sentinel, Apr. 1870), the greater part of which was probably spent here, would probably loom large in a little town.

And there were other benefits There were also business advantages. In May, 1872 (Star & Sentinel), the hotel was full, and many rooms engaged in town hotels and prospective use of boarding houses was predicted.

Dam Created Lake

In addition to the foregoing, there were other less tangible features — Social gatherings were held there. It was also the site of functions of sundry organizations, including political, over a considerable period of time, both with and without "eats."

The recreational facilities were largely increased by the erection of the dam on Willoughby Run — in the very early days of the hotel project, I think this is correct, though I have no data on the date.

Interesting Facts About Fabulous Springs Hotel Resort That Was Doing Big Business Here In Late Decades Of 19th Century

This was a substantial masonry dam located just north of the "Old Mill Road" which produced a lakelet about half a mile long reaching nearly to the "Springs Road" — A photograph will be found in my "Gettysburg Album" in the Society Room.

On this were maintained two row boats, for the use of the patrons. They were used to some extent by the local people—and featured in the tragic drowning of two Seminary students—lads who could not swim, but were foolishly jumping from boat to boat.

It was used to some extent for swimming, though not particularly desirable for that sport—because the westerly bank was the precipitous bluff, along which lay the orignal course of the run and the easterly bank was the overflowed land originally under cultivation—which except for a short part, where the soil was somewhat sandy was a mud bottom and bank.

Dam Blown Up In '95

In winter — it was the skating place de luxe — where we went whenever the time was available for the mile and a half tramp.

The dam was dynamited in June, 1895 (Star & Sentinel) by whom and for what purpose is not stated.

The original article seems to support the inference that the hotel was in use nearly up to the time of its destruction by fire in 1917.

This would, I think, be correct, because for a considerable time prior to its destruction, it was occupied by a caretaker only.

Just how long that period was, I do not know, but it seems to be suggested by the following facts:

The story of the hotel seems to be punctuated by a long series of legal actions, including at least one sale, reorganizations of companies, changes of management, beginning even in the days of its prosperity, culminating in December, 1895, in the announcement of "The Great Private Sale of all the personal property at the Gettysburg Springs Hotel. The house will be comfortably heated." A later announcement gave the proceeds of the sale as $2,000, noting that during the various proprietorships all the silver had disappeared."

This would seem (Star & Sentinel) definitely to mark the cessation of its function of entertaining guests.

In May, 1902, The Times reported:

"Last week the deal for the Springs Hotel was consumated and the famous old hotel became the property of a Chicago syndicate of which Dr. J. C. Irey is the manager, and it is the intention of the new company to convert the Hotel into a Sanitarium immediately. . . .

"Eminent physicians will be employed and a great deal of money will be expended. A steam pump will be used in forcing the water of the famous springs to the Sanitarium. In the course of a few years the company will erect a fire proof building.

"An effort will be made to extend the electric road to the sanitarium."

It seems that this incident "died a'bornin' " if, indeed, they reached that stage of development.

Water Shipments

Over the years following the decline of its vogue as a medicinal agent, numerous attempts to revive the market for the water were made, the latest being in May, 1935, by the heir of the late J. Emory Bair, a former cashier of the Gettysburg Nat. Bank, who had become interested in the real estate involved.

March, 1952—Henry Stewart In October 3, 1937 — The Times records: "Transfer of the title to 126 acres of land in Cumberland Twp., west of here, upon which a hotel is expected to be erected by the Gettysburg Katalysine Mineral Springs, Inc., was recorded Tuesday afternoon in the office of the Recorder of Deeds, Quinton D. Rebert, at the Court House.

Marketing of the mineral water on the property will be launched at once on a larger scale than heretofore. . . . Later it is planned to erect a larger hotel."

The stone building used in this last venture briefly to bottle water for shipment and sale, now houses the pro shop and locker rooms at the Gettysburg Country Club.

This is a picture of the James Gettys Hotel, then the City Hotel, about 1915. Located along the north side of the first block of Chambersburg St., it was flanked then by M. S. Yohe's bakery and Miller's store. The ancient auto, trolley tracks and unpaved street help date the photo.

County Apples Get Big Boost

Adams county apples got a big boost fifty years ago as reported in The Compiler fifty years ago:

H. W. Collingwood, editor of Rural New Yorker, addressed the Pennsylvania Horticultural Association in this place several weeks ago and said editorially in his paper on February 3, 1906: "At the recent meeting of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society at Gettysburg the Apple Consumers' League had an inning. There was no mention of apple on the hotel bill of fare for supper, and about a dozen members began to 'call for apple' most effectively. The result was that the hotel proprietor sent out and bought some russet apples, and they were brought in raw, amid great applause.

"The next morning about twenty enthusiasts got up early for breakfast with the writer, and the first thing the waiter brought in was a round of baked apples. The hotel proprietor got an object lesson and a lecture combined. Fruit growers patronized home — why shouldn't he patronize fruit growers?

"Adams county, Penna., is fast becoming noted as an apple section. What York Imperials they grow there! People come from all over the country to visit the battlefield. Every one of them should have a chance to eat a baked York Imperial and many of them would gladly do so if they had a chance.

"This dish should be named in big black letters on every bill of fare printed in Adams county, and spoken in italics in every home. This is the sort of work the Apple Consumer's League was organized to do, and it does it."

This was a substantial masonry dam located just north of the "Old Mill Road" which produced a lakelet about half a mile long reaching nearly to the -'Springs Road" — A photograph will be found in my "Gettysburg Album" in the Society Room

On this were maintained two row boats, for the use of the patrons They were used to some extent by the local people—and featured in the tragic drowning of two Seminary students—lads who could not swim, but were foolishly jumping from boat to boat.

It was used to some extent for swimming, though not particularly desirable for that sport—because the westerly bank was the precipitous bluff along which lay the orignal course of the run and the easterly bank was the overflowed land originally under cultivation—which except for a short part, where the soil was somewhat sandy was a mud bottom and bank.

Interesting Facts About Fabulous Springs Hotel Resort That Was Doing Big Business Here In Late Decades Of 19th Century

The following information on the Springs Hotel, that once flourished west of Seminary Ridge near the famous Katalysine Mineral Springs on a site now occupied by part of the Gettysburg Country Club lands, was prepared by the late Dr. Henry Stewart of Gettysburg and is preserved in the files of the Adams County Historical Society.

"The first person to attach interest in the Katalysme Spring as a medicine and recommend its use was the Rev. Charles G. McClean, an Associated Reformed Minister who owned the property on which the Springs was located."

This is directly contradicted by the following:

Dr. J. W. C. O'Neal, in a pamphlet on the Spring and the qualities of the water, reprinted a paper read before the Adams County Medical Society in January, 1876, says:

"West of the ridge rendered famous by the death of Gen. Reynolds, and beyond the Run, bubbled the waters of a Spring, which up to this period had attracted little attention, and known only as a farm convenience or as a stopping place for wanderers in the neighborhood."

Paradoxically, both these statements may be correct.

Healing Towers Mythical

Mr. McClean's pastorate of the Gettysburg church terminated in 1842, and soon, I think, thereafter he moved westward and any belief that he may have had or attempted to spread may have been entirely forgotten in the 20 to 30-odd years that elapsed between his time and the exploitation of the Spring and Dr. O'Neal's publication.

Nevertheless, I think the following matter pretty positively demonstrated that the history of the Spring and its Hotel dates from the latter period.

"The wounded who dragged themselves to the spring to slake their thirst and bathe their wounds found that the water possessed wonderful healing powers."

This, I think, is purely mythical because there is nothing in the mineral content of the water that, by the wildest stretch of the imagination, could be credited with such results, especially immediate ones.

Fame From Battle

The emphasis in the therapeutic armamentarium of the day lay in the field of chronic diseases, especially the group dependent on, or associated with, an excess of uric acid in the body. Notwithstanding this, the promoters proceeded, as Dr. O'Neal regrets, to exploit the water as practically a universal panacea, an element, probably, in the ultimate downfall.

As my recollection serves me, in my boyhood days, around 1880, it was widely, believed that the discovery and exploitation of the medicinal properties of the Spring resulted from the (alleged) claim that the Rebels, during their occupation of this region, had been poisoned.

I am not alone in this belief. One gentleman says he has seen the story in print.

Named In 1868

It was orginally known as the "Lithia Spring" or the "Mineral Spring."

The first appearance of the name Katalysine Spring of which I have record was in May, 1868. It was probably devised by the promoters to express more euphoniously the laxative effect ascribed by the Rebles to poison.

If my recollection of etymology serves me correctly, it is combination of two Greek words meaning a downward flowing—kata and lysis.

Influence On Gettysburg

The effect on business must here have been considerable. The erection of the hotel, the operation of an institution with a capacity of 600 guests even at the now fantastic rates of $3 per day and $15 per week (Star & Sentinel, Apr. 1870), the greater part of which was probably spent here, would probably loom large in a little town.

And there were other benefits There were also business advantages. In May, 1872 (Star & Sentinel), the hotel was full, and many rooms engaged in town hotels and prospective use of boarding houses was predicted.

Dam Created Lake

In addition to the foregoing, there were other less tangible features — Social gatherings were held there. It was also the site of functions of sundry organizations, including political, over a considerable period of time, both with and without "eats."

The recreational facilities were largely increased by the erection of the dam on Willoughby Run — in the very early days of the hotel project, I think this is correct, though I have no data on the date.

An Echo Of The Battle

Forty-three years ago The Star and Sentinel published an interesting article "An Echo of the Battle." It was "Miss Jane Smith's diary written during the fight — a Gettysburg girl's unusual experience and impressions of war. A rare document never before printed." It follows in full.

At this time when the fiftieth anniversary of the decisive battle of Gettysburg is about to be celebrated in a way to show the world that the deep scars left behind for so many years after the close of the fratricidal strife have been healed, and the country has again been truly reunited, it will be of great interest to many to know how residents of the town who happened to be within the lines of battle felt as the tide turned now in favor of one side, and now in favor of the other.

Find Lost Document

The following diary, recorded during the three days of battle on small sheets of black bordered paper, has lain forgotten and uncared for amongst family papers until the breaking up this spring of the old Crawford home on Chambersburg street, causing an examination of many papers, disclosed this unusual document, as it was written by Miss Jane Smith, daughter of William Smith and the sister of the late Mrs. John S. Crawford of this place.

For a year or two prior to the battle, the brick house, with some fifteen acres of adjoining land, lying north of the town near the County Alms House, which was the home of the Rev. Dr. Baugher, before he removed to the President's house on the college campus, was rented to John S. Crawford, my maternal grandfather. In this capacious house, in July, 1863, resided Mr. and Mrs. Crawford, two daughters and two sons: Mrs. William Smith and Miss Jane Smith, mother and sister, respectively, of Mrs. Crawford; Miss Elizabeth Johnson, sister of Mrs. Smith; and Miss Anna Mary Young, who after a long absence has returned to Gettysburg within recent years.

For several days before the battle, rumors of the approach of the Confederate army were current in the town, and caused great concern among owners for the safety of their stock — a concern entirely justified by the subsequent events. Because of this alarm, Mr Crawford, as soon as he learned of the proximity of the enemy, hurriedly departed to seek a safer refuge for a valuable horse which had been kept saddled for two days, prepared for a hasty flight. In his absence, the occupants of the home were women and two young sons. As a result of the first day's battle, the house was within the Confederate lines, and was filled with Union men wounded in the fierce encounter. It was, therefore, not a very comfortable place in which to be.

Fed General Ewell

It was depressing to its occupants to hear the boastings and exultations of the invaders and expressions of their confidence in the outcome of the battle which was to be reopened on the morrow. Nor was it more agreeable to be obliged to serve food and tea to General Ewell and his staff the night of July first and the morning of the second; but under the circumstances, there was no escape, and compliance with their request was the better part of valor. The visitors got "plain fare, but no welcome." As General Ewell departed for his headquarters on July first, he asked if he might return about eight o'clock the next morning for "a cup of that delicious tea." Upon being assured that he might, he directed that a sentry be stationed to guard the house, telling the ladies that if there was anything they wished, to let him (General Ewell) know. Realizing that their position within the lines of battle was both uncomfortable and unsafe, a conference was held after General Ewell's departure, and it was decided to ask that they be sent to Harrisburg as a place of safety. To Miss Young, then fresh from school, was entrusted the writing of the note to General Ewell it being placed in the sentry's hands at dawn, just before he was relieved. General Ewell went to the house for his tea and breakfast. Shortly after he had been served, Captain James Powers Smith (the similarity of the names was a coincidence) a member of Ewell's staff, appeared with an ambulance, recently captured from the Union army, to take the family, as they expected and hoped, far beyond the danger zone, but in reality only a few miles out the Harrisburg Road to the home of Mr. John Majors.

Was Studying Theology

Before the outbreak of the war, Capt. Smith was studying theology to become a Presbyterian minister. His father, a northern man, was at the time of the battle serving a Presbyterian congregation in Pennsylvania. His mother was a southern woman, and as he had been educated in the South, his sympathies drew him into the Confederate army. He was kind and attentive to his charges, also Presbyterians in belief, appreciation of which was expressed by Miss Johnston, who, an elderly lady then, upon parting with him said, "You are a gentleman." Captain Smith went safely through the war, and later became the editor of the "Southern Presbyterian" and a prominent clergyman in that denomination in the South. In 1910 he came to Gettysburg as chaplain of the Virginia troops who took part in the maneuvers of that year's instruction camp. He located the Baugher house, called upon Miss Sallie B. Crawford and Miss

Congratulations to Gettysburg On Its 150th Anniversary

Young, and recalled with interest his experiences of those days so disastrous to the cause he then espoused. If he still lives and should be among the survivors of that terrific contest, he will be interested to know the loyal feelings of the few women who served him, as recorded by one of them, and how deeply the horrors of war affected them in the thick of battle.

Give Aid To Wounded

The house was filled with wounded Union soldiers, and in answer to a sense of duty to stand by those direfully in need of assistance and attention. Mrs. Smith and her daughter, did not go beyond the lines of battle, but remained behind to aid and care for the wounded and dying. They nursed until his death a boy who, mortally wounded, was attempting, by severing an artery, to shorten his time of suffering. Deaf to all entreaties to desist, he yielded when he was asked if he had a mother, and he gave his watch and a lock of his hair to be sent to his parents in Egg Harbor, New Jersey. When told of his death and suffering, General Ewell said to Mrs. Smith, "Madam, we become hardened to such things in war."

How the battle affected a young woman is well set forth in these lines penned as the battle was waged a half century ago by one who was then a young woman of rare Christian character. For years she went in and out among us in this community, to help those in distress and in need, — a living exemplification of her faith. If her experience during those fateful days in 1863, written with no idea that they would ever be printed, will help to make war hideous, or cause those in authority to pause before drawing the sword, this short diary will serve a purpose she dreamed not of. What she wrote follows, with but few changes or corrections, was:

Wednesday, July 1st, 1863.

This morning rose warm clear, and quiet, and I sat a long while with Mrs. R. G. McCreary talking of our army and the prospect of a contest in our vicinity within a few days, little dreaming that at that moment the enemy were almost within speaking distance of our advance, and that in a few hours would be offered the battle of this great struggle, that is to demonstrate to the admiring world that this government is self-sustaining against home traitors as well as foreign foes, and establish a Republic that will to the end of time continue to be a model for the world.

As I hurried home about nine o'clock I heard the first notes of battle that had ever greeted my ears, in the discharge of our guns of the 1st Corps under Gen'l Reynolds planted on the hills west of town, near the Chambersburg road, and that were answered by the Rebels. How shall I describe my feelings as the booming of cannon waked that mournful sound! 'Tis impossible, utterly impossible! It has need be the experience of one to whose quietly secluded home the clash of arms and the tread of armies have come but as an echo waked in some far-distant hills, and that long ere it reached their quiet home had lost all save the music of its tone that tells of noble deeds of daring, done by brave ones battling for the right and who have left what the American hearts hold so dear, Home, simply because 'twas duty to go. The time has come with us when the history of each hour shall be written in brothers' blood. Oh, the human heart sickens at the thought and but that 'tis for principle we contend, how gladly would we yield to stay the flow of blood.

An Echo Of The Battle

Home Houses Wounded

Evening gathers around us with our army retired to the heights on the opposite side of town, and we left within the Rebel lines. (A not very comfortable feeling.) The pickets of each occupy the town, and the armies await a new day to renew the strife. As the day dies away into the twilight of a beautiful July evening, silence reigns once more, broken only by the moaning of the loved son of some once happy home, as he lies smitten in the full tide of health, bathing the bosom of his Mother Earth with the best blood of her son. Our home, which was this morning a scene only of health and comfort, is this evening filled with the suffering. The dying and the dead lie here. Oh! who can estimate the amount of woe looked down upon by yonder beautiful Queen of Night as she travels toward the zenith, lighting the soldier while he seeks a brother who may yet need the care of the living.

Thursday, July 2nd. A night spent in attempts to alleviate the suffering of the soldiers of the Union. One immortal spirit from the little band under our care has exchanged worlds. Oh! may it have been this weary one for the presence of his Saviour! Comparative quiet along both lines this morning. The day wears on still only skirmishing. The family except Ma and myself gone further from the immediate scene of conflict through the courtesy of Maj. Gen'l Ewell, who with his staff, took tea and breakfast with us last night and this morning. They got plain fare and no welcome, but treated us as a family with courtesy, and were some of them evidently gentlemen, and but that they come on the bloody mission of "showing Pennsylvania what war means," would have been welcome as pleasant acquaintances. But how dare a patriot heart beat a welcome to a traitor, however much that is noble may be there! This one foul stain mars it all, and makes one weep at the delusion that hides the truth from their eyes.

Brig. Gen'l Barlow (Federal officer) brought in this morning wounded in yesterday's fight — perhaps mortally. Read several chapters of the words of everlasting life to willing ears.

Midnight, July 2nd. What pen can tell or thought conceive the awfulness of the strife that has raged from between three and four o'clock this afternoon until after nine to-night! The roar of cannon and rattle of musketry beggar all description. Hundreds of souls have been ushered into the presence of the great "I Am" and He alone knows with what stains unwashed. Oh, that those who have so willingly laid their lives upon their country's altar might first have given themselves to the cause of that Ruler, the rewards of whose service reach further than mortal life — who will, we know, crown the faithful one with life eternal!

A silence around up now that is ominous of to-morrow's struggle. Thousands of brave ones lie upon their arms — girded for the conflict, snatching a few moments' rest ere the day dawns that will be to so many the last of earth. Oh, make it, Thou Almighty, to deliver down even to the eleventh hour, to them, the beginning of glory!

Friday, July 3rd

Friday, July 3rd. May I never again be roused to the consciousness of a new-born day by such fearful sounds! It seemed almost like the crashing of worlds, and I felt that life was rushing by the shores of the time as a mighty flood. That the hardy son of New England was laying him down side by side with his brother of the far Sunny South. The ragings of passion are stilled by the hand that knows no distinction between those who contend for principle and the deluded followers of the ambitious leaders of this perdition-born rebellion.

Noon. The strife still rages — that fierce contest for the possession of our beautiful city of the dead, and to how many it has been this day their final resting place. But alas! not borne there by a sad and silent cortege of weeping friends, laying aside the mortal part of their beloved in hope of the resurrection, as has been done more than once since the opening of this "cruel war." Little dreamed their mothers as they laid their soldier boys in this peaceful spot — then afar from the scene of battle — that the soil that held their honored dust would be bathed in the blood of their comrades, and the echo of their quiet home would ever be waked by the roar of guns, that seemed loud enough to even pierce the dull cold ear of death. And yet as I sit here and with the aid of a glass drink in the beauty of the landscape where waving fields of harvest are already ripe for the laborer, spreading out over the plain that lies at the foot of yonder heights, where play hundreds of opposing guns, I for the moment loose a realization of the fact that 'tis brother arrayed against brother in deadly conflict, and see only the grandeur and beauty of the scene, which does surpass in awful sublimity aught I have ever even imagined. But 'tis only for a moment. The sight of the suffering sons of freedom brought to share our hospitality and care compels me to feel 'tis no simple display for the perfection of the science of war, but a making of homes desolate and hearts sad throughout this once happy land. And what heart can forbear to mourn with our enemies? They too, are losing dear ones, and they have not the sweet thought that 'twas in defense of that for which our fathers bled and died that they have fallen with their right arm uplifted.

LIQUOR LAW

The subject of repeal of the Liquor law of last session has been before the House of Representatives, at Harrisburg, during the greater part of last week. A variety of propositions were made, and voted down on Tuesday. Mr. Montgomery then made a motion to refer the bill back to the Committee on Vice and Immortality, with instructions to report a bill by Tuesday next, repealing the present bill and substituting a stringent tavern license law. The debate on this proposition continued during the session of Tuesday, and also on Wednesday and Thursday, without a vote. (1856)

We are happy to extol the 150 years of service and progress of the town of Gettysburg and grateful that Gettysburg's own college has progressed simultaneously with the development and progress of this great town.

Gettysburg College, created to serve, has moved forward because it has been willing to recognize changes and has adjusted its program to keep pace with the needs of a progressive area in our great Commonwealth.

The Gettysburg Presbyterian Church at its present site at the intersection of E. High and Baltimore Sts. served as a hospital during and after the Battle of Gettysburg. Young, and recalled with interest his experiences of those days so disastrous to the cause he then espoused. If he still lives and should be among the survivors of that terrific contest, he will be interested to know the loyal feelings of the few women who served him, as recorded by one of them, and how deeply the horrors of war affected them in the thick of battle.

Give Aid To Wounded

The house was filled with wounded Union soldiers, and in answer to a sense of duty to stand by those direfully in need of assistance and attention. Mrs. Smith and her daughter, did not go beyond the lines of battle, but remained behind to aid and care for the wounded and dying. They nursed until his death a boy who, mortally wounded, was attempting, by severing an artery, to shorten his time of suffering. Deaf to all entreaties to desist, he yielded when he was asked if he had a mother, and he gave his watch and a lock of his hair to be sent to his parents in Egg Harbor, New Jersey. When told of his death and suffering, General Ewell said to Mrs. Smith, "Madam, we become hardened to such things in war."

Col. A. K. McClure Delivers Address On Memorial Day In Gettysburg Fifty Years Ago

More than a column of space was devoted exclusively to the Memorial Day address delivered in Gettysburg in 1906. It was titled "Memorial Address", and carried the byline "Col. A. K. McClure." There was a one sentence introduction. It follows in full:

Following is the address of Col. A. K. McClure, delivered on Memorial Day:

The speaker gave expression to his grateful memories of a political struggle nearly half a century ago, when he was called to represent the Gettysburg district in the State Senate, and to the pride he has cherished for the honor of having represented the Gettysburg district in the highest Legislative tribunal of the State, when the great issues of civil war had to be met in field and forum. He portrayed the great battle on whose field they had met to deck the graves of the fallen heroes in the decisive battle of the fraternal conflict, with the beauty and fragrance of flowers.

He spoke of the pride that every Pennsylvanian must feel, not only in having this great battlefield within the limits of our commonwealth, but in the distinction won in that bloody struggle by Pennsylvania soldiers. Meade, of Pennsylvania, commanded the army; Reynolds, of Pennsylvania, opened the attack and fell upon the field; Hancock, of Pennsylvania, lay prostrate from terrible wounds, hard by the bloody angle, and remained on the field until he could announce the repulse of Pickett's charge, and Gregg, of Pennsylvania, met the assault of Stuart's five thousand troopers, and repulsed them in the desperate effort to turn the right flank of the Union army.

Socialistic Dangers

The concluding portion of the address presented a very earnest and incisive terms, the danger of the present socialistic tendencies and the necessity of maintaining the liberty of law for which our Revolutionary fathers fought, and for which the dead around us here today gave their lives to maintain. He said:

Ours is a government of law; its foundation stone is the liberty of law. We speak of the ancient Republics of Rome and Greece, but the Republic of the United States is the only great government in the world's history that was founded and maintained on the liberty of law. The ancient so-called Republics taught the liberty of license; they would deify today and crucify tomorrow, and they perished because they had no basis of public safety.

The nation generously accords to the soldiers who made such countless sacrifice for the preservation of the Union, full credit for the heroism they exhibited in the flame of battle, but it has not justly appreciated the equally lustrous record our soldiers have made of heroism in peace. They fought for the majesty of the Union, of liberty, of law, of order and of public and private safety, and in all the various local efforts in different sections of the country to overthrow the supremacy of law and order, the Union soldier has ever been in the forefront to maintain the liberty of law for which he offered his life.

"Cloud of Anarchy"

I recall the terrible cloud of anarchy that spread its dark pall over the land in 1877, when the power of local and even state government was overthrown by the red-handed rioter. In Philadelphia, mobs took possession of our railway depots, and the state and city governments were powerless to move a single train. Our great highways, from the Eastern Sea to the Father of Waters, were in the hands of inflamed mobs. The transmission of mails, of commerce and of travel was absolutely halted. I was called to serve as one of the Committee of Safety of five to act in confidential accord with the Mayor of the city to aid him in maintaining the public peace and reopening our railroads.

Revolutionary necessities had been precipitated by revolutionary action, and without waiting for formal warrant, the Committee advised the Mayor to double the police force and have the veteran military forces of the city notified to be in readiness for action. The first important duty was to appoint one thousand additional policemen. There were then many thousand Philadelphia working men out of employment, many of whom owned their own homes, and it was believed that from that class a large number of emergency policemen could be obtained. In that we were sadly disappointed. There were thousands of honest and home-owning working men in Philadelphia, who, while opposed to anarchy, as a rule, would not serve as policemen to enforce law and order against those who falsely claimed to be battling for the benefit of labor.

Soldiers Answer Call

We next turned to the Grand Army, and a thousand of as true men as ever accepted public duty, reenforced the police within a very few hours. There was not a single soldier of the Civil War who did not promptly and heroically respond to the call for the forceful maintenance of the liberty of law, and they gave peace to Philadelphia. Soon thereafter, less than a company of veterans marched upon the thousands of cowardly rioters at the railroad depots, and the lawless fled before the gleam of the bayonet that demanded the mastery of law and order. I speak advisedly as one who was in the inner councils of those who were charged with the responsible duty of restoring Philadelphia to peace, when I say that our great city was saved from anarchy and murder by the fidelity of our Union soldiers, who were as heroic in peace as they were in war.

He who closes his eyes to the present growth of socialistic theories, even in our great law-abiding state of Pennsylvania, is either wilfully

Together with many others, I feel that Adams County has not had adequate representation of their problems in Harrisburg and that, if I am elected, my business experience of over 20 years will help bring to all Adams Countians full representation for both parties at all times.

There was not a single soldier of the Civil War who did not promptly and heroically respond to the call for the forceful maintenance of the liberty of law, and they gave peace to Philadelphia. Soon thereafter, less than a company of veterans marched upon the thousands of cowardly rioters at the railroad depots, and the lawless fled before the gleam of the bayonet that demanded the mastery of law and order. I speak advisedly as one who was in the inner councils of those who were charged with the responsible duty of restoring Philadelphia to peace, when I say that our great city was saved from anarchy and murder by the fidelity of our Union soldiers, who were as heroic in peace as they were in war.

He who closes his eyes to the present growth of socialistic theories, even in our great law-abiding state of Pennsylvania, is either wilfully

of Gettysburg

Democratic Candidate for GENERAL ASSEMBLYMAN

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the people of Adams County with whom I had the opportunity of talking so far in my campaign. In many instances, I have had the pleasure of meeting with you for the first time and there never was a finer, more cooperative and understanding group of civic-conscious people.

Together with many others, I feel that Adams County has not had adequate representation of their problems in Harrisburg and that, if I am elected, my business experience of over 20 years will help bring to all Adams Countians full representation for both parties at all times.

There is, perhaps, no better known address in all United States than GETTYSBURG, PA. As glorious as is the past of this beautiful Pennsylvania city, historically and in growth and achievement, the future is even brighter . . . not only for the people of Gettysburg, but for all of us. We are at the threshold of the age of NEW ELECTRIC LIVING.

Your air conditioner, television and other appliances are only the beginning. One day soon, your food will cook in seconds instead of hours. Electricity will close your windows at the first drop of rain. Lamps will cut off and on automatically to fit the lighting needs of your rooms. Television "screens" will hang on walls. An electric heat pump will use outside air to cool your house in summer, heat it in winter.

You will need and have much more electricity than you have today. Right now, your electric company is planning and building to have twice as much electricity for you by 1965.

The same experience, imagination and enterprise that electrified the nation in a single lifetime are at work shaping your electric future . . . and a bright one it will be, for Gettysburg and for America.

Baccalaureate Sermon

Rev. Dr. Jacob A. Clutz delivered an able and appropriate baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the high school Sunday evening. The Doctor used as his text Colossians 3:23, "And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men."

The graduates and their instructors occupied front seats and the church was well filled. The sermon was a most appropriate one, full of good advice and was listened to with much interest by all present.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

Friday last, the anniversary of the Birth of Washington, was quite a lively one in our town. A large number of our country friends were in on the occasion; and the day being a very pleasant one, the streets were crowded. The "Blues" paraded, and made a handsome appearance. They marched to St. James' Church, where the Farewell Address was read by Capt. C. H. Buehler, and an address delivered by David Wills, Esq. The church was crowded, and there was very general satisfaction with the exercises on the occasion. (1856)

COLD WEATHER

The severe cold still continues. Yesterday morning the mercury was seven degrees below zero, and this morning ten and a half below! Truly, we have an "old fashioned winter." (1856)

The Copper-mine property, on High street, was sold a few days ago, at public sale, to John Henig, for $505. (1856)

We join heartily in the celebration of the 150th Anniversary of the Town of Gettysburg. During our 27 years of friendly association, we have made many friends and customers whose taste we have come to know and respect.

Vortex of Socialism

Patriotism is the birthright, the inherent attribute, of American citizenship, but indolence, misfortune, prejudice, ignorance and passion at times lead men, and often insensibly, into the vortex of socialism, and socialism is simply the evening twilight of perishing patriotism that opens the highway to the starless midnight of anarchy. It is not American in conception, but it comes from the seething fountain of anarchy that has thrown up scores of thousands into some of our industrial channels, who have no conception of liberty but that of license to overthrow the majesty of law and to make riot and murder the teachers of liberty.

Our courts have been misled into according citizenship to those who are strangers to every attribute of free government and we now hear the public and defiant demand that the constabulary, that has already proved its efficiency by a single platoon or company charged with the maintenance of peace and order, making thousands halt in their madness, shall be abolished, and that the Courts shall be made powerless to restrain the liberty of license that is now so ostentatiously proclaimed in some of our great industrial centers. Every citizen should understand that when the demand comes for the retirement of our constabulary and for limitations open the powers of the courts to maintain public order and private safety; under whatever party name or other disguise they come, it is simply the insulent demand of Anarchy that the liberty of law shall be overthrown. The courts are the bulwark of safety to person and property, and the highest tribute that could be paid to their fidelity is in the assaults of the lawless.

Faithful In Peace

The veterans of our civil war, who saved Philadelphia and other sections of the State from anarchy thirty years ago, have been faithful in peace as they were heroic in war to preserve the majesty of government and the peace of the community.

Few of them remain among the living, and their heads are silvered, their forms bowed, their eyes dimmed and the shadows of the City of the Silent are reflected in the furrows which line their faces, but their children have grown up under the patriotic teaching and the heroic example of their fathers, and their children's children must ever be faithful to the sublime government for which their fathers fought and died; and to the few grizzled veterans who linger with us here today, and to their children, and to all others who are here to honor the dead who gave their lives for the maintenance of free and peaceful rule. Site Is Selected For New Ice Plant

The Ice and Cold Storage Company composed of energetic business men of this place have selected a site for the plant. The establishment will be located opposite the Reading depot in rear of the Shafer residence.

It is the intention of the Company to use the brick building now occupied by The Times, for cold storage, and the ice plant will be built adjacent to it, providing a sufficient amount of water to conduct the business can be obtained from an artestian well to be sank in the rear.

The site and building above referred to was inspected by a York expert last week who will draw up plans and submit them to the company. The building to be used exclusively for the manufactory of ice will be 40x80.

The site selected is a good one being easy of access, and it is to be hoped that a sufficient amount of water can be obtained from the proposed artestian well. (March, 1906).

FROST KILLS PLANTS

There were heavy frosts last Thursday and Friday mornings, especially in low places. Many plants were killed and strawberry stalks injured. Reports from different sections are to the effect that fruit blossoms were slightly damaged.

By a card in the last "Star," we observe that the Junior Editor (Col. C. H. Buehler) has retired from the firm; and that the paper will be conducted hereafter by the Senior, D. A. Buehler, Esq. (1856)

Nephew Of Gettysburg's Burgess, A Cadet, Drowns

How sudden and unexpected, at times, death comes, frequently striking where least expected and looked for, taking from us, loved ones without the slightest warning.

A gloom was cast over Gettysburg, last Thursday morning, when the sad intelligence spread over town that ex-Burgess James W. Eicholtz had received a telegram stating that his nephew, Earl Eicholtz, a cadet at the Peekskill Military Academy, for the past two years, had drowned the evening previous while bathing with five other cadets on Lake Mohegan.

The story of the sad affair as given by Prof. J. C. Bucher, Principal of the School, is in substance as follows: Earl and his fellow cadets went to the lake with the intention of rowing, but being unable to secure a boat, went in bathing. They were enjoying themselves when suddenly Earl disappeared beneath the waves and before his companions could reach him, was drowned. The cause of his sinking is unknown but it is supposed that he was seized with cramp or heart failure.

Fails To Survive

His companions on realizing what had happened, dived for him repeatedly as did also a diving instructor who was present at the time but without success. His body was brought to the surface about fifteen minutes later and all means were used to save his life but they were futile.

Earl Eicholtz was chief bugler on the Commandant's staff and a few hours previous to his death, rode in the parade. At the close of the exercises the young bugler blew "Taps" over the graves of the veterans of the Civil War which was most impressive, the Grand Army men present being especially touched though all that were there were moved.

Only a few hours later the news spread over the town that the boy had been drowned and cast a gloom over the entire community made all the more deep by the fact that he had so recently been before it in the capacity in which he was.

Services Are Held

On Thursday morning services were held at the school. The first was a ritualistic service by his fraternity. A few hours later the clergy connected with the school held a service at which all pupils were present. After this the body was taken to the parade ground wrapped in an American flag where another fraternity fired a volley over the lifeless form of their dead school mate, the entire student body standing near by.

A member of a third fraternity then blew "Taps" over him who only the day before had done the same, in the presence of an immense Memorial Day assemblage, over the gaves of dead Civil War veterans.

The body was then taken to the train, the school accompanying it in dress suits and with arms reversed. The members of his fraternity walked by the hearse.

The death of this young man, coming as it did, without a moment's warning, is an exceptionally sad one. He was but 17 years old and the only son of Mrs. B. Laura Eicholtz, his father the late Martin Eicholtz, having passed away just 16 years ago on May 25, when this noble son was but a babe.

"Fine Bugler"

Earl was an exceptionally fine bugler and had few equals for one of his years. He was naturally bright, endowed with a lovable disposition and winning graces and was very popular with his associates here where he had many. His pure life and amiable ways, seemed to fortell a bright future in this world, but an all-wise God saw otherwise, and permitted him to be taken away from those, who with him were anticipating a happy future in life. The many beautiful floral remembrances sent by friends showed the estem and love in which he was held. His grave was truly a bed of flowers.

The body arrived here Friday morning and was taken to the home of his aunt, Mrs. C. E. Deatrick, from where the funeral which was largely attended, was held Saturday morning, Rev. Dr. J. A. Clutz, assisted by Rev. Edward H. True, Rev. C. E. Snoke and Prof. J. C. Bucher, officiating. The pallbearers were Capts. Shane and Wood of his fraternity at Peekskill, Messrs. Deatrick and King of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Gettysburg College, and two of his friends, Robert Schnitzer and Edgar Faber.

The devoted mother and immediate relatives, who are heart broken, have the sympathy of the entire community. (Star and Sentinel, June 6, 1906)

FIRE AT FOUNDRY

On Thursday morning last, the roof of the Messrs. Warrens' Foundry took fire by sparks from a stove-pipe, and for a short time it assumed an alarming appearance, some three or four feet of the roof being in a blaze. By prompt effort, however, the fire was soon extinguished. Some five or six feet of the roof was burned through, and a few patterns on the loft destroyed. (1856)

On Wednesday last, the Court appointed Wm. B. McClellan, Esq., Prosecuting Attorney for this County, for the April and August Terms, in room of Mr. Reed, deceased. An election to fill the vacancy will take place in the fall.

CONGRATULATIONS GETTYSBURG — ON YOUR 150TH BIRTHDAY

We, too, have a birthday. Stuckey's is just 1 year old, and during this short time, we have tried to take our place in a community rich in history, and deem it a privilege to be a part of Gettysburg and the opportunities it affords.

Nephew Of Gettysburg's Burgess, A Cadet, Drowns

How sudden and unexpected, at times, death comes, frequently striking where least expected and looked for, taking from us, loved ones without the slightest warning.

A gloom was cast over Gettysburg, last Thursday morning, when the sad intelligence spread over town that ex-Burgess James W. Eicholtz had received a telegram stating that his nephew, Earl Eicholtz, a cadet at the Peekskill Military Academy, for the past two years, had drowned the evening previous while bathing with five other cadets on Lake Mohegan.

The story of the sad affair as given by Prof. J. C. Bucher, Principal of the School, is in substance as follows: Earl and his fellow cadets went to the lake with the intention of rowing, but being unable to secure a boat, went in bathing. They were enjoying themselves when suddenly Earl disappeared beneath the waves and before his companions could reach him, was drowned. The cause of his sinking is unknown but it is supposed that he was seized with cramp or heart failure.

Fails To Survive

His companions on realizing what had happened, dived for him repeatedly as did also a diving instructor who was present at the time but without success His body was brought to the surface about fifteen minutes later and all means were used to save his life but they were futile.

Earl Eicholtz was chief bugler on the Commandant's staff and a few hours previous to his death, rode in the parade. At the close of the exercises the young bugler blew "Taps" over the graves of the veterans of the Civil War which was most impressive, the Grand Army men present being especially touched though all that were there were moved.

Only a few hours later the news spread over the town that the boy had been drowned and cast a gloom over the entire community made all the more deep by the fact that he had so recently been before it in the capacity in which he was.

Services Are Held

On Thursday morning services were held at the school. The first was a ritualistic service by his fraternity. A few hours later the clergy connected with the school held a service at which all pupils were present. After this the body was taken to the parade ground wrapped in an American flag where another fraternity fired a volley over the lifeless form of their dead school mate, the entire student body standing near by.

A member of a third fraternity then blew "Taps" over him who only the day before had done the same, in the presence of an immense Memorial Day assemblage, over the gaves of dead Civil War veterans.

The body was then taken to the train, the school accompanying it in dress suits and with arms reversed. The members of his fraternity walked by the hearse.

The death of this young man, coming as it did, without a moment's warning, is an exceptionally sad one. He was but 17 years old and the only son of Mrs B. Laura Eicholtz, his father the late Martin Eicholtz, having passed away just 16 years ago on May 25, when this noble son was but a babe.

"Fine Bugler"

Earl was an exceptionally fine bugler and had few equals for one of his years He was naturally bright, endowed with a lovable disposition and winning graces and was very popular with his associates here where he had many. His pure life and amiable ways seemed to fortell a bright future in this world, but an all-wise God saw otherwise and permitted him to be taken away from those, who with him were anticipating a happy future in life. The many beautiful floral remembrances sent by friends showed the estem and love in which he was held His grave was truly a bed of flowers.

The body arrived here Friday morning and was taken to the home of his aunt. Mrs. C. E. Deatrick, from where the funeral which was largely attended, was held Saturday morning. Rev. Dr. J A. Clutz, assisted by Rev. Edward H. True, Rev. C. E. Snoke and Prof. J. C. Bucher, officiating. The pallbearers were Capts. Shane and Wood of his fraternity at Peekskill Messrs Deatrick and King of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, Gettysburg College, and two of his friends, Robert Schnitzer and Edgar Faber.

The devoted mother and immediate relatives, who are heart broken, have the sympathy of the entire community. (Star and Sentinel, June 6, 1906)

Hurricane 100 Years Ago

The papers from all sections of the country give details of injuries by the hurricane of Saturday a week, and we might give column after column. We have rarely known a storm so generally destructive.

Along the valley of the Juniata it was terribly destructive, and unroofed and overturned buildings mark its devastating track. In Hollidaysburg, Mr. Canan, an aged citizen, was struck by a portion of flying timber, and so injured that he died in a short time.

At Lancaster, Charles M. Howell's carshops were injured to the extent of $1500. The First Presbyterian and the German Reformed Churches were slightly injured and several buildings unroofed.

In the town of Harmony, Beaver county, sixteen houses were demolished, and near that place two boys were buried in the ruins of a house. The Catholic Church, 16 miles from Harmony, was blown down. (1856)

The "Teachers' Association" was in session on Thursday and Friday last, holding their meetings in Christ Church. Rev. Dr. Schmucker delivered an address on Friday forenoon, and Mr. Hickor, Deputy State Superintendent, in the afternoon. We have not yet been furnished with an account of their proceedings. (1856)

HORSE RUNS INTO FENCE, CUTS LEG

A fine horse belonging to Howard Swope, E. Middle Street, ran into a wire fence last Tuesday and cut the upper portior of his left front leg in a serious manner.

The bill to allow rural free delivery carries $200 per year for keeping a horse, making a tota' salary of $920 per year, has been approved by the Postmaster General.

Amos Eckert has purchased a fine team.

Pen-Mar Park will open its twenty-seventh season Thursday, June 2. Perhaps the most popular improvement will be the lighting of the park by electricity.

A Hanover restaurant man received 48 fine turtles from Baltimore one day last week.

Luther M. Slentz lost a fine driving horse by death on Friday morning.

The W.C.T.U. will meet with Mrs. Helen Keith, on Saturday next at 2:30 p.m. (1906)

The great weight of snow on the roofs tries the strength of the supporting timbers. Within the past week, several in this place have given way. Part of the large carriage shed of Mr. John L. Tate was crushed in, and a buggy of Mr. Grammer, which was therein, was much injured. The roof of a large barn of Mr. D. Ziegler, on a lot in Middle street, also fell in; and a stable of Mr. D. Kendlehart in the same street. (1856)

Gettysburg Will Have Ice Plant

We are authoritatively informed that Gettysburg is to have another industry, an ice plant being assured.

The parties most interested in this proposed project are J. L. Butt, M. E. Zinn, Charles Spalding and Wm. B. McIlhenny. All are progressive citizens and they should be given encouragement in their efforts to establish another industry for Gettysburg that will give employment to a number of hands and at the same time be a great benefit to the town.

The gentlemen interested have about closed a contract with a York firm for the plant. Just where it will be erected has not as yet been decided.

Beside the excellent quality of ice that will be manufactured the plant will be of use as a cold storage building, as a department for this purpose will be provided. (January, 1906).

THE SCHOOLS

The fine sleighing of the past few weeks has rendered our town, as a general matter, quite lively. Among the very pleasant visits made from the country, has been a number of the Public Schools from neighboring townships. On the 14th, Miss Heagen's school, in Freedom township; on Thursday last, Mr. Eyler's, of Cumberland; and on Friday, Mr. Allison's, of Cumberland, Mr. Hendricks', of Freedom, and Mr. Biesecker's, of Cumberland, visited town in sleighs and sleds. The "boys and girls" appear to enjoy this new movement very much. They gave us some excellent specimens of vocal music, and as they passed the several printing-offices, gave hearty cheers for the "Press." They have "learned far enough" to know the worth of that Institution. (1856)

FIRE

We regret to learn, that the dwelling house occupied by Mr. Abraham Hirst, near Fisher's mill, on Opossum creek, was entirely destroyed by fire on the evening of Sunday the 20th inst. The roof was in flames before the fire was discovered by Mrs. H., who was alone with her children, her husband being absent at the time. The children were asleep upstairs, but she rushed up and saved them, as also, with the assistance of some neighbors, who collected quickly, a portion of the furniture. The property had just been purchased by Mr. Christian Keckler, upon whom the loss of the house falls, without any insurance. (1856)

THE LIQUOR BILL

The Committee of Conference on the Liquor bill have agreed, and their report was to be made on Friday. The bill, it is said, fixes $20 as the minimum license for taverns in the county; $50 in country towns, and other boroughs with over 200 taxables; $75 in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and one hotel to be licensed in the cities for every 100 taxables, and one for every 150 taxables elsewhere. It also allows one restaurant or eating-house to be licensed for every four hotels every where; the license not to be less than $20, and to be granted by the Courts. (1856)

THE LIQUOR LAW

The bill to repeal the Restraining Liquor law of last session, passed second reading in the House of Representatives on Wednesday last, yeas 70; nays 27; and passed finally on Thursday, yeas 69; nays 25. It was sent to the Senate immediately, when Mr. Buckalew moved its reference to a special committee, which was debated at length and with considerable warmth, and was still pending when the Senate adjourned. (1856)

DROUTH BROKEN

The drouth which prevailed in this section for the past month, was broken Saturday evening to the joy of all. The showers which occurred at intervals from that time until Monday night have greatly benefited the growing crops in this section. (1906)

A new post-office has been established, six miles from this place, on the direct route to Hanover. It is called Square Corner, and Jacob Noel appointed Postmaster. (1856)

COUNTY SETTLEMENTS

During last week, the annual settlements, of the County Commissioners and Treasurer, and of the Directors of the Poor, took place. The financial concerns of the County are in a very prosperous condition; and it gives us pleasure to say, that Adams County is now entirely clear of debt, all her liabilities for the Prison, Bridges, &c., having been liquidated. (1856)

TENNIS TEAM WINS

The Gettysburg College tennis team won another game Friday by defeating Bucknell in four hard sets, winning by the score 6-3, 10-12, 8-6, 6-1. Donald Huber and Keller Rockey made up the home team and played an excellent game. (1906)

On Thursday morning last, the mercury was five degrees below zero, in this place. The sleighing still continues, of the best quality, and our citizens appear to be making "pretty considerable" use of it. During the Court last week, our town was crowded by our friends from the country, who embraced the splendid sleighing to enjoy a ride and see what was going on.

On Saturday morning, it was thirteen below zero, being next to the coldest morning this season. (1856)

Messrs. Warren and Paxton have commenced work on the section of the Railroad adjoining town, and are moving on very rapidly. The cutting and the embankment give it already quite a Railroad appearance. (1856)

COLD WEATHER

Last week was decidedly a cold one. On Monday morning the mercury was 7 degrees below zero; and on Wednesday it fell to 16¼ below zero. During the whole of Wednesday, the mercury scarcely rose more than 3 degrees above zero! This is the coldest weather experienced here for many years. (1856)

The cold weather of last week has enabled our ice-men to fill their ice houses to overflowing, of material of the best kind. There is no activity of the article just now. (1856)

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

We are requested to say, that the Independent Blues will celebrate the 22nd by a parade; and that Washington's Farewell Address will be read, and an Address delivered by David Wills, Esq., on the occasion. The Exercises to take place in St. James' Church—to commence at 10½ o'clock. (1856)

The Compiler appeared last week in a beautiful new dress. Always a neat and tasteful paper, its new clothes give it an appearance which rather eclipses us "old fogies." (1856)

Mr. Tate, who was stabbed by young Weaver, has nearly recovered. The latter has been released from prison, on $500 bail to answer at April Court. (1856)

On Wednesday morning last, in this place, the mercury was 4 degrees below zero, and on Thursday morning 9. (1856)

Site Is Selected For New Ice Plant

The Ice and Cold Storage Company composed of energetic business men of this place have selected a site for the plant. The establishment will be located opposite the Reading depot in rear of the Shafer residence.

It is the intention of the Company to use the brick building now occupied by The Times, for cold storage, and the ice plant will be built adjacent to it, providing a sufficient amount of water to conduct the business can be obtained from an artestian well to be sank in the rear

The site and building above referred to was inspected by a York expert last week who will draw up plans and submit them to the company The building to be used exclusively for the manufactory of ice will be 40x80

The site selected is a good one being easy of access, and it is to be hoped that a sufficient amount of water can be obtained from the proposed artestian well. (March, 1906).

FROST KILLS PLANTS

There were heavy frosts last Thursday and Friday mornings, especially in low places Many plants were killed and strawberry stalks injured Reports from different sections are to the effect that fruit blossoms were slightly damaged

By a card in the last 'Star," we observe that the Junior Editor (Col. C. H. Buehler) has retired from the firm, and that the paper will be conducted hereafter by the Senior, D. A. Buehler, Esq. (1856)

Gettysburg Will Have Ice Plant

We are authoritatively informed that Gettysburg is to have another industry, an ice plant being assured.

The parties most interested in this proposed project are J. L. Butt, M. E. Zinn, Charles Spalding and Wm. B. McIlhenny. All are progressive citizens and they should be given encouragement in their efforts to establish another industry for Gettysburg that will give employment to a number of hands and at the same time be a great benefit to the town.

The gentlemen interested have about closed a contract with a York firm for the plant. Just where it will be erected has not as yet been decided.

Beside the excellent quality of ice that will be manufactured the plant will be of use as a cold storage building, as a department for this purpose will be provided. (January, 1906).

THE SCHOOLS

The fine sleighing of the past few weeks has rendered our town, as a general matter, quite lively. Among the very pleasant visits made from the country, has been a number of the Public Schools from neighboring townships. On the 14th, Miss Heagen's school, in Freedom township; on Thursday last, Mr. Eyler's, of Cumberland; and on Friday, Mr. Allison's, of Cumberland, Mr. Hendricks', of Freedom, and Mr. Biesecker's, of Cumberland, visited town in sleighs and sleds. The "boys and girls" appear to enjoy this new movement very much. They gave us some excellent specimens of vocal music, and as they passed the several printing-offices, gave hearty cheers for the "Press." They have "learned far enough" to know the worth of that Institution. (1856)

FIRE

We regret to learn, that the dwelling house occupied by Mr. Abraham Hirst, near Fisher's mill, on Opossum creek, was entirely destroyed by fire on the evening of Sunday the 20th inst. The roof was in flames before the fire was discovered by Mrs. H., who was alone with her children, her husband being absent at the time. The children were asleep upstairs, but she rushed up and saved them, as also, with the assistance of some neighbors, who collected quickly, a portion of the furniture. The property had just been purchased by Mr. Christian Keckler, upon whom the loss of the house falls, without any insurance. (1856)

THE LIQUOR BILL

The Committee of Conference on the Liquor bill have agreed, and their report was to be made on Friday. The bill, it is said, fixes $20 as the minimum license for taverns in the county; $50 in country towns, and other boroughs with over 200 taxables; $75 in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and one hotel to be licensed in the cities for every 100 taxables, and one for every 150 taxables elsewhere. It also allows one restaurant or eating-house to be licensed for every four hotels every where; the license not to be less than $20, and to be granted by the Courts. (1856)

THE LIQUOR LAW

The bill to repeal the Restraining Liquor law of last session, passed second reading in the House of Representatives on Wednesday last, yeas 70; nays 27; and passed finally on Thursday, yeas 69; nays 25. It was sent to the Senate immediately, when Mr. Buckalew moved its reference to a special committee, which was debated at length and with considerable warmth, and was still pending when the Senate adjourned. (1856)

DROUTH BROKEN

The drouth which prevailed in this section for the past month, was broken Saturday evening to the joy of all. The showers which occurred at intervals from that time until Monday night have greatly benefited the growing crops in this section. (1906)

A new post-office has been established, six miles from this place, on the direct route to Hanover. It is called Square Corner, and Jacob Noel appointed Postmaster. (1856)

COUNTY SETTLEMENTS

During last week, the annual settlements, of the County Commissioners and Treasurer, and of the Directors of the Poor, took place. The financial concerns of the County are in a very prosperous condition; and it gives us pleasure to say, that Adams County is now entirely clear of debt, all her liabilities for the Prison, Bridges, &c., having been liquidated. (1856)

TENNIS TEAM WINS

The Gettysburg College tennis team won another game Friday by defeating Bucknell in four hard sets, winning by the score 6-3, 10-12, 8-6, 6-1. Donald Huber and Keller Rockey made up the home team and played an excellent game. (1906)

On Thursday morning last, the mercury was five degrees below zero, in this place. The sleighing still continues, of the best quality, and our citizens appear to be making "pretty considerable" use of it. During the Court last week, our town was crowded by our friends from the country, who embraced the splendid sleighing to enjoy a ride and see what was going on.

On Saturday morning, it was thirteen below zero, being next to the coldest morning this season. (1856)

Messrs. Warren and Paxton have commenced work on the section of the Railroad adjoining town, and are moving on very rapidly. The cutting and the embankment give it already quite a Railroad appearance. (1856)

COLD WEATHER

Last week was decidedly a cold one. On Monday morning the mercury was 7 degrees below zero; and on Wednesday it fell to 16½ below zero. During the whole of Wednesday, the mercury scarcely rose more than 3 degrees above zero! This is the coldest weather experienced here for many years. (1856)

The cold weather of last week has enabled our ice-men to fill their ice houses to overflowing, of material of the best kind. There is no activity of the article just now. (1856)

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

We are requested to say, that the Independent Blues will celebrate the 22nd by a parade; and that Washington's Farewell Address will be read, and an Address delivered by David Wills, Esq., on the occasion. The Exercises to take place in St. James' Church—to commence at 10½ o'clock. (1856)

The Compiler appeared last week in a beautiful new dress. Always a neat and tasteful paper, its new clothes give it an appearance which rather eclipses us "old fogies." (1856)

Mr. Tate, who was stabbed by young Weaver, has nearly recovered. The latter has been released from prison, on $500 bail to answer at April Court. (1856)

On Wednesday morning last, in this place, the mercury was 4 degrees below zero, and on Thursday morning 9. (1856)

FOR 142 YEARS . . .

The Gettysburg National Bank Has Grown And Prospered . . .

The founders of this bank were courageous, honest and resourceful men who in surmounting each problem as it arose established a local banking procedure that has won enduring trust and approval from its patrons down through the years. The names James Gettys, David Wills and Thaddeus Stevens are among the list of sturdy pioneers who were associated with the early history of the bank.

While we feel a sense of justified pride in our progress, we know quite well that without the honesty, industry and confidence of its patrons, such progress could not have been possible.

On this occasion of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Gettysburg, we look forward to Greater Growth with Gettysburg.
